VIET CONG KILL 17 IN MAJOR AMBUSH

SAIGON (AP) — A Communist Viet Cong battalion ambushed a government truck convoy rumbling into a South Viet Nam valley Tuesday, killing 17 and wounding 21. It was the second major ambush in two days.

Monday three American officers and 16 Vietnamese were killed north of Saigon in an ambush.

GOP Turns Solidly to Right As Goldwater Win Assured

TURNSTILES at one exit from San Francisco's Cow Palace were blocked by civil rights demonstrators at end of lengthy session of Republican convention early today. Moderates Lose Platform Battle

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—A tidal wave of conservative strength has crushed all hopes of the moderates led by Governor William Scranton to reform the Republican platform, setting the convention stage tonight for the nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the party's 1964 presidential candidate.

Every appeal by moderates to have the Republican national convention strengthen the civil rights plank in the Goldwater-flavored platform, denounce political extremists by name and ensure that the president of the United States retains control over all nuclear weapons was shouted down in an uproarious, cat-calling, foot-stomping session that wound up early today.

The voting indicated the conservatives or right-wing of the party had taken firm control of the convention and that Goldwater would get a hefty first-ballot victory over Scranton, the Pennsylvania governor.

Today's convention session was scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p.m. PDT (5:30 p.m. EDT), but there was no indication as to when balloting would start, except that it probably would take place late in the night. There were numerous speeches and business matters to be taken up, plus demonstrations for each candidate nominated.

A minimum of 655 of the 1,308 delegate nominating votes are required for victory and Goldwater claimed more than 800 vote pledges with more rolling in.

An Associated Press survey showed that Goldwater headed into nomination day with 805 votes while Scranton had 169.

A number of other formal opponents would get a fraction of the votes. These would include Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Senator Hiram Fong of Hawai, former representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, former governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota and Michigan Governor George Romney.

Tension High During Floor Fight

Scranton's forces admitted the platform-mending defeat showed there is virtually nothing the moderates can do to stop Goldwater.

The convention uproar Tuesday night was so great that at one time police were forced to restrain photographers and reporters from the floor, clearing the aisles in fear that tensions would spark clashes.

Outside the Cow Palace, where the convention went into its third day today, demonstrators for and against Goldwater circled in front of the entrance while a 50-man police force watched a racial demonstration by whites and Negroes continued for more than nine hours—the length of the convention session—and finally snake-dancing, chanting teen-agers fell to the pavement, blocking some of the exits as weary delegates left the arena.

This was the beginning of "civil disobedience" by members of the Congress of Racial Equality in protest against the "weak" and "vague" plank on civil rights.

A number of Negro delegates and alternates still toyed with the idea of walking out of the convention if Goldwater captures the nomination. Others said they were against a walkout but they wouldn't work for the Goldwater team in the November election campaign. Republican Jackie Robinson, former Negro baseball star, said he would switch his vote to President Johnson.

Most significant of the actions taken on the platform was the 897-to-409 vote by which the delegates rejected a Scranton-backed proposal to amend a plank which promised imple-

Kashmir Causes Flare-Up

LONDON (CP)—A confused flareup over Kashmir caused an incident as Commonwealth prime ministers neared the end of their 13th conference today.

An Indian spokesman called a press conference to accuse a conference briefing officer of "deliberate mischief" in reporting earlier that Kashmir was discussed at a morning session during a debate on India-Pakistan relations.

The 18-country conference was in closed session discussing its communique when R. M. Maitra, Indian delegation spokesman, called reporters together and unleashed his blast about Kashmir.

He denied that Kashmir had been discussed as had been reported by the briefing officer and several other sources. Asked whether these sources—including Canadians—were telling lies Maitra merely repeated that Kashmir was not discussed.

Wording of the Rhodesian section earlier produced some hard bargaining among senior officials drafting the communique. One key argument involved the phraseology of a Canadian "declaration of racial equality," submitted Monday by Prime Minister Pearson.

This morning's discussion of Kashmir suggested a new conciliatory climate between India and Kashmir.

U.K. Fascist Roughs Up Kenya Leader

LONDON (AP)—A man who said he was a member of the British Fascist party rushed at Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya today as he left his hotel.

A police constable intervened and all three men landed in a heap against the automobile waiting to take Kenyatta to a session of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

Martin Allen Webster, 21-year-old London clerk, was booked on three charges of assault on the police, using threatening behavior with intent to provoke a breach of the peace and assaulting Kenyatta.

Kenyatta, in his 70s, went back inside the hotel and a spokesman said he was not injured. Fifteen minutes later he left for the Commonwealth session.

The attack occurred during a demonstration against Kenyatta outside the hotel by members of the British Fascist party, a splinter political group.

The Kenya government later protested officially to Britain against the attack.

Kenneth Meadows, spokesman for the Kenya delegation, said that the complaints were over "a lack of adequate security precautions."

Times Series Bolsters Fare Hike Opposition

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

Tempo of preparations for the coming clash on B.C. Hydro's proposed bus fare hikes quickened overnight, some of them swirling around a Times series contending the government already has received a $35,000,000 consideration for bus deficits.

Mayor R. B. Wilson this morning said he has submitted clippings of the series to Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and expects they will be considered Friday morning at the second caucus of municipal leaders on the bus question.

Mayor Wilson also said he expects a Public Utilities Commission press release, seen by some as aimed at part of the Times series, will be discussed too.

Burnaby Reeve Alan Emmott already has been quoted as saying that the $35,000,000 contention will be incorporated in the brief being prepared by a joint municipal group that plans to meet with the provincial cabinet.

Besides issuing its surprise statement—warning that it will only consider the authority's transit operation and inviting opponents of the increase to divide themselves into special interest classes to plead their cases separately—the PUC set its Victoria area hearings for Aug. 5 at 10 a.m. in the Law Courts Building.

'MISUNDERSTANDING'

The PUC statement, made the day after the Times series ended, said correspondence from interested parties "indicates that there is some misunderstanding as to the scope of its proposed hearing and as to the powers of the commission."

It pointed out that the B.C. Hydro was removed from its jurisdiction and the transit hearings are based on an order-in-council limiting the rate structure scrutiny to buses only.

"It must be clearly recognized that the commission has no power over any B.C. Hydro and Power Authority rates other than those for the transit services in the areas governed by the franchises."

The PUC said it has no power to force anyone to subsidize the buses although the B.C. Hydro could do this voluntarily.

Perhaps significantly, it suggested that the municipalities themselves could pay direct subsidies to the transit authority if they chose.

The statement said that the public is involved as well as the hydro authority and the municipalities because it pays the fares.

"A number of protests have been received against the proposed fares for special classes of passenger, such as children, students or old-age pensioners," it said.

The statement said it was one of the PUC's functions to ensure that fares are fair as between different classes and therefore:

"It will be prudent for any group seeking a reduction in some class of transit rates to indicate clearly from what other transit rates they think the revenue can be replaced."

The PUC said its discretionary powers were defined by a Supreme Court of Canada decision which concerned the privately-owned B.C. Electric at a time when the PUC was bound to treat all the utility's services as a unit "and could, therefore, make use of electrical rates to reduce transit rates.

NOT ANY MORE

"Finally, the commission has nothing whatever to do with what may happen to transit services when the franchise agreements terminate and the

Douks Defy Order To Leave Camp

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some 500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors remained encamped at Agassiz, 45 miles east of here, today as the deadline passed on a Kent municipal order to move on.

The municipality had posted notices at the makeshift camp reading: "Municipal property. Anyone found settling or camping arbitrarily on these lands after July 15 will be prosecuted."

Kent Reeve James Fraser declined comment Tuesday night on council's plan of action. Frank Wilson, municipal solicitor, said he had been given no instructions.

The sect moved to Agassiz last summer to be near brethren serving sentences in Mountain Prison for acts of terrorism. The sect earlier abandoned farming settlements in southeastern B.C.

Dief Renews Demand For CBC Enquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker renewed in the Commons today a demand that a parliamentary committee inquire into CBC operations at this session.

The demand was again rejected by State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to the Commons on broadcasting matters.

The minister noted that he had announced in May establishment of an advisory committee to study broadcasting and possible amendments to broadcasting legislation. The government hoped to have the legislation ready for parliament next year, when a Commons committee could be set up.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the CBC annual report, tabled Tuesday, suggests a public inquiry into broadcasting on a charter basis. The CBC received $80,000,000 a year from parliament which should not be "evaded in this way."

Mr. Lamontagne said full opportunity will be given to consider any changes.

SOVIET BIDS FOR PARLEY WITH CHINA

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today called on the Chinese Communist Party anew to join in an international conference aimed at settling their ideological differences.

The Soviets proposed that "in the immediate future we should agree in principle that a meeting must be convened and that it should not be put off for long."

Peking has previously dismissed an early world Communist parley and told Russia it may take from four to five years to prepare for it.

Triple Murder Missing Links Being Sought

MISSION (CP) — Joe Sauriol, chief of the Mission municipal police, said today his force is trying to uncover five missing links that may clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of three youths near here Sunday.

Chief Sauriol said no motive for the triple murder has been established and the murder weapon, believed to be a .22-calibre rifle owned by one of the dead youths, is still missing.

He said two people who were in the area of the slayings are being sought for any information they may yield to clear up the mystery.

Also being sought is any person who saw a 1961 black convertible being driven from an isolated lake, about six miles north of here where the youths were killed, to the highway here early Sunday.

Police also hope any motorist who picked up a hitchhiker between Sumas and Surrey will come forward. The convertible, owned by one of the victims, was found abandoned at Sumas.

Pravda Fears GOP Platform Calls for War With Russia

LONDON (Reuters)—Pravda, the Russian Communist party newspaper, says today the Republican platform of Senator Barry Goldwater "in fact calls for war with the Soviet Union."

The program called for "open intervention in Cuba, stepping up the war in Viet Nam and the granting to NATO commanders of the right to use nuclear weapons on their own initiative," the newspaper comments.

It was not surprising, the newspaper adds, that the platform had "frightened even those who previously thought of Goldwater as a noisy but generally harmless fellow."

Pravda and other Moscow newspapers quote American press comment that "if his philosophy were put into practice it would be a catastrophe for the country and for the whole world."

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda says it was hard to find words to describe the Goldwater platform, which contained "the most harmful dreams of the Birchites of a 'decisive victory over communism.'"

Yugoslavia compares the platform with Nazi policies and declared Goldwater's "appetites" were "greater than Hitler's."

This comment by the official Yugoslav newspaper Borba is one of the sharpest attacks on the Republicans and the Arizona senator voiced in Europe on the day Goldwater is expected to capture the Republican nomination at San Francisco.

In likening sections of the party platform to the policies of Nazi Germany, Borba's editorial cites a section which it says pledged the Republicans to follow the road toward "final liberation of the nations of East Europe, Asia and Latin America"

Borba comments that the peoples of those areas had survived worse experiences "but seldom worse insults." It also describes the platform as a "most unscrupulous attempt to interfere in internal affairs of all countries, including ours."

In Britain, former president Eisenhower draws newspaper fire along with the platform and Goldwater.

Daily Express reporter Rene MacColl writes from San Francisco: "When the embers of this hate-ridden Republican convention get raked into the cold ashes of history, the man who will probably emerge in the worst light is ex-president Dwight Eisenhower."

MacColl charges that Eisenhower "has behaved so badly that he has dealt his reputation and prestige a most grievous blow."

The article says he "blew hot and cold" before the convention and later assured Governor William Scranton he "would 'probably' support him — but then didn't."

"Now, on top of that, Eisenhower pops up in San Francisco as a radio-TV analyst of the whole thing, at a reputed fee of £18,000 ($54,000).

"In the eyes of nearly everyone this is a lapse of good taste and judgment that is little short of appalling."

OPEN SAFETY PIN IN LUNG FOR 14 YEARS

Now She's a Pin-Up Girl at 37

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mrs. Virginia Leavy, attractive, 37-year-old mother of two, had an open safety pin in her lung for 14 years but didn't know it.

Doctors at Pittsburgh's Mercy Hospital removed it and Tuesday Mrs. Leavy sat on the edge of her hospital bed and said she felt fine.

Mrs. Leavy, of nearby Greensburg, said she swallowed the pin in 1949 or 1950—"I'm not sure which" — while preparing her infant son for a trip.

"I held the open pin in my mouth for a minute while dressing him—you know, one of those small, gold-colored pins for ribbons and things," she said.

Then she swallowed it—still open. She tried to cough it up. She called a doctor, who told her it would probably pass out of her system and not to worry as long there was no pain.

Mrs. Leavy pursued an active life during the next year, swimming, playing badminton, hiking, doing housework and smoking.

Last month after a busy day she "suddenly felt something in my chest."

When she started coughing up blood she called her doctor. A chest x-ray followed and located the pin in her lung, still open.

At first, doctors passed a bronchoscope—a narrow, tube-like instrument — through her mouth and windpipe. The bronchoscope was monitored by television.

Aided by the bronchoscope, doctors reached into her lung with a special forceps. But the pin, which had become embedded in tissue, wouldn't move. The head broke and was withdrawn.

That was a week ago. Monday they tried again and in a slow, painstaking manoeuvre brought the pin up. It was badly rusted.

First it was bears, now it's rabbits.

A Victoria lady driving towards town on Esquimalt Road Tuesday morning reports that a black rabbit bounded across the road in front of her and disappeared into the shrubbery near the railway yard.

And the SPCA, which is located near the railway yard, says that, although it has lost no rabbits, employees have seen a black rabbit around the logs of a nearby sawmill.

Any day now we're expecting to hear that a kangaroo has jumped off an Australian ship and is heading down Government Street.

The Douglas Street restauranteur whose Irish coffee mugs drew our attention the other day called indignantly to say there is no such thing as 25-cent coffee.

We had suggested such a price—a rise of 10 cents on an already high 15 cents a cup—was outrageous, notwithstanding the distinctive Irish mugs.

The mugs are just a coincidence, he said, and the price is a summer season minimum service charge, applied to fruit juice, toast, cookies, as well as coffee, or anything else.

He went on to tell us that his other two Douglas Street enterprises make a minimum charge of 50 cents—just like the government ferries—all the time.

Meanwhile, we heard the story of a woman who stepped in to a Vancouver North Shore department store's lunch counter for coffee and was told that between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. she would have to pay 25 cents minimum.

"How disgusting," she blurted to the waitress. "Just bring me a glass of water, then."

The waitress obliged and the woman drank up, it costing her nothing.

Contrary to what most people think, the odds are that you eat more—not less—during the hot summer months.

A study made by an American chain of hamburger restaurants finds that people think they eat less because meals get lighter and portions smaller.

But the catch is that in summer they snack more and the day's total intake of food may add up to the equivalent of four or five wintertime meals.

Families returning from a drive may stop for a snack on the way home before dinner. Men and women replace coffee with milkshakes. Hot days encourage the eating of pop and ice cream.

Another reason people think they eat less in summer is that they don't necessarily gain weight, and in fact may lose, because of the greatly increased exercise of summer sports.

mentation and execution of the Civil Rights Act.

Senator Hugh Scott (Rep. Pa.), who engineered the losing platform fight, proposed a substitute which would have added a pledge for enforcement of the new law—against which Goldwater voted—by an increased justice department staff. It also proposed invoking the 14th amendment to reduce congressional representation of states which disenfranchise some citizens.

The convention rejected a total of five proposals to amend the platform and delegates shouted their approval of the 9,000-word draft without any change.

Two amendments dealt with what their sponsors called political extremism, two were in the field of civil rights and a fifth was aimed at Goldwater's suggestion that the NATO commander be given more supervision over the use of small nuclear weapons to repel attack.

Former state secretary Christian A. Herter urged adoption of the nuclear amendment and Senator Jacob K. Javits of New York was booed when he spoke for it.

Evidence that Goldwater's conservatives were in charge came early in the day. Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 presidential candidate, held a press conference and toned down his previous criticism of Goldwater, suggesting that European descriptions of Goldwater as being a "nut" and a "jerk" were inaccurate. He said he would campaign for the senator.

Former president Eisenhower accompanied by his wife Mamie addressed the convention and spoke out against political extremists without mentioning any names. He pitched his main appeal to party unity.

If differences cannot be overcome, he said, "then our quarrelling groups could hardly coexist in the same party."

BOOS FOLLOW CHEERS

When New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller mounted the podium to speak out against Communists, Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society, he at first was greeted with warm applause.

But when he started mentioning the Birchers, which support Goldwater, hooting drowned out the cheers. As chanting of "we want Rocky" began, a heavier chant of "we want Barry" flooded the area.

The convention leadership had to extend Rockefeller's time to 12 minutes to make a five-minute speech. Appeals went from the podium to the floor to let Rockefeller complete his statement.

Supporting Scranton, Rockefeller said he had personal experience of the threats, intimidation and Communist and Nazi tactics the extremists could employ.

When booing continued, Rockefeller shoited: "Some of you don't like to hear it, but it is the truth."

As for Scranton, he said Tuesday that no matter what happens he will support the Republican ticket actively in November.

Meanwhile it was the consensus of Goldwater's associates that he would pick Representative William E. Miller of New York, the Republican national chairman, as his vice-presidential running mate.

N.Y. Guards Mrs. JFK's Privacy

NEW YORK (UPI) — The city is taking steps to make sure Mrs. John F. Kennedy will not be plagued by gawking tourists when she moves here from Washington.

Mrs. Kennedy's secretary has disclosed that one of the reasons for the former first lady's decision to move was that so many tourists drive past their Georgetown home, blocking the street.

City commissioner of licences Joseph C. Dicarlo said he was asking sightseeing guides to exclude from their itineraries the place where the widow of the late president and her two children will live.

"Mrs. Kennedy is entitled to the same privacy, dignity and respect as any other citizen," he said.

"As far as I am concerned, no licensed guide or bus will be permitted to repeat the annoyances that took place with abandon in Washington. I expect co-operation from the sightseeing industry."

'HIGH POINT OF CONVENTION'

CHANCELLOR
. . . ousted

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—There was so much heated competition at Tuesday night's Republican convention session, as seen on television, that maybe it would be best to start off these video notes with a funny story.

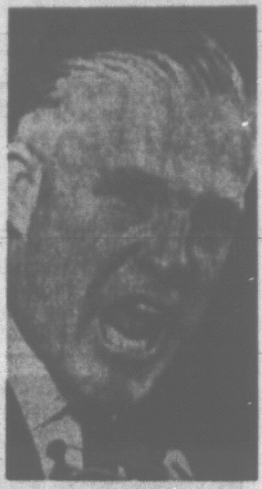
In one of the absolutely classic moments of live television history, John Chancellor, former host of NBC-TV's "Today" show and a convention reporter, suddenly found himself being ejected and apparently arrested in an aisle-clearing, but he kept his wits and wit. Using an exquisite tongue-in-cheek style, he decided to report his remarkable apprehension to the watching nation as it happened. The result kept viewers in stitches, not to mention NBC-TV anchormen Chet Huntley and David Brinkley.

Chancellor decided to interview the policeman. He asked for his badge number. He asked a convention official who was in on the aisle-clearing attempt for his name, and got it. A reporting cohort, Sander Vanocur chimed in: "I don't know—this may be the high point of the whole convention." Then Chancellor, as he was being led away, deadpanned, "I formally say this is a disgrace," and signed off, "This is John Chancellor . . . somewhere in custody."

Not long afterward, in the company of an apologetic chief sergeant-at-arms of the convention, Chancellor was returned to the floor of the political gathering, no longer a pending jailbird. His first words to the waiting nation were, "as I was saying . . ." and then he started interviewing the sergeant-at-arms.

Televiewers saw all of this while the long reading of the GOP platform was proceeding in the background at the Cow Palace in San Francisco. But it was not until shortly afterward, a bit before 9 p.m. Pacific time—midnight in the east—that the real fireworks began in the vain attempted amending of the platform with planks concerning extremism, civil rights and sole control of nuclear weapons by the president. Opponents of the controlling Barry Goldwater contingent suggested they were not allowed on until it was an inconveniently late hour for televiewers and editors in the east.

The main video fireworks centered around Nelson Rockefeller, who made a flaming speech attacking extremists and the John Birch Society with special force, calling for the naming of this group in an amendment. Boos from the delegates were mixed with cheers. There was a chanting of "We want Barry." At one point, Rockefeller stopped, and, as the nation watched and listened, he turned to GOP officials on the platform and said: "It's not my fault if you don't control the audience." At another point, he said to the audience, "It's still a free country, ladies and gentlemen." And he refused to yield on his time limit until he got in his last line.



ROMNEY
. . . impassioned

Emotions were not as pitched during the espousals and rebuttals of the other speech-making platform debaters. But even those who might not agree with Gov. George Romney of Michigan would undoubtedly agree the convention has thus far produced no more surprisingly powerful, efficient and impassioned speaker.

Earlier in the evening, the emphasis was on party unity, as expressed in a news conference by Richard Nixon and a speech by Dwight Eisenhower. In a revealing emotional moment at the convention, the delegates gave perhaps their loudest applause to Eisenhower when he made a remark about what he termed sensation-seeking columnists and commentators. Tonight the networks will present the convention's nominations for the Repulican candidate for president.

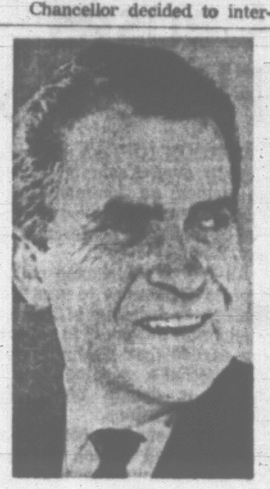
'The Bayonet' Becomes Dove At Convention

BY EDWARD T. FOLLIARD
The Washington Post

SAN FRANCISCO—Richard M. Nixon, a rough campaigner, who used to be called "the bayonet of the Republican party," arrived here Tuesday in the guise of a dove.

His assigned role is that of peacmaker in the grand old party, and his task that of making it appear that the fierce battle here between Moderates and Conservatives is no battle at all—just a way of getting in shape for the fall campaign.

He is to enact his role formally at the final session of the convention Thursday night.



NIXON
. . . mediator

However, he began rehearsing it at a news conference in the gaudy room of the Dons in the Hilton Hotel. He said that Sen. Goldwater, who is about to become the Republican nominee for president, is "a reasonable and moderate man," who "reflects the mainstream of Republican thinking."

As for the fighting here between the moderates led by Gov. William W. Scranton and the Goldwater conservatives—well, Nixon said, the GOP has had far more ferocious fights in its history and then patched things up for the fall campaign.

What, in his opinion, was the outlook for the Republicans in November?

WILL BE LIMITED

He noted that Goldwater himself, in his now famous interview with Der Spiegel, had said that, "as of now," it looks as if President Johnson will be the winner.

But Nixon went on to say that, once the platform has been adopted and the ticket nominated, the Republicans will be united and will then go on to capture the White House.

He said that Goldwater would have these advantages: He will be the underdog; he will be on the attack; he will be "far superior" to President Johnson on TV; and, as the California primary showed, he will have the largest and most enthusiastic corps of volunteers.

Did he think that the Republican party was about to take "a sharp turn to the right?"

A turn to the right, perhaps, he said, but, no, not a sharp one. He said that in 1960, when he was the Republican nominee for president, the Republican party "was essentially the conservative party in America."

He seemed to have forgotten that Sen. Goldwater, at the end of the 1960 campaign, had called him a "me-tooer" and said that the reason John F. Kennedy won was that "the Republican party was not Republican enough."

Anyway, Nixon said, Goldwater had campaigned for him in 1960, and now he is prepared to campaign for the Arizonan and give it all he has.

MONTREAL (CP) — Andre Robert, 36, a Quebec City bicycle racer felled by sunstroke Saturday during a race in suburban Duvernay, died in hospital Tuesday. He collapsed at the 50th mile of the Duvernay course. Robert had participated in the six-day races here this year and in 1963.

Barry's Cause Aided By 'Hot' Letter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The backlash of a scorching letter from Governor William W. Scranton's campaign headquarters has been credited by aides of Senator Barry Goldwater with herding many delegates into the Arizona Conservative's corral.

Dean Burch, assistant director of the Goldwater campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, said the letter not only gained delegates "but hardened like a rock the ones we had."

Scranton, Goldwater's chief rival for the Republican nomination, charged the Arizona senator's forces with buying, beating and compromising delegates.

Goldwater answered the charges by saying, "I consider the letter an insult to every Republican in San Francisco."

Scranton said he did not write the letter, did not see it before it was delivered by messenger to the Goldwater headquarters, and did not sign it.

And he said some of the wording was too strong.

But he accepted responsibility for it and said the basic points of the message were valid.

Scranton's denial of writing the letter brought from the Arizona senator this statement:

"He should read what his aides write before he signs it."

When the correspondence first arrived, Goldwater thought it was a fake because of its formal method of address.

Two hours after the letter was received—10 p.m.—one of Goldwater's aides went before television cameras to say the letter tragically reflects upon the Republican party and the convention.

Anticipating the backlash, Goldwater aides put copies of the Scranton letter in the hands of every delegate. Two hundred party leaders also received a personally addressed accompanying note bearing the Arizona senator's signature.

It said "I hope you take appropriate note of this (the letter)"

IS IT CONSTITUTIONAL?

Federal Education Aid Debated

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Should the federal government play a larger role in supporting higher education? Can Ottawa do so under the constitution?

These thorny issues were thrashed out all day in the Commons Tuesday as debate opened on a bill enabling the government to guarantee bank loans of up to $1,000 to needy university students.

A wide range of views on federal aid to education were aired by the speakers. Even party colleagues differed among themselves at times. The debate continues today.

Strongest exponent of federal intervention was NDP Leader T. C. Douglas. He called for sharply increased federal grants to universities to permit them to abolish tuition fees, expany their facilities and faculties and meet their burgeoning operating costs.

The universities were starved for funds and had to turn away students because of cramped campuses. The government loan bill was totally inadequate in meeting these problems.

“A pretty shabby piece of legislation,” he said. “Very largely window-dressing.”

Creditiste House Leader Gilles Gregoire took up a position at the opposite pole of the argument. Any federal legislation dealing with education infringed on provincial rights and violated the constitution.

He said the federal government should give the provinces a larger share of direct taxes and let the provinces tackle the problems of education.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette did not refer to provincial rights. He said the Bank of Canada should print more money and hand it to the provinces, which would distribute university scholarships, not loans.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the overwhelming university crisis constitutes one of the worst problems facing Canada. The federal government should initiate national education policies in agreement with the provinces.

The Liberals had promised 1,000 annual university scholarships of $1,000 each and after long delays were delivering mere loans with only part of the interest paid by the government. The bill was just a stopgap designed as election bait.

Leon Balcer, Mr. Diefenbaker's Quebec lieutenant, said he has serious doubts about the constitutional validity of the measure. The provinces had exclusive and absolute jurisdiction over all aspects of education.

He recalled that Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec threatened last spring to test the validity of any federal student loan plan in the courts. Associations representing college and university students in Quebec had similarly attacked the federal proposal.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said the Bank of Canada should create “social capital” to finance free university education for all youths with the required aptitude. The government bill was one very small step.

COMINCO STRIKE

Last-Ditch Talks Set

TRAIL (CP)—Company and union officials will meet Thursday with a government conciliation officer in a last ditch effort to avert a threatened strike at the giant Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company operations here and in Kimberley, about 90 miles to the northeast.

Shortly after William Sands, deputy labor minister, announced in Vancouver that he had appointed government conciliation officer E. P. Fisher to mediate the strike, both company and union spokesmen said they were agreeable to the proposed meeting.

NOTICE SERVED

Earlier today the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), representing more than 4,500 Cominco workers, served 48-hour strike notice on the company. The strike deadline was set at 3 p.m., PDT, Friday.

The strike deadline was announced by the union at a meeting Tuesday. At the same time a union spokesman said they have at least $500,000 in strike pay with prospects for more.

The union workers last week voted 89.7 per cent in favor of strike action to back up their demands for more pay. They want a 15-cent-an-hour increase in present rates which range between $1.97½ and $2.85.

19 FIREMEN KILLED IN TOKYO INFERNO

TOKYO (UPI)—A blaze believed started by spontaneous combustion swept through 10 wooden waterfront warehouses Tuesday night and killed 19 firemen in what was called the worst fire to hit Tokyo since the American fire-bomb raids of the Second World War.

The flames destroyed huge stores of chemicals, oils and paints and then ignited 1,200 drums of cellulose nitrate (gun cotton) that exploded in a blast which rattled windows two miles away and buried the firefighters in the rubble of the crumpled buildings.

An army of 1,500 firemen, one-fourth the city's total force, brought the deadly blaze under control early this morning.

It had taken the highest death toll among Tokyo's firemen in the 400-year history of the capital city.

Officials said 53 persons, including 40 more firemen, were injured. Eleven of these were listed in serious condition.

EMERGING NATIONS BENEFIT

'Information Centre' For Commonwealth

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—A permanent Commonwealth secretariat, designed to facilitate exchange of information within the 18-member association, is expected to come into being in a year, probably sooner.

London, New Delhi and Ottawa have already been suggested as possible headquarters for the organization, something new in the Commonwealth story. New Delhi is the current favorite.

A central secretariat for pooling and co-ordinating information is an old chestnut with Commonwealth meetings. In the past, the disadvantages seemed to outweigh the advantages. Now, the idea has won overwhelming support and is being taken seriously.

Senior officials already have held preliminary discussions and these will continue during the next few months through the medium of a liaison committee representing all countries.

It is too early to elaborate exact functions and responsibilities. Basically, the secretariat is being formed in response to the needs of the younger, emerging countries, whose resources for acquiring information are less sophisticated than those of older established nations.

To some extent, therefore, the secretariat represents a concession by the old Commonwealth of Canada, Britain, Australia and New Zealand to the new Commonwealth countries in Africa and Asia.

SUPPORTS THE IDEA

Canada decided to support the idea in principle, despite a record of traditional opposition, because Prime Minister Pearson quickly came to the conclusion that the emerging states, lacking in trained personnel, had a real and practical need for some central clearing house or co-ordinating agency.

There has long been a feeling among the younger nations that Britain tends to “give more away” to old friends like Canada and Australia than to the newer members.

FOX HUNTERS PEPPER U.S. TROOPS

OPENHEIM, GERMBANY (UPI — Two German fox hunters mistook a squad of five American soldiers on maneuvers for poachers and peppered them with shotgun pellets, injuring four, the U.S. army said today.

The soldiers, mistaking the hunters for the “enemy,” refused their command to come forward and fired blank cartridges at them, drawing genuine shotgun fire in return.

The incident occurred Monday. One soildier was given first aid and released. The other three were reported in good condition today at the 97th general hospital in Frankfurt.

'Stay Home' Africans Tell Tshombe

CAIRO (AP)—Premier Moise Tshombe of The Congo, due here by Thursday for an African summit conference, has been told he isn't wanted.

Foreign ministers of the African nations at a meeting Tuesday decided to inform Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu that Tshombe's presence would be “undesirable.”

The decision at a two-hour secret meeting was not unanimous. Nigeria and several other nations opposed it, while Ghana, Algeria and Uganda led the fight against the former secessionist leader of Katanga province who returned from self-exile to head a new Congolese government

Rest in Peace

THE INHERITORS OF THE late Mr. Axel Wenner-Gren's vision of a private billion-dollar empire in northern British Columbia are due to be paid off next month in Vancouver at the rate of 57 cents on the dollar when the affairs of Peace River Development Company are wound up.

There will be few tears shed by the public of this province over the end of the Wenner-Gren dream which just seven years ago loomed up as the most massive give-away of resources in the history of British Columbia. Nevertheless, the bitterness expressed by Sir Andrew MacTaggart of London, chairman of the board of Peace River Development, in his announcement of the winding-up is understandable.

As Sir Andrew noted, the company was enthusiastically encouraged by Premier Bennett to invest its money, time and skill in the development of the power and resources of the Peace River.

The large British and Canadian industrial and financial firms which joined with the Wenner-Gren interests in the project could have had no thought that Premier Bennett would change his mind and himself take over their northern empire. After all, the premier was the foremost exponent of private development of resources and was indefatigable in his defence of handing over thousands of square miles of timber, mineral, and, above all, hydro-electric resources to Mr. Wenner-Gren and his associates.

After the roof fell in on Peace River Development Company—and the B.C. Electric Company — on August 1, 1961, the government eventually paid Peace River Development about $8 millions for expenditures which the company had actually made on the project. This was mostly for surveys and plans which the government took over and made the basis of its own plans.

So far as most British Columbians are concerned, this was all the company was legally entitled to receive. There were $8 millions spent and $8 millions repaid and the deal was called off. It must be recognized, however, that the Peace River Development backers did lose through placing their faith in Mr. Wenner-Gren and Mr. Bennett. The most important thing they lost was the return on their $8 millions over a number of years which would have been realized had the money been invested elsewhere.

Interestingly enough the Wenner-Gren interests turned a profit on the deal. When Peace River Development was capitalized it was on a basis of $1 per share, except for the Wenner-Gren group, which received three shares for each dollar of the $2.7 millions which had already been spent on the project. Since each share returned the backers 57 cents, the Wenner-Gren interests got back about $4.5 millions. Additionally, of course, the Wenner-Gren group received mineral and forest resources whose value has never been accurately assessed.

Peace River Development Company is about to pass into history but it leaves behind it a legacy of bitterness that still lingers on in the minds of thousands of investors who, through various other companies, put funds into the Wenner-Gren vision only to see it dissolved at the stroke of a pen.

British Columbians can be thankful they are well out of the debacle which Premier Bennett was leading them into in 1957, but they can hardly be proud of the reputation their province gained in the process.

Talk Doesn't Clear Slums

IN LONDON THE OTHER DAY the Town and Country Planning Association offered a sharp contradiction to Housing Minister Sir Keith Joseph's estimate of the number of slum dwellings in Britain —and the time by which they would be eliminated.

Sir Keith put the figure at 650,000 and said that new construction would replace them by 1973.

The Town and Country Planning Association set the number at a million and said some will still be occupied in 20 or even 30 years.

The discrepancy can be explained by what are known in Britain as "twilight houses"—those not yet slums but slipping at various speeds into that category. As the association sees it, by the time the authorities have replaced the 650,000 it recognizes as slums, about 400,000 more will have degenerated into that class.

In Victoria we seldom think of slums in direct comparison with some of the dingier, dilapidated buildings of big cities, including those of Britain. Conceivably we are too gentle in self-criticism. What our authorities call depressed housing, on the other hand, might suffer a harsher name in some other location.

The fact is that we have properties in Victoria which are definitely substandard. They are no cause for pride either to owners or to the authorities.

Vancouver, with similar and often worse accommodation, has called it by the familiar name—and has done something about it. That city is now embarked upon the second phase of its slum-clearance program.

In Victoria, where, even with euphemisms, a lot is to be desired in improved housing, the replacement job remains a very interesting conversation piece.

Town-planners have pointed the way to reduce the condition in certain specific localities through urban renewal largely financed by senior governments. That, also, makes conversation. But talk does not clear away the undesirable and replace it with something better.

In the meantime, while the issue remains a matter of vocal exercise here, the same condition noted by the Town and Country Planning Association in Britain continues in Greater Victoria. We, too, have our "twilight houses" and they are sinking to a lower classification.

Just conceivably the point might be made to the council that it is later than the members think.

Getting What They Asked For

SENTENCES GIVEN TO YOUNG offenders — sometimes juvenile, in other cases those above the statutory age — in recent weeks here should have conveyed an important message to young people with an arrogant disregard for the law.

If this type of individual lacks the intelligence to recognize the implication to himself of terms handed out to others, he might understand some of the comment from the bench which accompanies sentence.

The other day Magistrate William Ostler sentenced an accused to two months for theft of automobile tires "to bring him to his senses," after the youth had deceived his probation officer.

There appears to be no intention here to ignore the principle of helping a young offender to return to decent citizenship. There is, on the other hand, an obvious indication of a decision to crack down on the smart aleck who abuses the privileges and relative leniency of parole.

In the proper language of the court, the unregenerate young offender is being told, "You ask for it, and you'll get it."

No sensible element of the public will object to that attitude.

A Challenge to Science

ANOTHER HOPEFUL SIGN OF growing Soviet Union - United States co-operation in solving a vital international problem is the decision by the two countries to start exploratory talks in Washington this month on development of techniques to desalinate sea water economically.

With more than half of the earth's land surface classified as semi-arid or outright desert, and the pressure of population pushing on available arable land, a breakthrough in the use of sea water for irrigation purposes would be one of the most beneficial discoveries of the century.

Some observers believe that the Russian crop failures of recent years are directly responsible for the suddent interest in a study of desalination, a field in which they have so far made little progress. Some of Russia's richest agricultural lands in the Caucasus are reportedly threatened by the extreme saltiness of the Caspian Sea.

The best hope for successful desalinization seems to be the use of nuclear plants at coastal locations where both power and fresh water could be produced simultaneously. Nuclear reactors would convert sea water to steam that would drive electric generators before being condensed into fresh water.

FROM CALGARY

By JAMES H. GRAY

Little Warning or None on the Poisons

IN a review of the insecticide-wild life syndrome six weeks ago, this column expressed a cautious note of optimism that perhaps the worst was over. During the past winter the drum beating for the more volatile poisons had been less noticeable. Throughout the farm seminars and short courses, great stress was laid upon insecticide label reading.

Gray

"Please, oh please," the experts implored with one voice, "read the label and follow directions. Be careful."

Pious Fraud

As this was the first time a public outcry had indicated there was any reason for carefulness, hope for the survival of insectivorous birds seemed to be justified. This is a qualification of that cautious note of optimism. A check at the consumer level indicates that the whole "read the label" campaign is a pious fraud.

On not a single label, of a single insecticide, discoverable in a two - day search, was there a single reference to the danger to birds, fish or useful insects from the use of any chemical spray. The search took me through every important insecticide sales outlet in Calgary.

Less than a handful of the clerks interviewed even knew that insecticides were a menace to bird life, only two could suggest chemicals which were least hazardous to birds, only one suggested how to use an insecticide so as not to kill ladybugs or spiders in spraying aphids.

At the retail level in Canada, if Calgary is typical, the level of irresponsibility is higher than even Rachel Carson suspected in her sensational book, "Silent Spring." The chemicals are being dispensed by clerks who are completely uninformed and uninstructed in the products they sell.

This ignorance ran through the offices of the local distributors. They were surprised that anybody would be concerned about wild-life but they would write to Winnipeg or Toronto or Vancouver and see if they could get some information.

This latest research arose from a letter of comment on my column from the general manager of one of the largest producers of insecticides. It ran to three pages and detailed the steps his company had taken to acquaint the public with the hazards of chemicals.

Their field men had conducted seminars, shown colored slides to over 40,000 Canadians, had improved the warnings on labels and had adopted a highly responsible attitude toward its products.

How much of this enlightenment was percolating through to the general public? Alas, none. His company was alone in improving the poison warning to the public. But none of his labels contained any warning about the hazard of insecticide to wild-life. Yet his labels were the best of a very bad lot.

Finest Print

Most labels are printed in the smallest type devised by man. Many obvious poisons are not labelled as poison. One bottle had the skull and crossed bones warning in such small type that it would likely have been missed by a casual reader or an aging gardener without his bifocals.

The warnings on the labels are confined almost exclusively to protection of the sprayer. Do not inhale! Don't get it on your skin! If it gets into your eyes, bathe for 15 minutes and call a doctor! Do not spray on fruit or vegetables within 30 days of eating! Keep it away from children! Don't get it on household pets! Keep it away from food!

From the examination of scores of insecticide labels one melancholy conclusion gradually emerges—the labels seem designed more for the protection of the manufacturer than for any other reason. None failed to limit the warranty to "effective for the use claimed if used as directed."

No Better

Nor was the other literature available at insecticide counters any better.

To be fair, the approach to farm chemicals seems to be more restrained and Miss Carson's book was mostly concerned with the disastrous effects of farm-used chemicals on the balance of nature. Government action, both legislative and educational, is afoot in that field. But her Silent Spring will surely come to the cities of Canada if the sales of chemical insecticides continue their present almost slaphappy way.

Here and there, of course, there is a glimmer of hope. The parks board of Calgary has completely abandoned the use of DDT in favor of Malathion and the old reliable Rotenone. The former is perhaps the least harmful of the organic phosphates though by no means harmless.

The action of the Calgary parks department could be the start of a healthy trend if other parks departments follow suit. Those departments, which rode the DDT bandwagon for so long, will share with the chemical companies the responsibility for the "Silent Spring," if and when our cities lose the rest of their songbirds.

FROM BEIRUT

By RICHARD PURSER

High Arab Regard for UN Peace Force

EVERYWHERE in the four Arab nations which surround Israel the name of the United Nations commands immense respect. The only major exception is in the Palestinian refugee camps, concentrated especially around Gaza in Egypt and Jericho in Jordan, where bitterness is directed at all who are seen as preventing the return of refugees to their homes in what is referred to here as Jewish-occupied Palestine.

Purser

It is at first surprising that this negative attitude does not extend everywhere, considering the violent hostility universally expressed toward Israel. But there is reason behind the anomaly.

A tour of the countries concerned reveals that most Arabs, when speaking personally, simply are not interested in war with Israel or anyone else. They hate Israel and hope for a settlement in the Arabs' favor, but there is no desire to devastate the Middle East, which would be the consequence of any Arab attempt to drive the Jews into the sea.

This feeling is reflected in governments, where the contrast between slogan and practice is striking. Destruction of Israel is talked about everywhere, but no Arab country is willing to take the necessary steps and accept the grim consequences. The United Nations is secretly thanked for its achievements in preventing the mass border incursions, especially along the Egyptian-Israeli armistice line, which would automatically escalate into full-scale war.

These things cannot be said openly around here, but they are expressed in the great welcome given to United Nations personnel travelling about the Middle East on business and on leave. The UN men's presence alone has enabled the Arab states to concentrate on much-needed economic development despite their still-high arms expenditure.

Development is so great a preoccupation of Arab leaders that even such people as President Nasser and King Hussein have larded their tirades against Israel with face-saving assuarnces that it is up to Israel to resume the fight.

The United Nations in effect preserves a status quo in the Middle East, giving the Arabs an excuse for accepting in practice what they cannot accept in theory. The status quo can still be upset by events beyond UN control, such as an explosion over the Jordan River diversion project, the possession by Israel or the Arabs of sudden-death atomic strike capacity, or union along Nasserist lines of all four Arab states surrounding Israel.

The UN preserves the status quo in different ways. Almost all UN personnel are concentrated in the United Nations Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip and along the Egyptian-Israel frontier. The force dates from the brief 1956 Sinai war between the two countries. It guards the most sensitive Arab-Israeli frontier; hatred is strongest between Egypt and Israel, and the two have the strongest military capacities. Here UN soldiers patrol the border to prevent incursions forcibly.

Gentler

Along the other three frontiers the situation is much gentler. There is no UN military force. Incursions are not prevented, but are investigated and reported upon after they occur or after complaints of alleged border violations are made by governments. This work is controlled by the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization, which watches over the armistice lines set up in 1949 following the initial hostilities over the founding of Israel.

So between Israel and Lebanon, Syria and Jordan the status quo has held for 15 years with relatively little trouble, and most of that between Israel and Syria. If this situation changed, the United Nations would be hard put to set up a UNEF along the other frontiers. That is why the Jordan project and the prospect of Arab unity hold such potential danger.

Maintaining the Fallacy

The fallacy is still maintained that there is no idle class in society, that everybody works who can, except perhaps the "lazy" few who sponge illegally off "social" welfare.

The schism in society is now referred to as labor and "management," there presumably being no capitalist class. However, shares are still being traded on stock exchanges, and bonds, private and government, are still being bought and sold, so obviously some class owns them.

During the recent strike in the Albernis the machinery was present and the raw materials were abundant, but nothing was produced for seven weeks and 17 million dollars of wealth was lost, because the labor factor was missing.

Which doesn't say much for the social usefulness of the absentee minority owners of the means of production and distribution today.

Why Be 'Hooked'?

It came as a great surprise to me, and I'm sure the rest of the inhabitants of North Saanich, to read in Friday's Times that we were interested in becoming hooked up with Sidney. Hooked is the correct word, as we of North Saanich would indeed be hooked into helping to pay for Sidney's sidewalks and street lights. This is surely a time for all residents to stop and ask themselves what advantage there would be to the people of North Saanich.

We have at the present time, the best schools on the Island so you can't improve that. Our police, fire, and ambulance is equal to any big city service, and is superior to many. Main water is available to nearly all who request it and don't think the Sidney Chamber of Commerce would try to improve it. We have in addition, peace and quiet, this being why we moved here in the first place, and we are lucky if we are visited by one official a year.

The B.C. government takes care of us through the taxes we pay, and there are no reeves or sundry police chiefs to raise the taxes every year as they do other places.

I understand that there are already a number of petitions being made ready for signatures against this move, and I urge every resident of North Saanich to do everything possible to defeat this attempted invasion of our privacy.

"DEEP COVE"

Apologia

I note that the recent lack of a quorum for a few minutes in the House of Commons has sent some editorial writers off into their usual frenzy about "absenteeism" of our alleged highly paid MPs.

The fact is that attendance in the House of Commons, per se, can be just about the most senseless waste of a member's time on many occasions.

Everything that is said is recorded in Hansard and a member who has something to contribute can peruse this at his leisure and prepare his answers, since many debates are set in order.

An MP who is attending to wishes of his constituents, studying legislation, working on committees outside the House, yes, even visiting his riding, can be contributing a much greater effort in his job than merely sitting on his seat for hours listening to another member reading his views into the record.

I saw a classical example of this when I visited the United States Senate chamber during the recent filibuster on civil rights. There were exactly three senators in the chamber, which was in session. Two were on the floor, one speaking, and the other in the chair. What a waste of time it would have been for 100 senators to sit there six or seven hours each day listening to a repetition of the same arguments for weeks on end.

But you'll recall when the crucial vote came every senator was present, including one from a sick bed.

"OBSERVER"

O Tempora!

Oh, my. How fashions, and females, have changed. It is now more than sixty years since the evening I boarded my usual 6:05 train out of the Charing Cross en route to the Kentish suburb where I lived and, sinking into the comfortably upholstered seat, picked up a newspaper left by an earlier passenger. It was a tabloid which indulged in what was in those days considered to be risque stuff. Here is a sample of what that issue contained:

"At dainty ankles men will peep
Wherever there a chance is
But ladies naturally keep
At bay all such advances.
'Tis well, perhaps, as sweetest things
Are mostly under cover,
And if their modesty took wings
What man would be a lover?

"At dainty ankles men will peep." To what depths of depravity did the men of that day sink? The eyes of the men of this era are steadfastly fixed on higher things — much higher. Hemlines are higher, the sky, apparently, is the limit— that is, assuming that a skirt is actually worn. Sometimes the doubt arises in one's mind as to whether some of our girls and women are, actually, fully dressed, even according to modern fashions, or if they hadn't, in a fit of absentmindedness, forgotten to put on a skirt. The females of our species seem to be engaged in a reckless fashion-race in which each is determined to "outstrip" the rest.

In Queen Victoria's time, that austere and somewhat autocratic monarch frowned on risque stories and "sketchy" attire and one wonders as to what would be her reaction if she could suddenly awake on a hot summer afternoon in 1964. She would, doubtless, "swoon"— and not because of the heat. Then we would have to hunt up the "smelling-salts," unlace too-tightly-laced corsets and — but those are things of which women today are as ignorant as they appear to be concerning sensitiveness, discreetness and, above all, modesty — attributes which, on the surface at least, graced the women of seventy or eighty years ago. Where do we go from here?

Yo-ho-ho and a Runner of Rum

Stott

FROM the picture window of the room where we dined in style the other evening, lightly riffled water stretched out to Fiddle Reef, gleamed in an unaccountable slick from there to Chain Island and dimpled again in deeper blue on the reach to Discovery and the Chatham Islands. Mount Baker, which I share with several thousands as "favorite peak," shaded from its pink-tinged crest down to the light blues of fingering valley flutes in the distant background, changing hues under a lowering sun.

It is a picture that once caught the fancy of Rudyard Kipling on a visit here and no doubt drew interest from a long-time Prince of Wales as he cracked a crock with John Virtue when Victoria and Oak Bay were much younger.

The view is one Jack Pickersgill used to count a major attraction when he came here to visit relatives and, I guess, stands among the scenic superlatives of this world.

For me it has an added personal appeal. This is the water and these are the islands that lent pleasure and adventure to some of the incidents of childhood.

* * *

We, in our district, were fortunate at that time in having as a local character an irascible older gentleman called James Sterling Smith—who, incidentally, built the so-called "haunted house" on Chinese Point.

He owned a long, square-transomed lifeboat powered with a gleaming heavy-duty engine and painted blue. Into it, on a Sunday, he would load the kids of the neighborhood, a crank gramophone with a horn amplifier and empty gunnysacks.

With the gramophone playing "Over the Waves," we'd chug out from Chinese Point and set course for Discovery, flying a white ensign from a staff at the stern.

The run would usually bring us to a fine shingle beach on Discovery which, by local custom, we called Moonlight Bay. Occasionally we'd aim closer to Ten Mile Point, round the inside channel and come into what, also by local custom, we called Moonshine Bay, on Strongtide Island. Here, in the thirsty twenties, the speedboats of American rum-runners took delivery of hard liquor and sacks of beer shipped out from Victoria on slow but sturdy fishboats. And from Strongtide they made the run for the American shore.

* * *

In their day, the rum-runners were the sleekest, fastest speedboats in these parts—beautifully built, slender craft, sometimes planked in inch mahogany, sometimes of heavier construction, double-engined and capable, we thought, of going up to 40 miles an hour. That was moving.

Since the revenue cutters hung off the island frequently, our arrival, complete with white ensign flying on a long-boat of obvious navy lines, caused quite a stir among the rum-runners. It took quick diplomacy and warnings from the man who ran the transshipment base to ease their nervousness and avert any trouble.

We were his friends. I played with his boys before he took the job, and our visit was purely social.

We admired the boats, talked with the young men who ran them—Robin Hood types to us, figures out of buccaneering adventure.

It was a colorful, if brief, epoch in Victoria's history—the rum-running days. And it ended with the tragedy of hijacking, which also ended with the conviction of Sowash and Baker in a famous trial in the Bastion Street Courthouse.

After our meetings, we in the Smith boat used to be landed to gather bark in the gunnysacks we had brought along. That was the way we paid our freight.

Whenever I look over that stretch of water now, the memories of that time come crowding, an era of fast boats, with gallant youngsters driving them—and our sympathies were always against the revenue people, which was natural enough, even if it was bad citizenship.

Surgeons Face Restrictions

Alvarez

Today, in well-run hospitals there is a "tissue committee," presided over by laymen. If when a surgeon removes an ovary, a womb, or an appendix, and the expert pathologist of the hospital frequently reports that it was normal, the surgeon is "called up on the carpet," and if he does not immediately reform, he is denied the right to operate in that institution.

A wise governing committee may object also if a would-be surgeon regularly takes five or six hours to perform an operation which his well-trained associates perform in an hour or less. Recently I saw a woman who told me that her family doctor spent six hours trying to do an operation for her supposed duodenal ulcer. Naturally, she ended up in shock and soon had a pneumonia. If I had performed that operation so slowly, I would never have wanted to perform another one.

A hospital committee may decide what type of operations a certain man will be permitted to perform. Actually, in no well-run hospital would I be permitted to operate. And yet, strange to say, my original diploma from college and my licences to practise in several states certify that I am a "physician and surgeon." However, I am not a surgeon: I am an internist. If I were the only doctor, for instance, a passenger on a freighter, and a sailor were to get an attack of acute appendicitis or an intestinal obstruction, I would operate and I would be justified. But if I were to try to remove an appendix for a patient in a big city hospital I would be "bad," because I haven't done any surgery for years, and I never had special training in this field of medicine.

Often today a problem arises. For instance, a chum of mine, who for years had been an excellent general practitioner, went to the great Children's Centre in Boston, and studied until he qualified as an able pediatrician. When he started practise in a big hospital in California, he had much argument with the "powers that were" who at first denied him the right to perform tonsillectomies and appendectomies on his small patients. Eventually, when he convinced them for that years he had been performing operations expertly and successfully, they gave him permission to go ahead, but not to operate in the abdomen or the chest or on bones and joints.

This question of what types of operation a non-surgeon may perform in a hospital is a moot one. So far as I can learn, in most places a surgeon is allowed to work only in that field or in those fields in which he has been well trained.

HOME GARDEN

A Word to the Skeptics

Hilda

"What summer flowering shrubs?" queried a skeptical gardener when we spoke about colorful pictures in July and August by making use of some summer flowering shrubs without the addition of bedding annuals.

So here is a partial list of shrubs to be found in bloom in this general Victoria area at some time during the months of July and August.

A few overlap from June, a few continue from June to September, others start in August and go into September.

Also, it should be remembered that a small, newly planted shrub will not have the extended blooming season of a well-established plant bearing numerous branches and a succession of ripening flowering shoots.

Buddleia variabilis and varieties (Butterfly-bush) in blue, pink, white or purple will bloom by end of July. Carpenteria californica, large white single rose-like blooms now; a six-foot shrub for a somewhat sheltered garden.

FLOWERING NOW

The pink ceanothus "Marie Simon" flowering now. Escallonias in several varieties, pink and white or red are spread over three months.

Hardy fuchsias are in full bloom in some gardens. In others the buds are present.

Hydrangea arborescens with creamy white flattish heads of flowers and pale green leaves makes a softening note among stiff everygreens. H. paniculate will flower before the end of August.

Lavender in mauve, pink and purple are fragrant in July. Leycesteria formosa, the Flowering Nutmeg goes on producing new blossoms for weeks.

SUMMER-LONG

White and yellow shades of shrubby potentillas are summer-long bloomers, as are also many of the pink or white cistuses. Both like full sun and a rather dry location.

Spanish - broom, Spartium junceum, continuous from early June to frost; and rockery brooms among the genistas will bloom in August.

Summer tamarix, T. pentandra and "Pink Cascade" will have pink clouds in August. And giants of the season are the yuccas, now with hundreds of fragrant bells to each massive spike.

POLICY DEVELOPS

Canada Shuns Nuclear Role

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The trend away from nuclear weapons and toward a complete return to a solely conventional military role for Canada became more pronounced here Tuesday.

Associate Defence Minister Cardin announced that the militia will all but abandon its national survival role, predicated on a nuclear attack on this country, and revert to its former task of providing field support for the regular army.

He said the militia's main job again will be to form three brigades comprising some 18,000 men to train a citizen army in event of emergency.

No such policy had even been hinted at here in a decade because it was felt that only regular forces would have time to get into action in a nuclear emergency.

The implication of Mr. Cardin's statement is that the government considers the possibility of nuclear war as remote and a conventional role for the armed forces as more likely.

Other indications of this trend:

—External Affairs Minister Martin said last week the number of United Nations peacekeeping jobs for Canada is bound to increase.

COULD USE CHEAP PLANE

—Defence department officials said the RCAF could use a cheap ground support plane like the Second World War Mustang or Typhoon, but that nobody was making anything like this any more.

—Informants said Canada will tell NATO in 1966 that it wants to get out of the nuclear bombing role in Europe, even though the RCAF CF-104 low-level jet bomber could still be used for another five years.

—Conventional armament now being considered for the CF-104 includes a 20-millimetre cannon, with which Spitfires, Mosquitos and other RCAF planes were armed during the Second World War.

—Selection of conventional army weapons and equipment has been given No. 1 priority by the new combined defence staff.

—Expenditures on RCAF Air Defence Command, designed to cope with Soviet nuclear bombers, have been reduced to $138,000,000 this year from $171,000,000 in 1960.

—Officials said the nuclear-tipped Bomarc anti - aircraft missile is being retained mainly because it has been paid for.

—The only new defence program so far announced by the government has been a $55,000,000 purchase of piston-engined transport planes to provide army airlift to such theatres as Cyprus.

—After 15 months in office, the Liberals have provided nuclear warheads for the Bomarc and CF-104 but not for the Voodoo jet interceptor or Honest John artillery rocket as yet.

Greece Alters Story On Troop Landings

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government admitted today that Greek army officers had gone to Cyprus, but said they were considered deserters and would face charges in military courts.

Greek Defence Minister Peter Garoufalias said not more than 100 officers were involved, despite reports from the UN peace force Saturday that some 3,000 Greeks had landed on the island in support of Greek Cypriots.

Cypriot Interior Minister Polycarpos Georgadjis earlier denied the UN report. He said the arrivals were 2,300 Greek-Cypriot university students returning home for the summer from Greece and 500 Greek-Cypriots who deserted from the Greek army.

A UN spokesman also said 500 Turkish troops put ashore on the war-torn island to back the Turkish-Cypriot minority.

Turkey denied the report but Greek-Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios delivered a stiff protest note to Turkey Tuesday over the reported landing.

IN CABINET REVIEW

Convicted Killer Gets Every Consideration

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal government procedures in dealing with condemned murderers have evolved in the last decade into a highly complex system resulting in every possible benefit of the doubt going in favor of the convicted slayer.

As the royal prerogative of mercy now is exercised, cabinet ministers and officials involved in making the final review of capital cases before the hangman's trap is sprung are convinced there are few if any refinements that can be made.

These views were obtained in a series of interviews with solicitors-general, past and present, and others whose duty it is to prepare for the final review by cabinet.

J. Watson Macnaught, solicitor-general in the present government, said much more than the transcripts of court proceedings in each case is studied.

"It has been my desire to get as complete factual reports on the life history of a man as it is possible to get," he said.

When someone accused of capital murder is found guilty, regardless of whether there is a recommendation of mercy from the jury, machinery is set in motion for a careful review of the case.

It is the presiding judge's obligation to sentence the accused to death by hanging, and to notify the justice department immediately. The review of the case starts then, whether or not the case is appealed and the conviction upset or a new trial ordered.

STUDY POLICE REPORTS

In addition to the transcript of the evidence, the case file includes confidential police reports on the accused, the victim and the witnesses. Character studies are compiled and psychiatrists are assigned not only to the convict but to review all the evidence and confidential reports.

These reports freuently contain material which could not be introduced in the trial, such as a statement made by the accused to police at the time of arrest which may have been ruled inadmissible on some technical ground.

Leon Balcer (PC—Trois Rivieres), solicitor-general for more than two years in the former Conservative government, said: "We always made a very thorough examination. We surveyed every piece of evidence and information, and matters that could not be brought into court."

The review is made personally by the solicitor-general, assisted by officials of the justice department who are expert in criminal law. All the facts and extenuating circumstances, if any, are included in a report circulated by the solicitor-general to his cabinet colleagues several days before the case reaches a cabinet meeting for its final decision

A capital case is always the first on the cabinet's agenda for the day. In recent years, discussion has been both general and detailed, with such pictures as the scene of the crime and related objects or persons circulated.

Mr. Balcer said he believes the system ensures that justice prevails. Any extenuating circumstances such as a seriously troubled upbringing or inflamed passion which might provoke a person to violent homicide is carefully considered.

"Very often, I think, the justice of the case prevails in the cabinet's final judgment over the legal exactness which might prevail in a court of law," Mr. Balcer said.

Another cabinet minister recalled that 20 years or so ago cabinet decisions were often taken quickly and simply on the oral report of the solicitor-general of the day.

In fact, there is a well-known story on Parliament Hill of one particularly taciturn minister who objected to cabinet being troubled and having to spend its time on such cases. Whenever one arose, it was his custom to demonstrate his feelings by gathering up his papers, declaring "hang the bastard," and stomping from the cabinet room.

Solicitors - general find the capital cases of excruciating burden — deciding finally whether a man or woman should hang. One with lengthy experience in the portfolio, which has few if any other duties, said he is certain all solicitors-general ultimately come to believe in total abolition of capital punishment.

Their solace is in knowing that every possible course is taken to ensure both through the courts and through the personal review of cabinet colleagues, when broader considerations than the letter of the law prevail, that a person convicted of murder is guilty beyond any possible doubt, before he is hanged.

BONNER SURE OF CHARTER FOR BANK

The B.C. government is fully confident that Ottawa will grant a charter to the new Bank of British, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Tuesday.

"We are not contemplating any lack of success," he said.

"I don't think British Columbians will be content to ignore the organization of important service industry like banks," he said.

Mr. Bonner said he regards a bank as important as a pulp mill or a new steel industry for B.C.'s economy.

He said the provincial government intends to pursue its bank idea with as much vigor as any other project it had initiated in its term of office.

'Can't Turn Indians Into Whites'

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—The president of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation says the Indian has been deprived of his traditional means of livelihood, his spirit is on the wane and he is being "wiped out by assimilation."

C. M. Bedford, in a report to the group's annual convention here Tuesday, said everyone wants to help the Indian become "a white man."

Mr. Bedford, a psychology professor at the University of Saskatchewan, reminded delegates to the six-day conference that members last year had adopted a policy "to bring about opportunities for Indian children and youths equal to those of other Canadaian children and youths."

Head-On Collision Kills Ladysmith Longshoreman

ISLAND DIGEST

ALBERNI — A Ladysmith man died instantly Tuesday when the car he was travelling in collided head-on with another vehicle, and plunged down a 20-foot bank into a power pole.

He is Leopold Joseph Sabourin, 59, of 1179 Kitchener Street.

He was one of three passengers in the car driven by Peter Dubinsky, of 9833 Willow Street, Chemainus.

All four were longshoremen travelling to Port Alberni to load a ship.

The accident occurred on Highway 4, four miles east of here.

MINOR INJURIES

Ray Mrus and Fred Lafleur, the other passengers, were taken to West Coast General Hospital where they were treated for minor injuries.

The driver of the other car, Harold Joseph Tetrault, of Alberni, and his daughter were uninjured. But his wife was checked at hospital after complaining of a sore back.

On July 21 last year, Mr. Sabourin's daughter, Mrs. Estelle Halliday, and his two granddaughters died when fire swept their Ladysmith home.

* * *

NANAIMO — More than 180 deep-sea freighters called in this port to load or discharge cargo in the first six months of 1964, harbormaster John Dunham reported Tuesday.

"It appears 1964 will be the biggest year in the port's history," he said.

* * *

COURTENAY — Nanaimo, Courtenay and Campbell River school board members will meet next week to discuss the often-proposed community college.

The Nanaimo board has hired a UBC staff member to survey the Island from Cowichan to Qualicum, including Port Alberni, to see if a college would be feasible.

A population of 100,000 is the usual minimum for a college and the meeting will decide if north Island should be included in the survey.

COURTENAY—A grievance by school district janitors will be put before a provincial Labor Relations Board officer.

Juicy Case At Duncan

DUNCAN — "She made some remarks about our children," the accused told Magistrate D. K. McAdam in court Tuesday — when he pleaded guilty to two charges of assaulting his wife.

William J. A. Ashlee, of Duncan, admitted pouring tomato juice over his wife's head on July 6, and to hitting her once with his fist on July 11.

Ashlee was fined a total of $100, and was ordered to post a $500 bond to keep the peace for one year.

3½ MILES UNDEVELOPED

Gov't Urged to Buy All of Island View

SAANICHTON—A Central Saanich councillor wants the B.C. government to buy the whole of the four-mile Island View Beach for development into a park.

"This is the last undeveloped waterfrontage on south Vancouver Island, Coun. Charles Mollard told a council meeting Tuesday. "It's a pity if it is left to go residential."

ONLY A PORTION

The government recently bought from the Royal Trust Company a small portion of the beach property. The deal involved 62 acres of land with 2,100 feet of waterfrontage.

There are still about 3½ miles of undeveloped privately owned waterfront property.

Island View Beach is situated at the end of Telegraph Road which runs from Patricia Bay Highway, about 12 miles from Victoria.

1,000 ON SUNDAY

If the government bought the rest of the property it would mean the waterfront from Cordova Spit to Cowichan Head would be accessible to the general public, Coun. Mollard pointed out.

"Where else is there a beach like this in the capital region?" he said.

Coun. Ray Lamont said more than 1,000 persons visited the beach last Sunday.

Council took no action.

FORMER assistant division manager of B.C. Forest Products Ltd., for bleached kraft market pulp and newsprint at Crofton, Edward G. Wilson, has been appointed manager of a new $30,000,000 mill at Samoa, California. Aged 28, he lived at Cobble Hill before taking up his new job with the Georgia-Pacific Corporation.

Compulsory VD Tests Suggested by Cleric

NANAIMO (CP)—A Presbyterian minister said Tuesday persons getting married should be required to prove they are free of venereal disease.

Commenting on reports that a group of city physicians, led by Dr. J. R. Howey, were concerned over teen-age promiscuity, Rev. R. B. Cochrane said he would give his full support.

"I'll stand right behind Dr. Howey," he said. "He's got the kind of guts needed in this community.

"I feel everyone getting married should have to present to the minister a doctor's certificate stating the person doesn't have VD," Mr. Cochrane said.

In an address to a service club, Dr. Howey noted the lack of shame of girls who are pregnant out of wedlock, Mr. Cochrane said.

"I also come across this attitude on the part of the parents," the minister said.

MORE SUPPORT

Two other Nanaimo clergymen, Rev. Chris Jack, United Church, and Rev. W. C. Irvine, Pentecostal, also endorsed the doctor's cause.

Although the blame lies mostly with the parents, Mr. Jack said, "the church is at fault in that it hasn't been outspoken enough."

Mr. Irvine said children should not be allowed to go steady until they reach the age of 18, and the marriage age should be set at 21.

"This business of going out necking at 14 is perfectly disgraceful," Rev. Irvine said. "These children don't know what it is all about."

Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. G. Baker, Roman Catholic, declined comment, saying:

"I am too involved in other things to comment on this issue at this time."

PT. ALBERNI YOUTH KILLED

FAIREY HILL, Sask. (CP) —Michael Connelley, 16, of Port Alberni, B.C., was killed Tuesday when a tractor he was driving overturned near this community 24 miles north of Regina. The accident occurred on a ranch owned by his grandfather.

Circus Friday

NANAIMO—A circus will be staged in Bowen Park at 2 p.m. on Friday by children from four local playgrounds.

Included in the events will be a costume parade.

'SHOULD BE MORE'

Campbell Backs Alberni Merger

Amalgamation of the Albernis got full support Tuesday from Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

"I couldn't agree more," he told the mayors of the twin cities of Alberni and Port Alberni.

"It should happen in more places," Mr. Campbell said.

The cities are studying a complete merger and have set a ratepayers' vote on the issue for Oct. 17.

Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni and Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni met him Tuesday to discuss the idea.

Mr. Campbell said it was the first major voluntary bid for amalgamation that had been made in recent years in B.C.

He said the government would approve the vote being held under the Municipal Act.

ENCOURAGED

Mr. Campbell admitted that discussions with the cities have been under way for several months "with some encouragement from us."

"Encouragement is going on in several other areas, too."

But he declined to name them, except to say this does not include his plan for Greater Victoria.

Mr. Campbell said the March 27 tidal wave disaster may have finally brought the Albernis together.

"It certainly united them in one fell swoop," he said.

The merger would involve amendment of the letters patent which currently establish two separate cities. This would be approved by the cabinet, he indicated.

It will be up to the cities themselves to set up a new government and amalgamate financial affairs and services.

HOSPITAL PROBE ORDERED

PORT ALBERNI — City council will investigate a claim of "unsanitary and deplorable" conditions in West Coast General Hospital.

The claim was made in a citizens' petition signed by 2,450 persons.

The petition, urging expansion of the hospital, was presented to council on Monday.

A protest at "the acute shortage of nursing staff" was also made.

Council made it clear, that while it supports expansion plans, it cannot endorse the petition without first investigating the charges.

CNR to Study New Rail Line To the Arctic

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—The CNR will conduct a feasibility study of a possible railway link to a huge Arctic iron deposit with tidewater, a Vancouver newspaper said Tuesday.

First word of the study came in Edmonton when Federal Resources Minister Arthur Laing told a service club his department is interested in the project.

Laing said a study will be sponsored jointly by the federal government and Crest Explorations Limited, a wholly owned subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of California.

Laing made it clear he was not announcing a railway would be built or even that Crest's Snake River deposit would ever be put into production.

The huge find embraces an estimated 22 billion tons of ore which rates 45 per cent or better.

It is located 1,000 miles north of Edmonton.

A mill producing 10 million tons of ore annually would have a daily capacity of 30,000 tons. On this basis the present ore body would last for 2,000 years.

Laing claimed the body was the largest in the world, but federal mining officials would only term it one of the largest.

Results of the preliminary rail route study were expected to be completed by Christmas, the minister said.

Federal mine officials said the Snake River property has no immediate potential because it contains low-grade ore and because world iron ore markets are glutted.

The current feasibility study of the rail route is the most extensive conducted so far, but not the first.

70 New Beds For Retarded At Tranquille

B.C.'s mental health service Tuesday got the go-ahead to open up 70 new beds for retarded persons.

A cabinet order authorized the hiring of 43 new staff for the service.

Thirty-five of them will go to Tranquille, near Kamloops, where the government has converted a tuberculosis hospital into an institution for the retarded.

A mental service spokesman said 70 new beds will be made available at Tranquille this summer when minor alterations are completed.

Seventy patients will be moved there from Woodlands School for the Retarded in New Westminster, he said.

LONG WAITING LIST

This will in turn free beds in Woodlands for people on a waiting list which has been described as several hundred long.

Meanwhile, a complete study of the waiting list is still under way by the health department, he added.

The cabinet approved hiring of 21 psychiatric nurses for Tranquille; a doctor, a social worker, two instructors as well as clerks and maintenance men.

Woodlands will get two new social workers, two occupational therapists and two clerks.

Another two social workers will be hired for Essondale mental hospital.

Russia Plans Giant Grain Stockpile

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Monday Russia will build a giant grain stockpile to guard against "accidents."

The premier told the opening joint session of the Supreme Soviet the stockpile will be equivalent to at least half or even the whole of the Soviet Union's annual grain needs.

Khrushchev did not say when the stockpiling will begin or where the grain will be obtained.

Russia was reported last May to be thinking of buying 500,000 tons of wheat annually from Canada.

After a severe crop failure in the Soviet Union last year the Russians bought $500,000,000 of wheat and flour from Canada and other large amounts from the United States.

Khrushchev said today there are good prospects for the year's Soviet harvest, despite a late spring.

Editor Apologizes

BONN (AP)—A West German foreign ministry spokesman said Tuesday an editor of the Soviet government daily Izvestia has apologized orally for calling President Heinrich Luebke a Nazi police agent.

Alexei Adzhubei, Izvestia's chief editor, who is Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law, will visit West Germany next week.

9 Indicted In Drug Secret Theft

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted nine men Tuesday in the alleged theft and sale abroad of multi-million-dollar U.S. drug-making secrets.

The case involves wonder drugs and the U.S. firms' fight against Italian antibiotics coming into the U.S. market.

The indictment broadens charges contained in an earlier bill returned in October, 1962, and adds more defendants.

It charges that cultures and secret formulas were stolen from Lederle Laboratories at Pearl River, N.Y., between 1959 and 1961 and shipped to Italy. Lederle was reported to have spent $16,000,000 on research and development of the cultures since 1945.

One defendant, chemist and microbiologist Martin Fox, 43, has admitted in a State Supreme Court affidavit in a damage suit arising from the same case that he stole the secret material and sold it through an American living in Rome, Maurice Rosenblatt.

Rosenblatt was one of the two new defendants named in Tuesday's indictment. The other is Seymour Salb, 48, a partner in Coronet Laboratories in East Paterson, N.J.

'Extend Home Builder Grant Or Drop It'

OTTAWA (UPI)—A delegation of Montreal home builders asked the federal government yesterday either to ditch entirely its $500 winter house-buying bonus or give it to buyers 10 months a year instead of four.

The delegation, headed by Albert Gagnon, president of the Montreal District Home Builders' Association, met Labor Minister Allan MacEeachen for more than an hour and told him the federal winter bonus was doing more harm than good.

MacEeachen said he would study their suggestions and send a personal representative to Montreal to look at the situation where 17 per cent of the houses built in Canada go up.

A brief presented by the association to MacEachen said that any benefit of the bonus was offset by the government's tax on building materials. It also said that it cost builders more than $500 extra to erect a home in Montreal in winter and it wasn't fair to give the same bonus for winter work done in Montreal as in warmer parts of the country such as Vancouver.

38 DEALS WITH $15 MILLION TOTAL OUTLAY

How to Buy the Centre of Toronto—Secretly

TORONTO (CP)—The story of how two Toronto real estate men master-minded the purchase of land for the Toronto-Dominion Bank centre in the heart of the city without tipping their principals' hand would make many mystery novels dull reading in comparison.

Between the early part of 1962 and the fall of 1963 fewer than a dozen persons in Canada knew that the Toronto-Dominion Bank and Cemp Investments Limited were interested in a block bounded by King, Bay, Wellington and York streets as the site of their $125,000,000 centre.

The centre will be a huge real estate complex which is planned to include two office buildings Construction has started and is to be completed by 1967.

Brian Magee and Gordon Gray of A. E. LePage Limited arranged the land assembly.

If word of the project leaked out prices would have skyrocketed, so Mr. Magee and Mr. Gray used numerous subterfuges—including changing lawyers, getting other real estate companies to bid against them and, in one case, renovating a building they knew would be torn down—to complete the 38 deals involving a total of $15,000,000.

"If word had got out, any one of a hundred people could have held us up for millions of dollars," Mr. Magee said in an interview. "In land assembly, close doesn't count. If someone refused to sell, there goes your project just like that."

REPORT ONE SLIP-UP

The only slip-up came when the principals released the story of the project to the press after the agents had come to an agreement with one owner, but before they had his signature. The owner walked away $250,000 richer.

Occasionally an owner banked with the Toronto - Dominion Bank, bringing about the bizarre turn of events in which a bank manager would tell him to hold out for more money.

The big ace in the hole was that the agents were working for corporations that could afford to pay cash for their purchases.

"An option is a dead giveaway that an assembly is taking place," Mr. Magee said. "We paid cash, not only because we had it, but because we knew that the property we were buying could be resold at the same price or better if the over-all project fell through."

Prices paid varied from $19 a square foot to $350

Once the purchase had been made the agents had to persuade as many as 100 tenants to give up their leases in a building.

"There were endless numbers of people in a little $50-a-month offices on Wellington Street, Mr. Gray recalled. "Any one of them could have held up the entire project. They could have demanded cash and retired for life. None of them did. Our secret stayed secret."

MARKET SUMMARIES

On the Up-Trend Market Remains

The stock market continued its rising trend at Toronto with speculative activity brightening.

Speculative activity also increased at Montreal as industrials gained narrowly and a slight rise at New York later vanished.

AT TORONTO Windfall gained 50 cents at $4.25 on volume of over 384,000 shares while Leitch rose 35 cents to $5.30.

Glenn Uranium, with property in the Timmins area, dropped 11 cents to 43 cents. Company president P. C. A. Giardine said today the firm had not encountered any sulphides or mineralization of its land. The stock rose from 27 to 85 cents within 20 minutes yesterday on rumors.

Other speculative gains saw United Canso rise 32 cents to $2.23.

Liquors, foods, utilities and banks paced industrials. Montreal and Toronto - Dominion rose ⅛ each among banks, while Distillers-Seagram and Molson A gained ¼ among liquors. Molson B rose ½.

Investors Syndicate A gained 1¼ to 69, a new high, after announcement of a proposed five-for-one stock split. Federal grain gained $3 to $93 in light trading.

AT MONTREAL B.C. Forest and DuPont were up ½ each. Dofasco ¼, and CPR, Dominion Bridge and Noranda ⅛ each.

Hawker Siddeley declined ¼ and Consolidated Paper, Home Oil B and Domtar ⅛ each.

In speculative mines, Fano and White Star lost two cents each, also one cent, and Porcupine Prime ½ cent. Mistango River, Opemiska Exploration and Copperstream added one cent each.

AT NEW YORK the market has given given up ground in the last two sessions following Friday's rise to historic peaks.

FMC Corp. was a leading contender for the top of the most active list, mainly on a 48,000 share block. Other active issues included RCA, up around ½ and Occidental Petroleum, ahead more than one.

Among Canadian issues traded Canadian Pacific gained ⅜, International Nickel and Walker Gooderham, Distillers Seagrams ½ and Dome Mines ¼. Aluminum Ltd. lost ⅜ and Granby Mining ⅛.

AT LONDON the general upward trend was maintained in London stock markets today. The pace was slower and mail delays kept business light. Gilts improved in places.

U.S. dollar stocks eased afresh but Canadians made headway with Trans Canada Pipe and Algoma prominent.

Canadian banks were firm but home issues were easier where changed.

AT VANCOUVER trading was moderate. Bethlehem Copper was down at $6.55 while Crown Silver was up at .15½. National Ex. climbed to .26 and Western Mines to $4.60. Forest was up at $32⅝ and Interior Brew at $8.

GRAIN PRICES

69 PER CENT INTEREST PAID ON SMALL LOAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Ingram, of Hamilton, manager of the Credit Union National Association, told a parliamentary committee today that a Canadian loan company recently charged an interest rate of 68.8 per cent on a loan of $124.50.

Mr. Ingram made the statement to the special joint Commons-Senate committee on consumer credit after presenting a brief urging legislation to protect Canadians from loan sharks.

He tabled a photostat copy of a contract between Traders Finance Corporation Limited and an individual he did not name.

All-Out Fight Assured For Saanich Reeveship

By LESLIE MILLIN

A no-holds-barred byelection is shaping up for Saanich, even though no date has been announced yet.

Prompted by Reeve Stanley Murphy's announced — but so far undelivered — resignation to take up a teaching job in Africa, the election will most likely be held in September.

And since Coun. Hugh Curtis has declared his candidacy for reeve, his job will presumably be up for grabs at the same time.

Definite candidates for reeve are Coun. Curtis and Saanich farmer Ed Lum.

Possibles are veteran councillor and former Reeve Joseph Casey, and Coun. Harold Todd.

Going after the councillor's job — or jobs, if any other councillor decides definitely to run for reeve — are retired contractor William Campbell, Lt.-Cdr. Harry Shergold, and Victoria fireman Edward Ball.

BITTER FIGHT

For the reeveship, the fight is likely to be bitter.

Both Coun. Curtis and Mr. Lum have shown up well at the polls in the past.

Coun. Curtis topped the balloting in 1961 and 1963 council elections.

Mr. Lum, a surprise candidate against Reeve Murphy last December, quadrupled the surprise by leading almost all the way to lose by only 184 votes of the 5,756 cast.

Both are young married businessmen with political party affiliations and strong views about Saanich's future.

Both have indicated they will pull no punches in the election campaign.

Working against Curtis would be his pro-amalgamation affiliation. The issue has been vehemently rejected by Saanich voters.

FULL-TIME

Working for Lum would be his promise to make the reeveship a full-time job, and his Saanich-first anti-amalgamation stand.

At least one other candidate—either Coun. Casey or Coun. Todd—will likely enter the race as a representative of the conservative faction on council.

Only one of the three candidates for council has tried before.

William Campbell ran for council in December, and finished just out of the money, 308 votes behind Gregory Cook.

He has attended the public portions of council meetings steadily since, and would have the backing of the Saanich Information Committee, a Saanich advisory planning commission.

He favors the joint services board proposal, a plan for a Saanich capital budget program that would involve heavy borrowing, and would press for control of both police and fire departments by a joint public safety commission.

He would have full time after retirement to devote to council work, he says.

Mr. Ball, active in community organizations, says his interest in running is to stress the need for aggressive thinking in council to match Saanich's expanding growth.

He has worked with juvenile clubs, senior soccer clubs, and the Army and Navy Veterans Association.

The issues in the byelections are likely to be loaded.

Probables include:

- Controversy over the recent fire chief appointment, which the Saanich firemen's union is still fighting;
- Disagreement on the proposed joint services board, considered by some to be tantamount to amalgamation.

APPOINTED president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is Herbert W. Hignett, 51, who has been vice-president since last October. Presidency has been vacant since the death of Stewart Bates May 21.

WORKS COMMITTEE BRIEFS

Fast Start for 'Little Butchart'

Approval of the Spencer Rock Garden project was recommended to Victoria council Tuesday with a few amendments by the city's zoning committee.

A public hearing last week revealed strong opposition to parking area arrangements and council held over final reading of a bylaw creating the necessary commercial garden zone for a committee review.

After hearing Alan Baker, QC, representing the protesting neighbors and Lloyd McKenzie, QC, representing the company, committee recommended:

Approval of the draft bylaw with an amendment requiring 10 per cent of the area involved reserved for parking as well as the previous requirement that 70 per cent of the area remain as "open site" with no buildings;

Drafting of a lease to the company for city property on the north side of the Smith's Hill development, in the Arthur Street section, to provide parking area with suitable screening.

The previous proposal involved leasing city property on the Topaz section south of the development.

A report on general parking requirements for commercial garden zones also was requested from city officials but Mayor R. B. Wilson said the agreement should enable a speedy start for operation of the "little Butchart garden."

Baseball, golf and soccer will be prohibited on small city "tot lots," parks committee decided.

Most of them, providing neighborhood playgrounds for little children, already are posted with signs prohibiting these sports but are not backed up by bylaw authority, city parks administrator W. H. Warren said.

He enumerated a long list of diamonds and fields for soccer and baseball now available outside of the tot lots.

Committee was told that official banning of the sports in the small tot lots would not result in police patrols aimed at catching youngsters playing ball.

City manager Dennis Young said the prohibition would be enforced only at Mr. Warren's discretion to prevent abuse and hazards to the smaller children using the lots.

A plea by Wilfred Sadler that the Babe Ruth and minor soccer leagues be permitted to use Royal Athletic Park free while selling admission tickets brought a recommendation for a minor change in policy.

The recently established policy of council was to provide the enclosed parks free to all amateur sports groups if no admission charge was made by them. Otherwise, the city charged 10 per cent of the gate collected plus $7 for the wages of a ticket seller and ticket taker.

Committee decided to knock off the $7 fee for all amateur "youth" groups even when they sell admission tickets.

A letter of thanks was approved for Cecil T. Jones who donated $100 for installation of four benches on city streets.

Fouts OK'd

Lions Cut 3 Rookies

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The British Columbia Lions released three players Tuesday. They were the first cuts made by the defending Western Football Conference champions.

Released were defensive halfback Jim Randle from Waterloo Lutheran College, guard Morley Rolhiser from the University of Washington and end Donnie Davis from Southern University in Baton Rouge, La.

The cuts came on the eve of the Lions' departure for their first exhibition game of the season Thursday against the Ottawa Rough Riders.

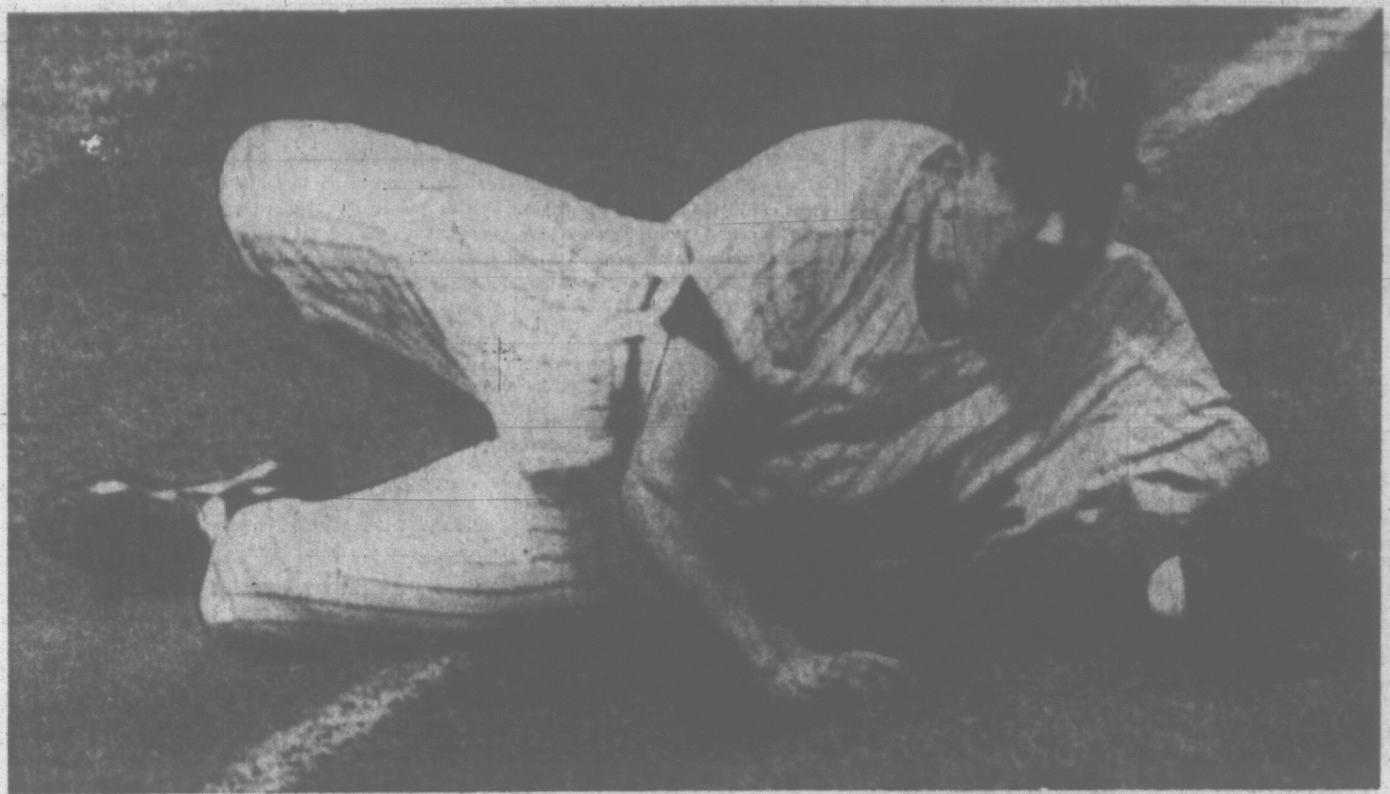
American Dick Fouts took steps Tuesday to become a Canadian, and the Lions in turn granted the 31-year-old player an extended contract with the club.

An application by Fouts before citizenship court was approved. It was to be sent to Ottawa for approval of the minister of citizenship and immigration.

Herb Capozzi, general manager of the Lions said it was hoped Fouts would be eligible to play as a Canadian in Lions' season opener Aug. 4.

Capozzi said that Fouts got a new contract in the deal, but it was "an extended contract" only.

"We did not rewrite it," Capozzi said.



'C'MON CLETE—GET OFF THE GRASS'

Trace of a smile on his lips shows satisfaction New York Yankee third-baseman Clete Boyer had after making diving catch of soft liner off bat of Baltimore Oriole pinch-hitter Boog Powell. Spectacular play killed chances of Orioles overcoming Yankee lead in ninth inning. Yanks won, 4-3, to climb within half a game of first. (AP Wirephoto.)

BELLS TOLL FOR PANCHO

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Rod Laver, the 26-year-old Australian with a wide variety of shots, won the U.S. professional tennis championship at Longwood Cricket Club.

Laver beat Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

Gonzales was making a comeback after having ruled the pros eight times.

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIPLEY POVICH

(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON—The Berlin wall will come down, the Communists will give up the fight in Viet Nam, Russia will desert Cuba, and America will be first on the moon. To bring about all this, a beginning must be made somewhere and a committee of important Americans has decided that the start should be in the Olympic Games.

All of the desired effects have not been promised, as such, but the importance of beating the Russians in the Olympics was set forth vigorously last week by a former under-secretary of war, Franklin W. Orth. He heads up the New Citizens' Committee that is alarmed by the widening Olympic gap.

Orth and his group have been reading into Russia's dedicated Olympic effort no less than a Kremlin plot. "It is part of Kremlin policy in the unrelenting battle to win men's minds," he stated. "The purpose is to prove to the rest of the world the invincibility of the Soviet Union and to create an image of world leadership and the decadence of the Western Powers."

But the Kremlin can be foiled, he indicates, if the United States puts its mind and heart and money to the Olympic effort in greater degree. The development of U.S. athletes who can run faster, jump higher and squirm better on gymnastic bars will redeem the capitalistic system, he postulates.

Fourteen Thousand Banks Will Serve

Nor are we too proud, Orth's committee says, to emulate the Russian emphasis on mass athletics if that is the route to recapturing American superiority. This, in the good old American way, calls for a survey, and six of this country's leading management engineering companies have volunteered their services.

No part of the Olympic program will be neglected, the group says, and this includes an assault on the gymnastic prowess of the Soviets.

"It takes in research on athletic equipment, coaching, training, organization and finance," Orth states.

"Men will be sent abroad to make studies and this information will be processed and analyzed." A sytem will be developed for establishing priorities and distributing facilities where needed in an over-all national program.

Money will be needed, of course, and what better way to combat the Soviets than to throw into the battle the most capitalistic of weapons, the American banks. Fourteen thousand banks have volunteered to send out with their monthly statements a request for contributions to the U.S. Olympic funds.

Russia Was a Track Nothing In '52

If some Americans choose to be alarmed by the progress of the Soviets in the Olympics and their claims of having won the last competition in over-all point totals, there is reason to be. The Soviets plunged into the international games 12 years ago and now are even challenging U.S. supremacy in track and field, a segment of the games in which Russia failed to win a single gold medal in 1952.

The Orth committee says its undertaking is being financed by private enterprise and that the government is being kept out of this, which is good. Nor is there any effort to have the government subsidize its athletes in the manner of Russia, where the living is easy for the heroes of sport.

The Soviets may not have invented the airplane or baseball or the other items it claims had their source in Mother Russia, but it did invent mass athletics. The U.S. is trying to catch up with a nation in which one of every seven persons belongs to a sports club and 3.5 million are active gymnasts.

Like Adding Bananas, Bikes, Monkeys

The new citizens' group is allied with the U.S. Olympic Committee, but there are indications it is a house divided, nevertheless. Bob Giegengack, the Yale track coach who will head the U.S. track and field team, is disturbed lest the new group's plan emulate Russia too closely and lead to subsidization of U.S. athletes.

"We shouldn't fight fire with fire," Giegengack is saying. "We don't have to give in to their way. We don't have to sacrifice our ideals. I'd rather stay home than go over there and win without honor."

Lyman Bingham, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, fears strong pressure from Congress to copy the Soviets' strict discipline and Spartan training methods.

The high necessity for beating Russia is lost on Giegengack, who re-emphasizes the Olympic spirit as "not a contest between nations but between individuals." Nor is he disturbed by Russia's claims of victory by grouping the points of all events.

"How can you add the points of a women's 100-metre dash to that of a basketball game or a water-polo tournament? It's like adding bananas, bicycles and monkeys and coming up with pennies."

Stampeders Outclass Fumbling Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP)—Calgary Stampeders romped to an easy 35-7 win over Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League pre-season exhibition game Tuesday night before 18,658 fans.

Led by first-string quarter-back Eagle Day and halfback Mike Davis with two touchdowns each, the Stampeders outclassed the Alouettes in every department, scoring in every quarter.

Other Calgary point-getters were halfback Jim Dillard with a touchdown and punter Larry Robinson with a single and three converts.

Marv Luster, Als' lanky flanker who was fumbling passes all over the field, recovered late in the second quarter to gather in a 23-yard touchdown pass from rookie George Bork. Gino Berretta's convert ended the Montreal scoring for the night.

Day, who did the lion's share of the quarterbacking for Calgary, completed 11 of 16 passes for 137 yards. But it was in ground rushing where the Stamps shone, outrushing the Als 253 yards to 58. The Als got 209 yards in the air, compared to 224 by the westerners.

Bork, the Illinois rookie being tested for the first time in professional football, polished off 15 of 20 passes for 155 yards and was easily the Montreal standout of the game.

The Stampeders, who seemed to be able to score almost at will, also used Jerry Keeling and punter Robinson at quarterback.

Davis got his touchdowns with some fancy running, his first from the 38, and his second from the 21.

George Dixon, Alouette all-star halfback, and Calgary's Henry Huth were banished from the game in the fourth quarter. They almost came to blows after Huth tackled Dixon who was running in the clear after recovering a Bork fumble.

Players from both teams staged a shoving contest and play was disrupted for five minutes. At one point, an enraged Dixon charged at husky Charley Brown who neatly flipped him over his shoulder in judo style.

The only interception was of a Bork pass, intended for Hugh Rohrschneider.

Lovell Coleman, who rushed for 71 yards on the ground, was a standout for Calgary, his 33-yard dash through five Alouette defenders in the third quarter set up one of Day's touchdowns.

DAVIS CUP

Aussie Novice 'Came to Play'

MONTREAL (CP)—Young Owen Davidson, the surprise novice on Australia's Davis Cup squad, said Tuesday he would have "paid my own way just to accompany this team.

"Even though I won't play, or probably won't, the experience of training under Harry Hopman is invaluable. He's the greatest tennis tactician of the last 30 years."

Davidson is the fourth member of the Aussie team, which includes top-ranked Roy Emerson, John Newcombe and Tony Roche. The team plays Canada this weekend in the first match of the North American zone elimination for the Davis Cup.

Emerson began practices with the team Tuesday. He ducked back to his hotel before anxious reporters could corner him and his teammates explained he was "beat" after winning the Wimbledon and Baastad championships in the last two weeks.

SURPRISE CHOICE

Selection of Davidson, 20-year-old Melbourne native, was a surprise in Australia but was an emergency step to fill a void caused by the suspension of four top stars. Since the reinstatement or pending forgiveness of the outlaws, Davidson's future in Davis Cup play is indefinite.

Hopman, non-playing Aussie captain, admits Davidson isn't ready for Davis Cup play but he had to name a team. He took a chance on Emerson by selecting him before his suspension was lifted but he couldn't risk leaving a second spot open on the four-man team in hopes that Frank Stolle would be reinstated.

Emerson and Stolle were suspended along with two others for competing in international tournaments before March 31. Stolle's case didn't come up for consideration in time for him to play against Canada but if the Aussies win here as expected he will join the team for the next round.

The Aussies and the Canadian team of Francois Godbout, Keith Carpenter, Reider Getz and Val Harit both worked out twice Tuesday. It was Emerson's first practice on the Mount Royal Tennis Club's synthetic clay courts but his teammates agreed his game was "sharper than ever."

The tie begins Friday with two singles matches. Emerson will play either Godbout or Carpenter.

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Fox Jr., 28, a London, Ont., professional, shot a two under par 70 Tuesday to head a field of 54 pros taking part in a preview to the Canadian match play golf championship.

A total of 219 players, including the 54 professionals, took part in the event at the Pine Valley course-site of the match play tournament.

LIONS' VIDEO DUCATS 'OPEN' ON THURSDAY

Season tickets for the closed circuit television hook-up of all B.C. Lions' home games go on open sale Thursday on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Today was the final day last year's season ticket holders could reserve seats.

First game of the series is an exhibition Monday between the defending Western Football Conference champion Lions and the Grey Cup winners, Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

All games will be shown at the Royal Theatre. Box office is at Eaton's.

All season ticket holders will be eligible for a draw on an expense-paid trip to Toronto and two tickets to the Grey Cup game.

Roughriders See Light

REGINA (CP)—Bob Light, a 23-year-old import quarterback from Pacific University in Seattle, made a strong bid for the starting job this year with Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Riders' annual inter-squad game Tuesday night.

One of the largest crowds ever to watch an inter-squad game at Taylor Field—11,300—saw the veteran-loaded White team whip the Greens 30-14.

Light piloted the Greens for the first quarter and the Whites for the final 45 minutes of the game.

Light threw one touchdown pass to glue-fingered veteran end Hugh Campbell in the third quarter. His passing was accurate and he ran well on roll-outs.

Bombers, Als Swap 4 Players

MONTREAL (UPI)—Montreal Alouettes and Winnipeg Blue Bombers today made a four-player trade in which Bomber quarterback Vernon Cole appeared to be the key player.

Winnipeg sent the West Texas State passer and dual citizen Doug Daignault to the Als in return for Canadians Marvin Lee, utility lineman, and defensive halfback Barrie Hansen.

Cole, 26, 6-1, 191 pounds, tried out with the Blue Bombers two years ago and did not make it. He has been in the U.S. Army since then. Cole also plays defensive halfback.

Daignault, 25, 6-2, 190 pounds, originally was signed out of Clemson University by the Ottawa Rough Riders and was traded last year to Winnipeg. He is primarily a defensive halfback.

Girls Go At It Saturday

The gals take over top billing on Saturday night's professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

The Fabulous Moolah goes against Dorothy Carter in the feature bout, billed as a world championship event. Midgets Diamond Lil and Darling Dagmar battle in the second main event.

In the male preliminaries, Don Leo Jonathan takes on Roy Heffernan, Buddy Austin goes against Al Costello, and Jerry and Bobby Christy tackle Gorilla Marconi and Roy Collins in a tag-team match.

Wrestling time is 8:15.

Tight Race? Ask Mantle

Down Goes Bubble Gum —And With It Orioles

UPI

Unemotional Mickey Mantle swallowed his bubble gum, which gives you a rough idea how sticky the situation has become for the American League lead.

The race is so tight that the New York Yankees can change it altogether by barging into first place today.

They moved within a half game of the lead with a 4-3 victory over the first place Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night and another win over the Orioles today would put the Yanks on top for the first time since June 22.

Mantle suffered his "accident" while scoring the winning run in the eighth inning. With the score tied 3-3, he singled to right field with one out, moved up on Roger Maris' infield out and came home on Tom Tresh's single off loser Stu Miller.

A moment before Mantle acfualy stepped on the plate, he was struck on the left side of his head by right fielder Gino Cimoli's throw.

He promptly put his hand to his mouth, alarming his teammates who thought his teeth might have been knocked loose.

"Nah," he quickly pacified them, "I only swallowed my gum."

It marked only the fifth game the Orioles lost this season by one run, having won 21 other such contests, and they died hard.

Bob Johnson set an American League record with his sixth straight pinch hit in the seventh, tying the score at 3-3, and lefty Al Downing had to strike out Norm Siebern with the bases full in the ninth to nail down his sixth victory in eight decisions.

The rival managers, naturally, saw the game differently.

"It seemed like old times," said Yogi Berra. "A big game, all the excitment and of course, the big thing was winning it."

'We'll Win Our Share'—Hank Bauer

Hank Bauer pointed out there were two more big ones coming up in the series and said, "if we play like this all the time we're going to win our share of games."

A crowd of 38,102 at Yankee Stadium saw Baltimore score first in the fourth on a walk and Sam Bowens' double, then yelled itself hoarse as the Yanks charged back with three runs in their half on three singles, two walks and an infield out off the starter Milt Pappas.

Cimoli's triple and a sacrifice fly gave the Orioles their second run in the fifth and they tied it in the seventh on two walks and Johnson's pinch single. Clete Boyer made a great defensive play in the ninth to stem a Baltimore rally.

The third place Chicago White Sox climbed within 1½ games of first place with a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox, Washington defeated Minnesota 4-3, Cleveland outlasted Kansas City 9-7, and the Detroit Tigers licked the Los Angeles Angels 4-3.

Southpaw Juan Pizarro won his 13th game for the White Sox although he needed help in the ninth from Hoyt Wilhelm. A pair of Red Sox errors enabled the White Sox to score the decisive two runs off loser Earl Wilson (9-4) in the third.

Claude Osteen of the Senators beat the Twins for the fifth straight time in his career without a loss although Harmon Killebrew helped Minnesota to an early 3-0 lead with his 32nd homer.

Leon Wagner, Tito Francona and Woodie Held each homered for the Indians, who still needed run-scoring singles by Held and Dick Howser in the ninth to put down the Athletics.

Bill (Mc) Cool But Reds Sizzling

Rookie Billy McCool, as calm and collected as the name implies, won't be able to vote for the president in November but would overlook that disappointment if he could only pitch in the world series in October.

He might just make it, too—along with all the rest of the surging Cincinnati Reds.

While the front-running Giants and Phillies both were taking it on the chin, the third place Reds closed to within 5½ games of the top by sweeping a twi-night twin bill from the Houston Colts 6-5 in 11 innings and 10-3.

Young McCool, a still growing six-foot-two southpaw from Lawrenceburg, Ind., had more reason to celebrate than anyone.

He spent his 20th birthday by registering his second major league victory for the Reds when he set down the Colts in order over the final two innings of the opener.

The scoreless stint lowered his earned run average to an eye-raising 1.61 and enabled him to enjoy a birthday cake especially prepared for the occasion.

McCool really is with the Reds on a "pass" as a first-year designated player. He had a 5-13 record with Tampa during the major part of last season, then finished with a 4-0 slate at San Diego. He trained with the Reds last spring and was brought north chiefly to soak up experience but is rapidly developing into the club's No. 1 reliever.

"He has pitched some mighty fine ball for us the past few weeks," says manager Fred Hutchinson. "I was even thinking of starting him but he's doing so well in relief that I wouldn't dare disturb him."

The Reds won the opener on Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch with the bases full in the 11th after John Bateman sent the game into extra innings with a two-run two-out double in the ninth.

Jim Maloney went the distance in the nightcap, hurling a six-hitter and striking out 10.

Milwaukee defeated San Francisco 8-7 but the Giants still retained their one-game lead when Pittsburgh handed Philadelphia its fifth loss in six games 4-3. St. Louis came from behind to overtake Los Angeles 8-7, and the Chicago Cubs also rallied late to beat the New York Mets 4-2.

Letter Did It

CANADA TO SEE LYNDEN AND LADY

NEW YORK (AP)—With approval from Mrs. Lyndon Johnson in Washington, Canadian harness racing will have a Lynden and Lady Bird Johnson in action in 1965.

It all started with the Lorne Johnston family of Dresden, Ont., but it ended in the White House—with permission granted, the Harness Racing Institute said Tuesday.

The Johnstons are harness horse breeders who incorporate their family name in their racing stable. They wanted to name a yearling colt and a filly Lynden and Lady Bird. Jim Bisset, secretary-registrar of the Canadian Standardbred Horse Society, turned down the request out of deference to the president and his wife.

Mrs. Lorne Johnston wrote to Mrs. Lyndon Johnson. She got a warm and friendly reply in a letter signed by Bess Abell, Mrs. Johnson's social secretary.

Delighted, Mrs. Johnson told Mrs. Johnston. Many thanks said Mrs. Johnston.

So Lynden and Lady Bird it is, with no explanation of the "e" for "o" in Lynden.

ENTERTAINERS ON HAND . . . . . . FOR HANDICAPPED CHILDREN'S DERBY

Anglers Will Be 'Bugged' on Sunday

Musical entertainment will be the keynote of the Handicapped Children's Derby festivities Sunday afternoon.

After the 3 p.m. windup of the Saanich Inlet fishfest, two musical groups will provide entertainment at Anchorage Boathouse while officials are tabulating results.

The "Bugs", a singing group made up of four sailors from HMCS Naden, is first on the program. The guitar and vocal group, made up of Bob Anderson, Bob Descoteau, Harv Parsons and Dick MacDonald, will entertain for half an hour.

After that, two members of the Silvertones, Johnny Bandet and Allan Gosse, will perform for a half-hour session on the accordion and drums.

At 4 p.m., derby winners will be announced, and the draw for the 14½-foot, completely-equipped outboard boat and trailer will be made. The boat is the derby consolation prize, and any ticket holder will be eligible to win it, whether he has fished or not.

Derby rules are simple:

Time limit is from 6 a.m. Sunday to 3 p.m. Patrol boats will be on hand to see any fish caught before or after those times are not entered in the derby.

Only one rod per person is allowed.

Only one fish can be entered on each derby ticket, but each fisherman may buy any number of tickets.

Any fish over three pounds may be entered.

Weigh-in stations are Holder's, Hall's, Anglers and Anchorage Boathouses.

Fish boxes will be set up at each weigh-in station so contestants will be able to donate their catch to the Queen Alexandra Solarium if they wish.

Derby prizes can be seen at Stan Williams Sports Shop, across from the post office on Government Street.

All proceeds from the derby, which is co-sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and the Victoria Times, will be donated to the Solarium, the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, and the Cerebral Palsy Association.

Jenny Hikes To Fast Win

DUBLIN (CP-Reuters)—Jennifer Wingerson, 21-year-old Canadian Olympic hopeful, won the 80-metre hurdles race at an international meet here Tuesday night in the best time of her career—10.9 seconds.

With a tremendous finish, the blonde secretary from Toronto defeated Pam Kilborn of Australia, the British Empire Games champion at the distance. Miss Kilborn also was clocked in 10.9 seconds, a time which gave her the first prize at Perth, Australia, in 1962.

The Canadian girl's victory surprised local track experts. Miss Wingerson's previous best in the event was 11 seconds.

Earlier Tuesday night, Miss Wingerson finished a close second to Lorna McGarvey in the 100-yard dash. Miss McGarvey set an Irish native record with a 10.8-second clocking and Miss Wingerson was caught in 10:9.

ABBY BEATEN

Abigail Hoffman, 17, of Toronto was beaten in the 440 by Irish track star Maeve Kyle. Mrs. Kyle ran a well-judged race to finish in 55.5 seconds. The Toronto girl was second in 56.8, a full second faster than her time last Saturday in winning the event at London.

Henry Carr of the U.S., world record holder for 220 yards and 200 metres, showed he had recovered from a recent injury by winning a sprint double.

Carr, who had to withdraw from the recent British championships in London because of a pulled muscle, won the 100 yeards in 9.5 and the 220 yards in 21.2.

George Kerr of Jamaica, 800-metre bronze medalist in the 1960 Olympics, also won twice, in the 440 and 880. Kerr won the 440 in 47.1 and the 880 in 1:48.

Vancouver Sizzles

ROYAL BOUNCING FOR ROYAL CITY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver moved back within a point of New Westminster Tuesday night with a runaway 13-5 victory over the league-leaders in Intercity Lacrosse play before 2,037 fans.

It was the worst beating handed New Westminster this season. Vancouver moves into Queen's Park Arena Thursday in a game that could reverse the top rungs in the standings.

Gordon Gimple and Sid Warick were the powerhouses for Vancouver, each with four goals, Warick's night taking him to a season total of 41 goals, New Westminster's Paul Parnell, the leader, has 42.

Parnell scored twice, Bill Wilkes three times.

A fight between Usselman and Royal City's Ron Loftus in the first period resulted in a match misconduct penalty for the Vancouver player and a five-minute major for Loftus.

Another battle in the third period brought five-minute penalties to Terry McGibbon of New Westminster and John Cervi.

Bob Babcock's goal was his 200th since he joined the league with Vancouver in 1959.

YOU COULDN'T SEE RAIN FOR 10,000 GOLF BALLS

BY BOB BELL

Rain doesn't mean a thing to junior golfers.

At least, it doesn't mean anything to the junior golfers attending B.C. Professional Golfer's Association clinic at Royal Colwood.

In fact, you couldn't see the rain for the 10,000 golf balls flying down the fairways Tuesday morning.

★ ★ ★

The 136 boys, from Western Canada and Washington as well as Victoria, braved the Victoria sunshine (wet variety) to avail themselves of tips and hints from pro Stan Leonard and his team of fifteen instructors.

The boys were split up into groups of about 30 each, taken to different parts of Royal Colwood Golf Club and put through drills in Tuesday's instruction sessions.

Driving practice consisted of a line of boys, each with a bucket of golf balls, whacking one shot after another along the fairway.

★ ★ ★

Instructors went along the line and gave each boy individual tips . . .

"You're swinging too fast—try it again, slower. That's it, don't swing any harder than that . . ."

Meanwhile, a group formed a large square and putted balls to pins set in the middle. Hundreds of balls covered the ground after an hour.

Another group was becoming acquainted with the finer points of blasting out of a sand trap.

After an hour at each practice, the boys picked up their bucket of balls and moved on to the next session.

Nobody even noticed the rain, almost.

COUNCIL MAY CHANGE PARK RENTAL SCHEME

City council is considering a change in the rental fees for Royal Athletic Park.

The change would eliminate the paying of ticket takers and salesmen at the park by teams.

In the past, Council had adamantly said it would hold to a rental fee of 10 per cent of the gross take, plus $4 per game for ticket takers, and $5 per game for ticket salesmen.

Council is now considering the possibility of charging 10 per cent fee, foregoing the charges for ticket takers and salesmen after discussing the problem at a meeting Tuesday night.

Empty Talk At Education Conference

GENEVA (Reuters) — Afro-Asian and Communist delegations met in an almost empty hall Tuesday in an effort to keep going a conference on world education.

Some 40 Western and South American delegations, including Canada, the U.S. and Britain, walked out of the conference Monday night after the Africans insisted on bringing to a vote their resolution calling for the expulsion of Portugal. The 50 delegates remaining after the walkout passed the resolution.

Simultaneously the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and the International Bureau of Education, sponsors of the conference, withdrew all services, including interpreters, secretaries and microphones.

Tunisia's delegate acted as interpreter at Tuesday's meeting.

Many delegates said that because of the technical difficulties it would be better to leave for home. However, the conference's Lebanese president, Fuad Sawaya, and his associates decided to call another session today.

TWO WESTERN SALES MANAGERS joined Tuesday to wish luck to retiring Victoria branch sales manager Austin Curtis, who has served Canadian National Railways 45 years. Mr. Curtis, well-known alderman and active in community affairs, leaves CN Aug. 31, having started his railway career in Calgary, Aug. 1, 1949, as a clerk with Grand Trunk Pacific. Offering congratulations are W. G. McLeod, regional sales manager in Edmonton, and E. H. Eastwood, area passenger sales manager, Vancouver.

River of Flame Kills Children, Sets Fire to Two Freighters

WORMS, GERMANY (UPI)—A collision between two barges spilled 200 tons of a highly poisonous and explosive chemical into the Rhine River setting off a fiery chain reaction that killed two children and left two adults missing, police announced today.

All shipping on Europe's busiest waterway was stopped between Worms and Oppenheim following the accident which occurred yesterday night.

Details of the river disaster only became available this morning.

Police said some of the 200-ton spilled cargo of deadly zyklon hexan liquid exploded and set fire to the freighters Maria Dna Barbara-Claudia several miles downriver from the collision scene.

Four-year-old Angelika Herzog, aboard one of the vessels, died in the flames, police said. Five-year-old Bernhard Stecher also suffered severe burns and died in a shore hospital this morning, they said.

Klaus Feiler, 19, a sailor, and Mrs. Ruth Riedle, 28, aboard one of the freighters were still missing today. Police believed they drowned when they left the burning ship to try to swim to safety.

The two freighter captains, who stayed aboard their ships in a desperate effort to reach the left bank of the Rhine River and enable firemen to put out the flames, were hospitalized with serious burns. The rest of the crew was said to be unhurt.

STRIKEBREAKER HURT ON JOB

TORONTO (CP)—The first casualty among executives manning composing rooms during the strike at all three Toronto newspapers was reported Tuesday.

Beland H. Honderich, vice-president of The Star, caught his hand in a proof machine and received two stitches at hospital. He later returned to the composing room.

No Rush Here To Be First In Fashion

Victoria women are curious to see the new topless fashions, but to date it appears there have been no requests for such gowns in the local stores.

One store reported customers have asked to see the new fashions but none have asked to buy them.

Another store reported lots of men come into the store when they are dressing a mannequin to inquire if that is one of the new topless dresses.

Although the topless gowns are being snapped up by customers as far west at Winnipeg, store managers here are still waiting to place their orders.

Teachers Prepare For Africa

LAC BEAUPORT, Que. (CP) Eighteen Canadians from six provinces arrived at this Lakeside resort village north of Quebec City Tuesday to go into training for a summer in Uganda, Kenya and Malawi as teachers of teachers.

The 18 were among the 200-odd Canadian teachers at Tuesday night's opening banquet of the 135,000 - member Canadian Teachers' Federation.

While federation delegates go into convention sessions during the rest of the week, the Africa-bound group will be housed in separate cabins and attend seminar on what to expect at their destination.

The needs of such lands are so vast, says William Long of Kitimat, B.C., who knew Africa as an RAF member during the Second World War, that it is the gesture more than the practical contribution which is important.

OVERCOME FEAR

"Africans told me that it was sitting and eating with us that destroyed a lifelong fear of whites. And it is good for us too, to really see desperate poverty perhaps for the first time in our lives."

Two British Colombians who read of African activities in their provincial teachers' journal told what they hope to get from the project.

Gordon Frew of Trail, B.C., said news reports of "labor strife" in his home town after a strike vote was taken made him skeptical of the picture outsiders get of a place. He wanted to see Africa for himself.

Richard Hibberd of Powell River, another B.C. industrial centre, said teaching Japanese-Canadians sharpened his taste for helping the racial underdog. "They tell me I can do something in Africa, so I'm willing to try."

Alberta, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan also are represented.

All-Day Horse Show At Luxton on Sunday

A day-long horse show is scheduled Sunday at the Luxton Fair Grounds.

It is a Vancouver Island Horsemen's Council show sponsored by the Garden City Horsemen's Club.

A similar council show was held last Sunday by the U-Tree Highlanders. The council is composed of riding clubs from all parts of the Island and was formed to foster closer co-operation between horse clubs, to promote good sportsmanship and encourage young riders.

The shows, sponsored by member clubs, also give senior riders wider experience in competition.

The Garden City club's show will start at 9 in the morning, and 20 events will be run off.

English and Western events are included. Before a lunch-hour break it is planned to complete five classes, senior and junior Western trail horse classes, senior stock saddle seat, junior Western equitation and the open hack.

Afternoon events will include green hunter, western reining, hunter hack, flag races, open jumping, pole bending, stake, barrel and keyhole races.

Judge of the show will be Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow and ringmaster will be Jerry Aitken. Show chairman is Mark Coppinger.

LIST GIVEN BY NAACP LEADER

Negro Toll in Mississippi: 11

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Negro leader Charles Evers charged today that at least 11 Negroes had been killed under mysterious circumstances in Mississippi since the ambush slaying of his brother, Medgar, last year.

Evers released a list giving the names of nine of the alleged victims, including Charles Moore and Henry Dee, both 19 of Meadville, whose bodies were believed to have been found in the Mississippi River early this week.

Evers, state field director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he did not have the names or particulars involving two other alleged victims.

Professional basketball star Bill Russell, who recently visited Mississippi, said in Boston Monday that Evers told him "eleven Negroes officially have been killed or are missing, and another is believed to have been killed."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Steve L. Leydig, age 10, of Exeter, Calif., for his question:

Why do whirlpools turn opposite south of the equator?

Andy often gives only the first steps of a tough problem, and his readers can add the harder steps as they grow older. But even the first steps of this problem are hard for a young brain to grasp, and a simple answer would be wrong. So try your best and leave the rest—until later.

North of the equator the whirling winds and waters tend to turn right. South of the equator they veer to the left. They must obey nature's traffic laws for all moving objects, and this problem is tough because two laws are at work. One sends a moving object in a straight path. The other bends its path right or left in the opposite hemispheres. This law is the Coriolis effect, and it works because the earth spins toward the east.

The ground spins fastest at the equator, and the speed gets slower between the equator and the poles. At the equator it spins at 1,000 miles an hour. Exeter is about 2,500 miles from the equator, and here the ground spins eastward at only 850 miles an hour. An arrow starts out obeying the law that makes it take a straight path. But as it goes, the ground below is moving, maybe faster or slower or in a different direction.

If you shoot an arrow from Exeter, the earth's spin of 850 miles an hour is included in its flight plans. Let's shoot it 2,500 miles southward to the equator and pretend that its path is a long string. Along the way, the ground below spins faster and faster and the string lags behind. The string veers to the right and ends far to the west of where it started.

Solved Gravitation Laws

If you shoot the arrow northward, the ground below it spins slower. The path is bent to the right and it ends east of where it started. South of the equator, the ground spins faster below an arrow flying north and slower below an arrow flying south. Both paths are bent to the left. This traffic law is the Coriolis effect that spins the whirling winds and waters in opposite directions north and south of the equator.

Whirlpools may be changed somewhat by rocks and boulders. The winds above the earth are better examples of the Coriolis effect in action. A cyclone is a round whirlpool of winds blowing into the centre. Their paths are like long strings above the spinning earth. The Coriolis effect works to bend them day and night and soon they become whirling spirals. North of the equator they veer right and south of the equator they veer left, in the same direction as the hands of a clock.

The laws of moving objects were figured out by an English student named Isaac Newton. He was the genius who figured the laws of gravitation. But he did not explain why moving objects veer in opposite directions north and south of the equator. This was solved later by a French math genius named Gaspard Coriolis, and the hard-to-understand Coriolis was named in his honor.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—I had gone to see Betty Hutton in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" at the Melody Top Theatre in Milwaukee . . . and suddenly in the second act while she was singing "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend," she bounced down off the stage and jumped into my lap and kissed me.

Then she introduced me to the audience.

Then she jumped back up on stage.

"Where was I?" she shouted . . . then she remembered . . . and resumed. That's how Betty plays the show. The crowd gave her a standing ovation afterward. They love her in Milwaukee.

"You," she howled at one front-row guy, "are not smiling at all!" She leaped down and kissed him in the midst of the show. She was wearing a mike in her blouse and once when the sound went very strange, she looked down into her blouse and shrieked, "I must have a wild one down there."

When one of her fellow performers finished a scene, Betty would personally lead the applause.

"Please don't feed the musicians," said a sign over the orchestra pit.

Every time she ran up the steps to the back of the house after finishing a scene, Betty would kiss the spectators along the way.

And when they rose to cheer her at the end, she wept.

Bill Harrah, the Reno and Lake Tahoe multimillionaire, was sending the B.W. and me to his private plane in a chauffeured Rolls.

"Is there an ash tray around anywhere?" the B.W. said.

"I don't see any," I said. "Wait. What is this little knob here?"

I pulled the little knob. Out came a Sony TV set. We watched TV riding through the desert. Desert! I saw a sign that said: "Cocktail Party Ice Cubes."

I was telling Gypsy Rose Lee about the Rolls-Royce TV set in Los Angeles, forgetting that she had a Rolls.

"Doesn't everybody have a TV set in their Rolls?" she asked. "I have . . . and also a stereo."

Spy on Exercises

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—A Russian intelligence trawler, the Teodolit, arrived on the scene three hours after an unannounced U.S. Navy anti-submarine exercise began off Bermuda, the U.S. Navy said Friday. "It certainly shows the effectiveness of their intelligence system," said Cmdr. William F. Brennan, officer in charge of the support facility for navy patrol Squadron 49 at Kindley Field.

MARBLE DOME EDGES LINT HEAD BY A HAIR

BAVENO, Italy (AP)—After a three-day scrutiny of 23 heads, with the help of magnifying lenses, an international jury Sunday named a French bank teller "the world's baldest man of 1964."

He is Henry Braye, 31, of Pithiviers, Loire, France. Guido Salvadori, 25, another bank employee, of Verona, Italy, was second.

Braye, who has won the annual contest since 1961, "has not even the shadow of a hair" on his head, announced the mayor of Baveno, Italo Ottimetti, president of the judges committee. Salvadori "has something in the back of his head which appears like lint," the mayor said.

150 Mayors From Quebec To Get Bang-Up Welcome Here

A warm welcome with full civic honors will be planned for 150 mayors from Quebec flying here in November for their annual post-convention seminar.

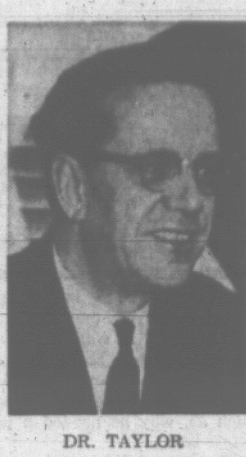
Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee Tuesday authorized Mayor R. B. Wilson to start planning the reception program for the "historic" event.

It will be the first time that the Quebec Union of Municipalities will hold its seminar outside of its own province, and the step is being taken in a deliberate effort to increase understanding between French and English-speaking Canadians.

Victoria was chosen, a letter from QUM read to the committee said, in gratitude to Mayor Wilson's friendliness to a visiting QUM delegation here earlier this year. (The mayor spoke in French of the desire here for Canadian unity when he introduced the visitors to city council.)

Exact dates of the QUM seminar have not been set but it will be a November weekend, the letter indicated.

Saanich Coun. Joseph Casey said the areas "should go overboard" in welcoming the Quebec mayors and other committee members agreed the event might prove one of the historic turning points in biculturalism.



DR. TAYLOR
. . . learning French

BILINGUALLY SPEAKING

Uvic President Getting in Step

Victoria's new university president has hopes of making French his second language, just like his predecessor and his registrar.

Dr. Malcolm Taylor, who became University of Victoria chief executive July 1, is spending six weeks at Laval University summer school, Quebec City, learning French.

Dr. W. H. Hickman, who was acting president and who is head of the department of modern languages, is fluent in French, as is registrar R. R. Jeffels. All three are natives of English-speaking Alberta.

Dr. Taylor's recently appointed right-hand man, executive assistant Dr. M. H. Scargill, former dean of arts and science at Calgary's University of Alberta campus where Dr. Taylor was principal, is a linguistics expert.

The three top men together will constitute a triumvirate of communication-sensitive leaders.

In Quebec, where he was interviewed, Dr. Taylor said: "I believe firmly in bilingualism and biculturalism, and I feel that every citizen should make it a duty, an ideal, to speak two languages."

He added: "In any case, the role Canada is now playing in international life adds to the necessity."

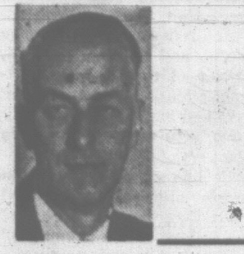
He was amused by the fact that his 16-year-old son Burke is in a higher French class than himself.

Dr. Taylor said that in Ontario and Alberta, where he has spent his university career, there is great interest in everything French, not only in university faculties but in business, where staff is being asked to take French courses.

Asked about separatism, he said: "The separation of Quebec would be a disaster for everyone. I am convinced that we can find a solution to this sharp problem."

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1964–PAGE 21



Arthur Mayse

There was a time when the word "doctor" conjured up an immediate picture of a rather shabby but lovable old type with celluloid collar and unhygienic beard, sitting patiently by a little girl's sickbed while the night hours ticked past.

It was a pretty good picture, suggesting as it did a family friend whom we could love and trust, and pay with half a shoat and a bushel of spuds if the cash crops had done poorly. Quite a few general practitioners, including the black-bag virtuoso who copes with our family aches and pains, still hang it in their smartly-furnished outer offices.

Were Ol' Doc to pronounce the child out of danger and step down from his frame, he would find certain aspects of his calling still recognizable, including the modern medico's willingness to squander time and skill at need.

I think, though, that he would soon find himself wondering with incredulous dismay what the devil had overtaken his public image.

The plain fact is that it's going to pot at a hand gallop, and that the profession is taking no effective steps to check the erosion.

* * *

I find this a great pity, because we lean heavier on the medical profession than mankind has ever done in its ailing, misery-ridden progress toward the stars. Our doctors in turn are infinitely more capable of helping us than was that bearded GP of long ago.

We are drifting apart. Like a wedded couple with some deep-seated disagreement between them, the layman and the modern custodian of the serpent-twined staff don't know how to commune with each other any more.

Snug in their self-contained circle, the licensed healing trades incline to remain mum except when an unlicensed outsider draws a few curt words of censure.

The prime example of this inability to function effectively in the field of human relations is nowhere more evident than in the profession's reaction to Opposition leader Robert Strachan's medicare proposals.

As one looks wall-eyed at socialism wherever it raises its scrubby-little head, I don't hold with the Strachan plan, either.

But were I a doctor convinced that Saskatchewan-style medicare would be bad for British Columbians, I wouldn't waste precious time—as one local physician and surgeon recently did — in slanging Bob Strachan's views as 'political eyewash,' and Strachan himself as 'an ill-informed day dreamer.'

What I would do, by golly, is get off the dime, pull my head out of the sand, and through every medium at my command, start pushing a health insurance proposal acceptable to B.C. doctors and their patients.

* * *

Here we come to the nub of the matter.

The oldtime practitioner had no wonder drugs to carry in his black bag, and undoubtedly buried his share of mistakes. But he established a firm rapport with his people. He knew how to talk to them.

This art, it seems to me today's aloof gentlemen who soothe our pangs and mend our plumbing are in grave danger of losing.

In this present issue of medicare, they would do well to find a strong and concerted voice. It is all very well to cry out against those whose proposals fail to please.

But at this point, the medical profession's plaguey reticence asserts itself.

While we wait to be told what sort of plan doctors favor, they grumble off into silence.

Since we look to them for guidance in this matter, we are left in a state of bewilderment. We're not mind-readers. We want to be told what our doctors feel is right for us in any health plan.

Also, and this is important, we want to hear it from them, not from a provincial government which we trust rather less than Ol' Doc's successors.

CALL A CAB these days and look what you get. Times reporter Marge Gilroy took a ride in Victoria's first pedicab this morning, driven by John Hodgson. The leather top stays up when it rains and the coolie hats come out when it shines. It's like a slow boat to China, slow and easy.

PRISON CAMP TREATMENT SUGGESTED

A man who forged cheques belonging to other persons at the Courtney St. apartment block where he lived was sent to jail today for one year.

Douglas MacIntosh, 802 Cook, had no previous record of lawbreaking. Magistrate William Ostler said that too short a prison term wouldn't help him but that he didn't want to impose an "unnecessarily harsh" sentence either.

The magistrate said that MacIntosh would benefit by working in prison camp and should apply to be transferred to one when he goes to Oakalla Prison.

Pedicabs as Cosy As a Rumble Seat

By MARGE GILROY

The west meets the east once again in the streets of Victoria with the arrival of six new pedicabs from Formosa.

A pedicab is the modern oriental version of the rickshaw, common now in Hong Kong, Taipei and other Far Eastern cities.

Victoria is the first Canadian city to adopt this leisurely, cosy, non-motorized mode of transport. But Irving Risvold, president of Pedicab Enterprises Ltd., hopes soon to see them distributed across the country.

Visitors to the world fair in Montreal in 1967 may look forward to seeing the sights from the two-seater cab.

COST $500

The 300-pound vehicles, which cost $500 each to import, may look like a cinch to drive, but they're not. Six university students found that out on the weekend as they practised for hours in an empty parking lot.

They are experienced pedicab drivers now and next week they will be pedalling around Beacon Hill Park and Dallas Road with their first customers in tow.

Passengers are assured of a comfortable trip as they ride along in the cab with padded upholstery. Like the surrey with the fringe on top, there is a plastic apron you can buckle on in case there's a change in the weather.

BRAKE ADDED

At present the three-wheelers are one-speed, but the company is considering changing them over to three-speed. The bikes come equipped with an emergency brake only, on the crossbar.

In the future there may be motorized and children-size pedicabs on city streets, but this summer the oriental cabs call for a strong pair of legs.

Contractor, Bricklayers Face to Face

Bricklayer-employing contractors were believed to be making a last-minute effort this afternoon to avert a strike in Victoria.

Contractor Gilbert Brown was to meet union representative William Gauld at 2 p.m.

Bricklayers were to cast their ballots in a government-supervised strike vote at 4:45 p.m.

Mr. Gauld said he believed the contractors "have some kind of offer they will make."

He said if the demands of the bricklayers are met (a two-year contract comprising 53 cents per hour in wages and welfare) it may be possible to have the vote cancelled.

48-HOUR NOTICE

If not, he said, "we'll take the necessary action."

If the vote is for strike, 48-hour notice will be mailed, and bricklayers—about 40 of them—will be entitled to walk off the job.

About four contractors are employing bricklayers, and their projects could be halted if the bricklayers throw up a picket line.

Mr. Brown said 12 bricklayers will vote.

Five Young Naturalists Oliver-Bound

Five young Victoria naturalists will leave Monday for Oliver to participate in the Canadian Audubon Society's first junior camp.

They are Nancy Chapman, Nancy Pope, Jan Murphy, Dan Gifford and Ross Storey. They will stay at the UBC geological campsite until July 31.

Boys and girls aged 12-16 from across the province will join the flora and fauna study.

Camp director is Victoria naturalist Freeman King, who will lead the youngsters on side trips to fruit belt and cold desert areas.

Due to his absence there will be no hikes for the junior branch of the Natural History Society for the next three weeks.

Stricter Rule To Govern Winter Aid

Stricter rules for winter work grants have been set by the provincial government, it was learned today.

The government has notified all municipalities that it is tightening qualifications for grants which will begin in September.

The aim is to secure employment for more people who receive welfare aid.

A municipal affairs department official said that in past years B.C. has paid 50 per cent of labor costs on projects where welfare recipients are hired during the winter.

It paid 25 per cent of the payroll for other unemployed who were given jobs.

This year the government will only pay 50 per cent if municipalities hire people who have spent at least three months on the welfare rolls.

The move follows Premier W. A. C. Bennett's announcement last month that the government would be "more exacting."

"The whole purpose of the program is to help the unemployed, not the municipalities," said the municipal affairs official.

He said that some municipalities have come to expect winter works grants as a matter of right.

Some of them had launched projects they might not otherwise have considered.

Last year the B.C. government paid out about $2 million in winter works aid.

Woman Suffers Chest Injuries

A woman was admitted to hospital for treatment of chest injuries after being involved in a two-car collision at Goldstream and Millstream at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank Wheldon, 28 Midwood, was a passenger in a car driven by her husband that was in collision with one driven by Louis Impey, 1748 Davie, police reported.

Thieves Ignore Warning Shots

Police fired warning shots over the heads of two persons who escaped in a stolen car after a high-speed chase through View Royal and Saanich early today.

The thieves abandoned the vehicle near where it was stolen and escaped on foot in dense bush.

Saanich police dog Rex picked up their trail about half an hour later but lost it after a short distance. Colwood RCMP and Saanich police were investigating the case further at press time this afternoon.

The chase started when an RCMP officer in a patrol car saw another car moving at high speed on Goldstream shortly before 5 a.m.

DIDN'T STOP

He pursued the vehicle with siren blaring and red light flashing but it didn't stop. Saanich police were radioed to intercept the car when it headed into their area at Trans-Canada Highway and Burnside.

The chase continued in the early light of dawn along wet slippery streets at speeds that at times reached 60 mph. Police said their cars began to spin out on some corners.

The RCMP car was right behind the stolen car as it sped along Marigold to Carey, to Judah, to Glanford, to Ralph and into Rainbow, a dead-end street.

RAN UP HILL

At the end of Rainbow the car was driven straight into the bush and two persons in it fled the scene. They ran up Christmas Hill which leads to Rogers Ave., and disappeared.

When police checked the car they found it was stolen from the home of Leonard Chambers, 760 Rogers. He didn't know his car was gone until police informed him.

The Saanich police dog was brought to the scene some time after the thieves had fled. The dog picked up the scent and followed it through the bush but then lost the trail.

HIGH SCHOOL RESULTS RELEASED IN 2 WEEKS

Results of this year's high school examinations will be known around the end of July, a provincial education department official said today.

Marking is still under way, he said.

The board of examiners is due to meet July 25, and students will be notified if they made university standards around July 29.

Big Subdivision All Ready to Go

Construction can start on a $22 million housing development north of Cordova Bay as soon as Saanich council and the pollution control board give the nod, a spokesman said Tuesday night.

Milton Tisdalle, spokesman for Marwell Construction Co., told a Saanich public works committee meeting the developers expect to have the entire Uplands-type subdivision sold within five to seven years.

He presented to the committee a detailed brief outlining progress made in preliminary studies.

His plan—which will involve Saanich's spending at least $885,000—will be ruled on by the committee by next Monday.

It will then go to council the following Monday for a decision.

$25,000-$45,000

Homes in the subdivision—present plans call for 385—are to cost from $25,000 to $40,000 and up.

The site, which incorporates an 18-hole golf course, overlooks Sayward Beach just north of Cordova Bay, and takes in about 200 acres of the old Turner farm.

Mr. Tisdalle told the committee work can start on the golf course as soon as approval is granted, and it could be finished in two years.

He said 10 of the half-acre house lots are already spoken for, and that the Royal Trust Company is handling sales across Canada.

"We expect to have the total subdivision sold in five to seven years," he told the committee.

About $1,541,780 would have to be spent in providing services for the subdivision, his brief said.

The developers want Saanich to put up $885,090 of this.

The balance—$656,690—is to be paid by the developers.

BREAKDOWN

Cost of services runs as follows:

Streets, $589,700; storm drains, $185,840; sanitary sewers, $331,890; water, $241,850; wiring for house power, street lighting and television, all underground, $192,500.

With some exceptions where services provided would benefit ratepayers outside the development, the developers expect Saanich to foot the bill for street lighting wiring, the excess of any road over 28 feet wide, and the sanitary sewer collecting system.

Everything else — wiring, water, storm drains, roads up to 28 feet width, sewage treatment and disposal—would be paid by the developers.

Saanich would presumably finance some of these services through local improvement bylaws.

Mr. Tisdalle asked the public works committee to vote recommendation of approval Monday night.

Although in cautions agreement with the proposals in the brief, the committee tabled the matter a week for study.

"It's too much to digest in one evening," said Coun. Joseph Casey.

One hurdle still to be crossed for the developers is the Pollution Control Board, which must approve sewage disposal plans.

40 FRUMPY DAYS

St. Swithin's Day Splash Ushers In 'Junk' Weather

By AB KENT

And a soggy St. Swithin's Day to you, too.

Our weeping sky today means 40 more of the same, according to the ancient rhyme of superstitious Englishmen:

St. Swithin's Day if thou dost rain
For 40 days it will remain;
St. Swithin's Day if thou be fair
For 40 days 'twill rain na mair—

Enough to turn summer-seeking tourists back to the mainland. Which is just what some have done.

But it can be blamed on meteorological uproar off our shores, the bogey of Gonzales weathermen—a Pacific disturbance.

GLOOMY

The outlook is gloomy, forecasters say. Thursday should be sunny to start, turning into clouds and showers later in the day.

And the five-day prediction is for unsettled weather, a pattern of off-and-on sun and "junk," to use the weather office phrase.

Beyond that they won't go, giving the St. Swithin's Day verse a veiled sneer.

Origin of the legend is obscure but one chronicler indicates a connection between it and the dying wish of St. Swithin, who was bishop of Winchester in 862, when he died. He became patron of the church 109 years later, when his body was moved from its obscure resting place to a new one in the church on July 15.

St. Swithin wanted to be buried in a "vile and unworthy place," rather than within the church.

Q. Will you please tell me the maximum and minimum recorded sway of the Empire State Building in New York City? D.Y.R.

A. The building only sways slightly when it is buffeted by strong winds. Greatest sway occurred during a 100-m.p.h. windstorm when the structure rocked 1.45 inches from centre.

You Need Not Be a Pro To Make Your Own Lamps

By PENNY SAVER

When days like Tuesday spoil summer outings, it's nice to be able to spend a few hours working on, or developing, a hobby.

And, here's a new idea for those of you who find time lying heavy on your hands. If you have an old bottle, jug or oil lamp sitting about, why not convert it into a novel electric lamp?

Process is very simple. You need not be mechanically or electrically inclined to be successful. All it takes is a reducable cork adapter, a harp (not the musical kind), a finial and your own ingenuity.

Corks are specially made so that they can be cut and peeled to the desired size. Actual sizes available range from one and a quarter to two and a quarter inches, and prices from $1.85 up.

Finials are priced from 20 to 49 cents each and harps—in any size you desire—from 42 to 65 cents.

While on the topic of lights, I'd like to tell you about the new night light I found that is suitable for nursery, bedroom, bathroom or hallway. It has neither switch nor filament and will operate continuously for less than one cent a year. Light is fluorescent and all that is needed for installation is the handiest wall socket. Price is $1.29.

A dandy invention for the housewife who can't get hubby to fix the plug on radio or other electric appliance is an unconditionally guaranteed plug that takes only minutes to install. Price is 29 cents. Simply cut wire straight across and insert through opening in outer unit; separate blades on inner unit and push wire through as far as possible; snap units together and plug is installed.

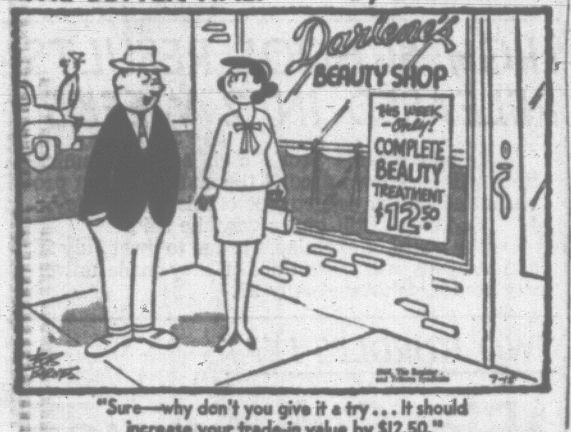
THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes



"Sure—why don't you give it a try . . . It should increase your trade-in value by $12.50."

Will the real French poodle please sit up? Decorative poodles like this are easily made from polythene film bags from the drycleaner.

Design Posh Pooches For Special Gifts

Products of the plastic industry are going to the dogs these days. Nimble fingers are taking polythene film and transforming it into decorative French poodles . . . posh pooches that are distinctive yet fun to make.

The poodles are made almost entirely of pom-poms, and 14 are required for each pup—three for each leg, one for the head and a smaller one for the tail. The pom-poms are made exactly the same way as woolen ones, using one-inch strips of the plastic film instead of wool yarn. Polythene film can be bought by the yard at most hardware stores or the plastic bags dry cleaners return clothes in will do. It takes the film from one garment bag to make a plump pom-pom about the size of a tangerine.

Since this project is principally one of pom-pom making, a suggestion for cutting down the time required to make them should be welcome. The usual way is to wind the yarn—or in this case the one-inch strips of plastic—around two doughnut shaped pieces of cardboard. However, in order to eliminate the threading of the plastic through the centre hole each time, simply cut a narrow slice away from the doughnut rings. The film can then slip through this opening as it is being wrapped around the rings. The resulting pom-pom will not be a perfect sphere, but in this case it doesn't matter; the bare spot can be turned so that it is hidden by the adjoining pom-pom.

BODY AND HEAD

A cardboard core is used for the body, wrapped in film, and the legs, tail and head are made by running heavy wire through the centre of the pom-poms and then securing it to the body.

The face is a cork with two black map pins for eyes, and a thumb or carpet tack is used for the nose. A ribbon bow at the neck is a nice finishing touch, but one that is purely a matter of choice.

Take Advantage of Expert Advice When Girdle Buying

Lowman

I don't know of any counterpart man has to match woman's habit of yanking at her girdle. We do not see nearly so much of this as we once did because more women are being properly fitted and girdles have greater variety in design and materials.

Whenever it is available, take advantage of expert advice when buying one. A fitter who knows her business will be able to tell you which style is best for you. She will want to know when you are going to wear the girdle whether you sit or stand much of the day. She will have you sit as well as stand when trying on the garment.

If a girdle is too tight or too short it will produce an unattractive bulge at the thigh line. If it is too low it will give you a roll over the top. Some figures are not at all suited to the one-piece foundation while it is perfect for others.

There are only two reasons for wearing a girdle: For improvement in the appearance of the figure, and for reasons of health. Some women require only a very filmsy light girdle while others need real abdominal support. You should have this support if your abdominal wall is relaxed due to overweight, pregnancy, or poor posture. Any of these conditions can lead to lax and stretched abdominal muscles.

If you have exercised regularly, if you reconditioned with special exercise after your child arrived or in between children, and if you are the correct weight, you will be happy with a lighter number to smooth your figure a bit and hold up your stockings.

If you need a bit of figure molding help from your girdle, investigate the very lightweight ones which give strong control in spite of their seeming innocence.

If your figure problem is a protruding abdomen, and you want help in overcoming this defect, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my tested abdominal slimming exercises, leaflet number 2 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Wed in St. Luke's Church

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff recently heard vows exchanged between Donna Marie Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Peterson, 2730 Scott Street, and Frederic James Sudlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sudlow, 1631 Broadmead Avenue.

St. Luke's Anglican Church was the setting for the evening ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white peau de soie gown slightly en train. The lace bodice was styled with lily point sleeves. Pillbox headpiece highlighted with pearls held a fingertip-length illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Darlene Young, and bridesmaids, the Misses Susan Begg and Kathryn Schaefer, chose identical street-length gowns of pink chiffon over taffeta. Floral headpieces and bouquets of pink and white carnations completed their ensembles.

Stuart Ball was best man, and guests were ushered to their pews by Wayne Dale-Johnson and Stan Elliott.

White cloth covered the bride's table which was centred with a white three-tier cake at reception which followed in St. Alban's Church Hall. Cake was flanked by candles and standing baskets of flowers. Ted Robertson proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Following a honeymoon up-Island the newlyweds travelled to Edmonton, where they are now making their home.

Among guests in town for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Pat Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Driver and daughter Susan, and Mrs. Hugh Baanstra, all of Vancouver; Miss Ruth Williams, Duncan; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Peterson, of Edmonton; Miss Andora Werk, Chilliwack; Mrs. F. G. Driver and Mrs. R. Fawdry, both of Nanaimo.

DEAR ABBY . . .

End the Treatment, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband got a post card from the post office asking him if he wanted to keep his post office box. I never knew he had a post office box, so I asked him a few questions, such as, why he needed a post office box.

His answers didn't make much sense so I knew he was hiding something. I finally got it out of him that he met a young woman while he was away on a business trip last year. He said there was nothing serious between them, they just wanted to correspond with each other. He said she was a "nice" girl who was married, but not happily. He promised he would never write to her again. He has really tried awfully hard to make it up to me ever since, Abby. Divorce is not in my vocabulary, and I really love the guy. How much longer should I make him sleep on the couch?

DISILLUSIONED.

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: Invite him in tonight. You have both suffered long enough.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law has the habit of saying, "Our son's this and our son's that." The house is Robert's, the children are Robert's, and everything is Robert's. I heard her telling a neighbor about "Robert's wedding," so I stepped in and said, "Excuse me, Mother dear, but my father paid for it." Then she laughed and said, "Yes, but Robert has been paying ever since." I am so sick of hearing references to Robert alone, as though he had no wife, that I was just about ready to give him back to her. What can I do about a situation like that?

READY TO BURST.

DEAR READY: Make up your mind that you will not permit anything she says to get you down, or the ulcer you develop will be your own.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old man with a better-than-average education. All my friends are married and I have been looking for a wife. I have gone with any number of fine young women who have had all the qualities I desire in a wife, but the moment they show any interest in me I lose all interest in them. Is there something wrong with me? There is an old saying, "The fruit at the top of the tree—beyond one's reach—is always the sweetest." Why is this so, and what does one do about it?

JOHN.

DEAR JOHN: You'd be wise to cultivate a taste for the fruit within your reach. It's as sweet as the fruit at the top of the tree, but apparently you don't really want it—you just enjoy reaching.

Confidential to Allen: It isn't necessary to blow out the other fellow's candle in order to make your own shine brightly.

It's the new 83-bedroom St. George's Hotel in Langham Place, London, and its six floors are the topmost ones of a new 14-storey building.

The site is near Oxford Circus, a minute's walk from Broadcasting House. The hotel is built on the site of the old Queen's Hall, the original home of the renowned Promenade Concerts, and St. Georges Hall, the home of magic, where artistes like Maskelyne and Devant entertained magic-seekers until the two halls were destroyed in the last war.

Work has already begun on London's £500,000 underground Victoria Line tube station called Seven Sisters, which is expected to be finished in two years.

English Language Her Passport to Restless East Africa Country

"I find the work very interesting," is the way Miss Katharine Youdall explains her decision to return to East Africa to teach for another year. She leaves Victoria again on Friday after a two weeks' visit. She will see relatives in Vancouver before going on to England to meet Miss Muriel Johnston of Victoria for a month's tour of Europe prior to returning to Africa.

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Despite the unrest that has followed army mutinies last January and the uncertainties that surround a much diminished European population, Katharine Youdall is going back to Tanganyika.

She has already completed through a Canadian government external aid program, two years of teaching in a girls' boarding school sponsored by the government of Tanganyika, at Tabora.

She goes back, through the same program, to continue teaching English in this school, for another year.

TEACHES GIRLS

"The students are eager to learn our language," she says, "although I sometimes wonder how they manage to do it.

"Voices of staff members include English, Scottish, American, from the deep south, and Canadian.

"The girls mix these accents with a big dose of their own and come up with a rather different version. It's fascinating!"

There are 330 girls in the Tabora school. They enter at sixth grade level, when they are about 16 years of age and leave on completion of the equivalent of first or second-year college, when they are 21 or 22.

Advanced education for girls is still in its beginning in Tanganyika, Miss Youdall explains.

Because of extreme poverty, 40 per cent do not even start primary school. At Grade 4, the number of those who do start is cut in half.

"There are not enough teachers nor the necessary accommodation for them."

This drastic process of elimination means that only the most intelligent ("one, perhaps two, per cent") ever make secondary school level.

When the girls reach fifth or sixth grade they are preparing for university work.

"There are three basic choices for the majority," Miss Youdall says, "teaching, nursing and stenography.

"A few wish to take science, but it is almost impossible. There is a need for many more science tecahers out there."

The people of Tanganyika consider it a great honor to have a child going to school and they will accept "frightful hardships" in order to pay the fee ("very nominal from our point of view") at primary and first grade level. The government absorbs much of the cost in the higher grades.

In the school where Miss Youdall teaches the girls are fed on a shilling a day (about 15 cents), or 34 shillings a month. They eat a maize porridge, rice, beans, a little meat occasionally, dried fish, dry bread which is "a great treat," milk twice a week and tea on Sunday. They are also privileged to make their own tea.

They wear a uniform—called a jinja—during school hours. "It's made of a blue-green cotton material something like hemp."

Out of the classroom they don the kanga, a two-piece dress, long skirt and scarf blouse in brilliantly printed cotton material. "The scarf goes over one shoulder leaving the other bare, then over the head in a hood effect."

Normally the girls wear their hair in tight plaits, close to the head. But on special occasions they wear it in a modified western style.

"Then they spend endless time with tongs heated over small fires, trying to take the kinks out."

There's a boys' school not far away and dances are arranged by the two staffs.

"They love to dance and they do the Twist in a very graceful way."

Teachers act as chaperones but Miss Youdall says: "There is no misbehaviour on the floor. In fact, they are so absorbed in the rhythm of the dance, they could do it just as well alone."

School rules are strict. Visitors are allowed only with the parents' permission and even correspondence with friends is only with the parents' consent.

ONCE SLAVE CENTRE

Tabora is situated where two main slave routes met in earlier days. When the railway came, it was made an important junction point for export of tobacco and cotton.

It's a dry terrain, with much scrub and thorns. "Unproductive!" Katharine Youdall says tersely.

She lives in the school grounds in an all-electric duplex. "Fine, except when the electricity goes off, which is on an average of once a week." She has her own cook and she shares a "shanba" or garden boy, with her neighbor.

She continues her interest in dramatics in Tabora, especially in the school. And she is very proud that her class came first in a regional drama festival this year, organized by the British consul.

"That put them into the finals at Dar Es Salaam," she says, "but I haven't heard how they got on."

She has also done some drama work in the European community, but does not know whether this will continue when she goes back.

"As a result of the January mutinies, the European community is dwindling fast. Many who left the country then did not return and with the rapid Africanization of many departments, others are also leaving."

Interesting point to this Victoria teacher, in the take-over of many positions is the fact that it is the Christian Tanganyikans that hold all the chief political positions.

"It is the Christians so far, who are the most highly educated people in the country, due entirely to the work of the various missionaries. They have done a good job, not only in the educational field but in hospital and health work."

Establishment of new embassies in the country has brought some newcomers to the European circle, Miss Youdall believes, "but there is little chance of any great influx now from the West."

There is one exception and that is in the education field.

"They are not ready to take over education," Miss Youdall says, "and will not be ready for many years."

LONDON (CP)—When Prime Minister Pearson came to London for the Commonwealth conference, Mrs. Pearson had hoped to move around the city by subway and visit old familiar spots, such as the house they once lived in near Hampstead Heath.

"But we've had so many engagements, that I am afraid I am not going to do these things this trip," she said Tuesday.

The engagements she referred to included a Buckingham Palace garden party, a Buckingham Palace dinner, two other dinners, several receptions and luncheons.

"Then I had several old friends to look up, and I also have a cousin and niece whom I visited, so there really hasn't been too much time for just getting around London."

However, she did get gifts for her grandchildren, all of whom will be waiting for their grandparents in Ottawa Thursday. It will be the first time in three years that the prime minister's son and daughter have been home together with their children.

Wedding Vows in Central Baptist Church

Baskets of pink, yellow and white gladioli, roses and shasta daisies decorated Central Baptist Church when Rev. Robert Holmes heard vows exchanged between Maida Fay Dunkley and Kent Louis Shaefer.

Harpist, Miss Lorna Langley, and organist, Miss Phyllis Hick, accompanied Mrs. C. Salmond, who sang "The Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Lois Dunkley, 1014 Queens Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Shaefer of London, Ont.

The bride wore a gown of white peau de soie overlaid with tiered Chantilly lace. Her matching lace veil misted to fingertip-length from a lace and pearl tiara. Only jewelry was a pearl and aquamarine drop necklace, gift of the groom. Her bouquet was pink roses. She was given in marriage by her cousin, Robert Dunkley.

Pink satin gowns with toning net overskirts and bouquets of pink carnations and white shasta daisies were choice of the maid of honor, Miss Sylvia Inkpen, Calgary; and junior bridesmaid, Miss Carolyn Crabb, niece of the bride. Their headpieces were pink net topped with a satin flower.

The Misses Glenda and Rhonda Richards, flower girls for their aunt, wore yellow satin frocks with net overskirts en tone. Self-fabric flowers topped their yellow net headpieces. They carried nosegays of pale pink carnations and white shasta daisies.

Best man was Neil Biddle, Calgary. Arthur Gee, Ian Young and Hal Richards, Olds, Alta., ushered guests to their pews.

William Hick proposed the toast at a reception in the Church Fellowship Hall. A three-tier wedding cake, decorated with pink rosebuds and white lace bells and flanked by vases of pink roses, centred the bride's table.

Following a honeymoon at Mount Assiniboine the couple will live in London, Ont.

For travelling the bride wore a Chinese silk aquamarine sheath-style dress, white wool coat, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Pink and white streamers with wedding bells and ribbons formed a canopy over the tea table for the bride-to-be, her mother, the groom-elect's mother and Mrs. Manzini. Principals were presented with rose corsages. Refreshments were served.

Fairy Diners

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Half of the 400 children were dressed in costumes inspired by fairy tales as they quickly devoured a 15-foot-square cake, marking the sixth birthday of the Storybook Gardens here. Each year, all children in costumes are admitted free, and a youthful king and queen are crowned to reign during the summer activities.

COBHAM, England (CP) — Workmen demolishing houses in this Surrey town have encountered a big demand for old kitchen sinks. They have become popular with local gardeners for pots for large plants.

Horseshoe in Wedding Bouquet

A silver good luck horseshoe was nestled amongst the red roses and stephanotis carried by Geraldine Ann Matthews when she became the bride of Gary Wayne Smele in Christ Church Cathedral.

Her gown of ice blue satin veiled in white lace was made by her mother. It was styled with fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and slight train. Her four-tier veil was in short length.

Dean Brian Whitlow heard the wedding vows. "Twenty-third Psalm" was sung by a choir boy during the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Matthews of London, Eng., and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Smele, 1852 Chestnut Street, Victoria.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Clifford Wilkins, and bridesmaid, Miss Carol Simpson, chose nylon gowns in turquoise and pale pink tones. Their bouquets were of white carnations.

Clifford Wilkins was best man and Bob Campbell and Al Kerr were ushers.

Eighty guests attended a reception in the Tally-Ho Travelodge. Toast was proposed by Dean Whitlow. During the reception the couple spoke on the phone with the bride's parents in England.

For travelling the bride wore a pale blue dress and coat with white hat and accessories. A pink rose corsage completed her ensemble.

After a honeymoon by car to San Francisco and back via Seattle and Vancouver, the newlyweds are now living in Victoria.

Welfare Problems Of Aged

OTTAWA (CP) — A full-scale exploration of the welfare problems of Canada's elderly will be made at the Canadian Conference on Aging in Toronto in January, 1966.

Preparations are already being made for the meeting, sponsored by the Canadian Welfare Council and 13 other organizations.

The aim is to throw light on the many prejudices and half-truths that surround the aging process and to explore the psychological, physiological and social facts about old age.

VOLUNTEERS MEET

More than 400 professional people and volunteers working in the field will meet for five days of talks on subjects such as employment and preparation for retirement, income maintenance and cost of living, health and rehabilitation services, family life and integration into the community and living accommodation for the aged.

Conference chairman is Hope Holmested of the Toronto suburb of Willowdale, a volunteer who has long been concerned not only with the elderly but with the entire subject of aging.

"We hope to bring together information about aging from the professions, voluntary organizations and government agencies active in the field," she says. "In this way we hope to stimulate thought and improve services for the aged all across Canada."

Married In Australia; Living Here

A wedding of interest in this city took place last month in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. Principals were Janelle, younger daughter of B. L. Hayden, Earlwood, New South Wales, and the late Mr. Hayden, and Douglas James Reginald Park, only son of Mrs. D. R. Park of Victoria, B.C., and the late Mr. Park.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white brocade. Mrs. Kevin Watt, Creston, B.C., attended her sister in an emerald green gown of silk shantung.

Both the bride and her attendant carried white roses and gladioli in their bouquets.

Graham Hayden, twin brother of the bride, was best man.

At a reception in the home of the bride's father, Lewis Gould proposed the toast.

Following a honeymoon in Buccaneer Bay, N.S.W., Mr. and Mrs. Park are now in this city and living at Regent Towers.

Head-to-Toe Polka Dots—For complete fashion co-ordination, shoes match the dress. This green-dotted white chiffon dress was designed by Renee Firestone and the hat of the same chiffon by Leon Bennett. The shoes were done by the lady herself by drawing circles and filling in the color with a new color coating for shoes. (CP Photo.)

LONDON (CP) — Housewives should be able to study for university degrees by television courses, says Peter Laslett of Cambridge University. Speaking at a London meeting he said a course would need about 500 hours of screen time.

TOPLESS GOWNS IGNORED

NEW YORK (AP)—When two weeks of style previews for the U.S. press came to a close here Saturday, husbands could at last be consoled that nothing — not even the topless bathing suit — has evolved to outdate their wives clothes by next fall.

Now they have only to sweat out the Italian and Paris collection openings this month before relaxing the grip on their wallets.

The only financial risks evident in the collections shown by the New York couture group last week, or the American designers group the week before, is that fall clothes are pretty and feminine enough to inspire a man with the magnanimity to insist that his lady own some.

Wedding in Adventist Church

Baskets of flowers decorated Seventh Day Adventist Church when Erika Cresner, daughter of Mrs. Franciska Pusnik, 1172 View Street, was united in marriage with Frank Wesley Olfert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Olfert, of Oliver, B.C.

Elder W. W. Rogers officiated at the Sunday evening ceremony, Mrs. A. V. Piper sang "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by Elder A. M. Spenst. She wore a white satin gown with boat neckline, lily point sleeves and floor-length skirt extending into a train. Her waist-length three-tier veil was held with a satin rose at the forehead. She carried a heart-shaped bouquet of red roses.

Street-length gowns of gold satin were the choice of maid of honor, Miss Marlene Olfert, and bridesmaid, Miss Sonia Maglio. They wore dainty self-fabric flowers and shoulder-length veils en tone. Sweetheart roses were in their bouquets.

Roy Hingley was best man. Guest were ushered to pews by Ronnie Olfert, Oliver, B.C.

A three-tier cake decorated with red and white roses and a basket of red roses were on the bride's table at a reception which followed in the Union Centre Hall. Toast was proposed by Roy Hingley.

Following a honeymoon in the United States and on through to the Atlantic Coast, the couple will live at Cornerbrook, Nfd. White lace shift-style dress complemented with white accessories was the bride's going away outfit.

Mr. and Mrs. Olfert came from Oliver for their son's wedding.

'Go' Signal Given On Saanich Signs

Saanich has won permission to erect directional signs on an experimental basis.

The provincial highways department will permit signs on the Pay Bay Highway at Sayward and Royal Oak Avenue, a Tuesday night meeting of Saanich public works committee was told.

The department had earlier turned down flatly any suggestion of municipally-erected signs along the road.

Suggested were finger board signs directing traffic to points of interest and tourist facilities and accommodations.

Saanich council's original thought was that this would prevent illegal posting of commercial signs along the road.

When the highways department, which has jurisdiction over what goes on roadsides, turned down the proposal, council was incensed.

"SOME PROGRESS"

"I think we've made some progress," works committee chairman Coun. Hugh Curtis commented Tuesday night.

The highways department originally said the signs would be a traffic hazard and present more danger than information for motorists.

Saanich municipal engineer Nevile Life negotiated the compromise.

* * *

Works committee agreed to recommend to council that 200 of two-inch water main on Midgard Avenue be replaced with six-inch pipe.

The engineer said the replacement is necessary because of paving operations there. It will cost about $800.

* * *

Committee decided to recommend initiation by council of a local improvement bylaw to provide a water main on Bedford Road.

The municipal engineer recommended the initiation, suggested to council in a letter from W. C. Mearns, 3245 Beach Drive.

Council Mutiny Cuts Off Mayor From His Salary

VERNON (CP)—Elwood Rice, Vernon's $1 - a - month mayor, says he is going to get on with city business even if five of six aldermen want him kicked out.

"We have a great deal to do in Vernon, a lot of lost time to catch up," said the white-haired mayor of the North Okanagan community.

Interviewed Tuesday, the mayor said he wasn't concerned about being unpopular with council. That unpopularity was made manifest the night before.

Aldermen voted 5-1 to ask for his immediate resignation, censuring him for "a complete lack of leadership, a lack of original ideas, a lack of interest in the city's welfare and intimidation by threat of dismissal against key city hall personnel." He was accused of "inability, ignorance, arrogance and incompetence."

DOWN TO $1

When Mayor Rice refused to quit, council by the same margin ordered the city clerk to cut the mayor's indemnity to $1 a month.

Mayor Rice said Tuesday that the only way to be popular is to do nothing. He said he hopes to have a $1,508,000 civic project comprising police building, fire hall and museum-library started in October instead of next spring as planned.

French Film Series Opens Sunday at Uvic

Under the sponsorship of University of Victoria's student film society, Kinema '64, a series of fine French films will be shown at the Student Union Building, Finnerty Road, from Sunday to Aug. 9.

Designated as "A Festival of Poetic Cinema," the films will be shown on Sunday evenings at 8.

All films are in French language but have English subtitles. Next Sunday, Jean Cocteau's The Blood of a Poet and Beauty and the Beast will be shown.

Jean Vigo's Zero de Conduite and L'Atalante will comprise the program on July 26; Le Million by Rene Clair will be seen Aug. 2 and Nazarin by Louis Bunuel on Aug. 9.

Programs will be accompanied by short subjects by Chaplin, Dali and others.

As there are only 99 seats available, those wishing to attend should get their tickets as early as possible at Munro's Bookstore or the accounting office at the university.

Warm Reception Given Preview Of Festival

Victoria Kiwanis Club had a special preview of Victoria Shakespeare Festival Tuesday.

Dramatic highlights from one of the festival's productions, Richard III, were presented by well-known performers, Anthony Jenkins (Richard III), Jennifer Chaster and Margaret Martin (Queen Margaret and Queen Elizabeth) and Bastion Theatre studio director, Peter Mannering.

The preview, in the Empress Hotel, was a good warm-up for the actors, who open at the festival on Thursday.

Richard III is one of the productions of the University of Victoria which is organizing the festival.

A Midsummer Night's Dream and the Alchemist will be presented later in the series.

And if the warm reception the preview received from Kiwanians is anything to go by the festival should be an outstanding success.

BRIDGE LESSON

The East-West cards aren't shown because it is up to you—as South—to plan your whole campaign at three no-trump before you play from dummy.

3♠	Pass	3 N.T.	Pass

Opening lead—♣7.

You count eight easy tricks and at least four more if you can finesse successfully for the king of diamonds. Therefore, you have a fair play for a slam, but your contract is three no-trump and you want to find the safety play for that contract.

What can you do if you lose the diamond finesse?

You have to keep the opponents from cashing more than three club tricks.

The seven spot looks like a fourth best lead. If it is fourth best of five or six you are in danger. What can you do about this danger?

It turns out to be that you can't do anything if that seven spot lead was fourth best of a five-card suit headed by the ace, but you can protect yourself against a six-card suit headed by the ace by the simple expedient of playing low from both your hand and dummy. Assuming that another low club is played at trick two, you have to win the trick and take that diamond finesse.

In this case, if the finesse loses, East won't be able to return a club and you will make the rest of the tricks.

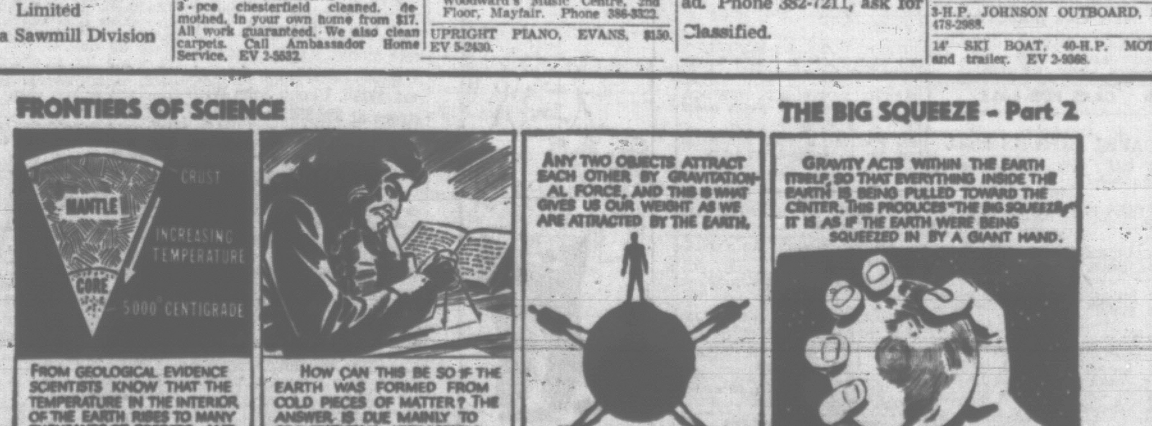
FRONTIERS OF SCIENCE

THE BIG SQUEEZE - Part 2



FROM GEOLOGICAL EVIDENCE SCIENTISTS KNOW THAT THE TEMPERATURE IN THE INTERIOR OF THE EARTH RISES TO MANY THOUSANDS OF DEGREES AND THAT MUCH OF THE CENTRAL CORE IS MOLTEN.

HOW CAN THIS BE SO IF THE EARTH WAS FORMED FROM COLD PIECES OF MATTER? THE ANSWER IS DUE MAINLY TO GRAVITATIONAL ATTRACTION — FIRST RECOGNIZED BY SIR ISAAC NEWTON.

ANY TWO OBJECTS ATTRACT EACH OTHER BY GRAVITATIONAL FORCE, AND THIS IS WHAT GIVES US OUR WEIGHT AS WE ARE ATTRACTED BY THE EARTH.

GRAVITY ACTS WITHIN THE EARTH ITSELF, SO THAT EVERYTHING INSIDE THE EARTH IS BEING PULLED TOWARD THE CENTER. THIS PRODUCES "THE BIG SQUEEZE." IT IS AS IF THE EARTH WERE BEING SQUEEZED IN BY A GIANT HAND.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

At 7 a.m. rising time any day of the week is a bit unnerving but necessary to keep the wolf away from the door. Doing it on a Saturday morning, in most cases, has to fall into the unusual class. But early rising was the order of the day for an unusual children's program. Captain Kangaroo was entertaining on Channel 7.

Stephen

Most children's shows of this stripe are hard to swallow and, in particular, at this time of the morning. Luckily, Captain Kangaroo or Bob Keeshan, as he is known in real life, makes it as painless as possible.

It has to have something on its side when you realize that the program is in its ninth year on CBS-TV and is watched weekday and Saturday mornings by some 7,000,000 people.

Keeshan, who was Clarabelle the Clown on the old Howdy Doody Show for five years, holds some strong and studied views on what programs for moppets should be, and his overriding thought is to cater to a child's intelligence.

He, therefore, occasionally wanders into discussions of atomic energy, the United Nations, the St. Lawrence Seaway or the art of glass blowing.

Keeshan also has six major "don'ts" for his early-morning viewers: preaching, talking down, slapstick, terror, violence and cruelty, not necessarily in that order.

The program has won many awards from countless educational and parental groups and a Peabody Award for having the outstanding children's program on television.

He wears a wig and moustache on the show but is really a relatively young man of 36. The image that appears on camera evolved for a definite reason.

A grandfatherly figure was chosen because in most cases a child's relationship with his grandparents is a loving and trusting one. Grandparents are usually present on happy occasions and hardly ever associated in a child's mind with discipline or displeasure.

From this viewer's standpoint the main factor in the program's favor is that it doesn't underrate the intelligence of children. The show caters to young people from 2 to 7 or 8. Such youngsters' interests are varied and easily aroused. Few subjects are beyond their grasp when presented on a level they can comprehend and appreciate.

Captain Kangaroo seems to accomplish this objective with ease.

* * *

BITS: Cinderella, the only original musical ever written for television by the famed team of Richard Rodgers and the late Oscar Hammerstein II, will be seen as a CBS-TV special in the spring of '65 . . . British statesman Anthony Eden will be interviewed this week for future presentation on The Twentieth Century. He'll discuss Munich (over which he resigned in 1938 as foreign minister in protest against the appeasement of the Axis Powers), the Suez crisis of 1957, two world wars and the world today.

72-YEAR-OLD

He's King Of Saanich Raspberrymen

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Saanich Fruit Growers' Association officials were skeptical when Charles Wootten, 6154 Patricia Bay Highway, claimed the best raspberries in the capital region.

But when they inspected his plantation this week, they admitted they had never seen berries as large and canes so heavy with fruit.

The canes, growing thickly in rows eight feet wide, are between six and eight feet tall and bearing berries above normal size.

THREE TONS

The 72-year-old English-born farmer hopes to pick three tons of berries from his patch, a little less than an acre in size.

The crop, of course, will depend on weather conditions between now and the end of July. Hot, humid weather would add weight to the fruit.

"Raspberries need plenty of moisture and protection from hot, dry winds," he said. "The weather so far has been fairly good for both fruit and growth."

The farmer settled on his present six-acre farm about 30 years ago when the district was mostly wooded. He is the father of Roy Wootten, Saanich licence inspector.

KEEN RIDER

His one hobby is horseback riding. He is a member of the Garden City Horsemen Club and every year joins members on their annual 100-mile cross-country ride.

Raspberry picking is in full swing this week in Saanich and the Gulf Islands. The total crop is expected to yield about 36,000 pounds of fruit.

Gone Fishin' Order Passed For Prisoner

The B.C. cabinet is letting a man out of jail to go fishing.

He is Phillip Parnell of Masset, jailed six months for being in possession of liquor when he shouldn't—he was on the interdict list.

Parnell's term was due to expire Sept. 19.

But the cabinet Tuesday issued an order authorizing his release now.

It was a case "where executive clemency should be exercised" the cabinet declared.

The reason: Parnell is a commercial fisherman and his ability to support a wife and family depends on what he can earn during the summer months.

Funeral Today For Happy Valley Needle Artist

Funeral service for well-known Happy Valley resident, Mrs. Helen Sanderson Flatman, was being held today in Gordon United Church with Rev. W. Druten and Rev A. G. Atkins officiating.

Mrs. Flatman, who was well known for her knitting and needlework, operated a store at 3208 Happy Valley Road for 27 years with her husband, David.

Her needlework won prizes at exhibitions and fairs across the country from Toronto to lower Vancouver Island.

She was a life member of Gordon United Church and an active member in community work including the Red Cross.

She is survived by the husband and son, Roy, and a brother, John McBain, all of Victoria, and four grandchildren.

Charity Deduction Starts Next Year For Civil Service

The provincial government has agreed to make payroll deductions for charity.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black said Tuesday the plan will start in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster next Jan. 1. It may later be extended to the rest of the province.

Committees in each area administer the charity fund. They will be composed of three members appointed by the government and two from the B.C. Government Employees' Association and two from civil service professional associations.

It's strictly voluntary, Mr. Black said.

St. Laurent Ends Voyage Around World

HALIFAX (CP)—The navy's 2,600-ton destroyer-escort St. Laurent arrived in port here Saturday after a 31,000-mile journey around the world.

Second of seven ships to undergo major conversion to its role in Canada's anti-submarine fleet, the St. Laurent sailed into Halifax harbor to assume her new post in the Atlantic Command following a transfer from the West Coast.

She had been at sea more than six months since leaving Esquimalt, B.C., along with the destroyer-escorts Mackenzie and Fraser, Jan. 7 to participate in fleet exercises in the Indian Ocean.

The St. Laurent visited Pearl Harbor, the Phillipines, Singapore, Malaysia, the holiday island of Penang, Ceylon and Pakistan.

"One of the highlights of our trip was our visit to Israel because of the manner in which the people received us there," Cmdr. Denis David Lee said. The St. Laurent also called at ports in Turkey, Greece, Italy, England.

Skin Divers Donate Fish To Indians

Skin divers Sunday turned over 566 pounds of fish to residents of West Saanich Indian Reserve following their seventh annual international spear-fishing tournament at Brentwood.

Twenty Island skin diving clubs were matched against divers from the lower mainland and Washington state.

Winners were teams from the Puget Sound Blackfish Club of Seattle which placed first and second in aggregate weight of fish caught.

The Victoria Skin [illegible]ing Club team of Bill and Alan Hook and Bob Smith placed third.

WOOING SOUTHERN WHITES

Negro Vote Abandoned In Goldwater Strategy

By BEN W. GILBERT
The Washington Post

SAN FRANCISCO — Barry Goldwater four years ago told a Richmond, Va., audience the Republican party could not get the votes of American Negroes, and that, although he felt discrimination to be wrong, he thought the party should get the votes where it could find them.

FORMER Negro baseball great Jackie Robinson, who supported Richard Nixon for president in 1960, said Tuesday night he would vote for President Johnson next November if Sen. Barry Goldwater is the GOP presidential candidate.

The events of this convention make it likely that Goldwater as the GOP nominee will get few, if any, Negro votes. In fact, Negro leaders here are starting to talk about forming a Negro Republican group for Lyndon B. Johnson, a tactic which will permit them to stay in the Republican party to vote for such liberals as Sen. Kenneth Keating of New York.

It is really astonishing to contemplate Negro Republicans voting en masse for Mr. Johnson when one recalls the attitude toward him of many Negro leaders of both parties before the 1960 Democratic convention at which he was nominated for vice-president.

ONLY 15 DELEGATES

Of the convention's 1,308 delegates, only 15 are Negro, just 1.1 per cent of the total. There are also 24 Negro alternates, but it is doubtful that many of them will get a chance to vote on any major issue.

The handling of the effort of George W. Lee, a Tennessee Negro, to reclaim a delegate seat which he held for six previous conventions is evidence of the little regard those controlling this meeting have for the Negro vote.

There had been a rules change in the Tennessee Republican organization which had the effect of unseating Lee. The 67-year-old Negro Republican received a respectful hearing before the credentials committee, but there was little disposition to go behind the Tennessee group's action, which he felt was discriminatory.

Nor has there been any disposition, either on the convention floor or in the rules committee, to adopt a standard of non-discrimination as a rule for accepting delegates.

Lee's supporters would have settled for such a rule even if it failed to get Lee a seat, but the convention so far is having none of it, since it would have offended some "lily white" southern delegations.

After he lost, Lee commented: "It means us old line (Negro) Republicans in the south are on the way out. Republicanism in the south is getting so popular, we are not needed any more."

The hostile treatment accorded George A. Parker, the Washington, D.C., delegate who attempted to question Sen. Goldwater on civil rights, is further evidence of the atmosphere here on the Negro vote issue.

All Parker, who is 78, was doing was trying to get some language which he could take back to Washington to tell his "constituents" that things were really not too bad in San Francisco. He got nothing for his pains.

In Washington, nine of 10 Negro voters are registered in the Democratic party. Since Goldwater has no real hope of making a dent in the district's Negro electorate, he had no need to give their representatives anything to take back.

His action did not go unnoticed among southern white delegates, nor will it be overlooked in those suburban areas elsewhere where the so-called "white backlash" vote is believed to be crucial.

NOT MUCH HOPE

Actually, based on 1960 experience, the party of Lincoln has not had much hope of getting any substantial number of Negro voters either in the south where it is still of relatively little importance, or in the north where it has been captured by urban democratic machines.

As far as the south is concerned, however, the party is taking long strides away from the days when the GOP provided the only home for southern Negro politicians.

It now appears that Negroes are beginning to vote in large numbers in some major southern cities, notably Atlanta. Some southern Democratic politicians have conceded privately that they are prepared to court the Negro vote once it becomes important.

We may soon be witnessing the curious situation of southern Negro voters feeling cold-shouldered out of the Republican party, their home since reconstruction, and being welcomed into the Democratic party, at least the urban portions of it.

Parker's exchange set the stage for the platform committee to write a civil rights pledge which was more pleasing to southern delegates than to northern liberals, both Negro and white.

It is another paradox of this convention that this should have happened only a few short weeks after the Republican leadership provided the necessary votes in the Senate to insure passage of the most far reaching civil rights measure since reconstruction days.

WALLACE 'IN RACE TO STAY'

LITLE ROCK, Ark., (UPI)—Vowing "we're going to shake this country up," Alabama Gov. George Wallace told a crowd of cheering segregationists Tuesday night they could swing the balance in the presidential election.

Earlier, Wallace said he is in the presidential race to stay, whether Sen. Barry Goldwater's forces ask him to pull out or not. Some Goldwater backers feel Wallace could draw votes away from their candidate in southern states.

Wallace spoke to a rally of 2,000 sponsored by the Capitol White Citizens Council. He said both Republican and Democratic leaders are afraid of his bid.

"They are trembling in their boots, both parties, at this very minute," he said.

hearing should not be used as a forum for discussion which go beyond the competence of the commission."

Mayor Wilson declined to comment on the PUC statement, but one civic source said it "appears the squeeze is on."

Friday morning's meeting in Vancouver will see mayors and reeves of the eight municipalities holding BCE franchises reviewing progress since their first meeting planned to hire experts to draft briefs on the transist question.

It will also plan the next moves in the light of PUC hearings set for July 27 in Vancouver and Aug. 5 in Victoria despite the fact that Victoria council's request for details from the B.C. Hyro regarding its request has not answered yet.

Mayor Rathie declined to forecast what would be contained in the municipal brief but Burnaby Reeve Emmott said he understood the argument that a built-in $35,000,000 discount to the government for the losing bus operations was included in Chief Justice Sherwood Lett's judgment setting the fair market value of BCE.

"I feel it's a valid submission in the case of the municipalities in respect to transit fares," said Reeve Emmott to a Vancouver reporter.

MORESBY HOUSE

CPO' Mess Set Up At Old Inn

The chief petty officers of the Pacific Command have found a new home for their mess at Moresby House on Esquimalt Road.

They were given permission to renovate the historic building, built at the turn of the century as the Coach and Horses Inn, at a cost of $25,000.

Moresby House has previously served as an apartment house before the navy took it over and turned it into headquarters for HMCS Malahat, Victoria's Naval reserve division.

It was last used as WREN's accommodation quarters.

The building's main floor has been redecorated to include a walnut panelled entrance which leads to the main lounge, a large room in which the original Coach and Horses fireplace has been retained, and a dance floor and bandstand added.

Immediately adjacent is the dining room which can seat 50 persons and a panelled "stag" bar.

The second floor contains sleeping facilities for 15 persons, a TV room, plus space to establish two dormitories if more sleeping accommodations are needed.

Vice-Admiral Herbert S. Rayner, chief of naval staff, was presented with a life membership in the mess when he planted a dogwood tree in front of the building during his farewell visit to Pacific Command last week.

The chief's mess was previously located on Lockley Road behind the recreation building at HMC Dockyard.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—One of the last avenues of escape from Cuba—fishing boats—may be sealed off by a new regulation requiring guards to accompany fishermen, a newly-arrived exile said Wednesday. The refugee, Gilberto Hernandez, 23, said he and seven companions fled in a fishing boat shortly before the decree became effective.

JURY CLEARS KNIFE-TOTING SECRETARY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arlene Del Fava, the pretty secretary who stabbed a would-be rapist with a switchblade knife, was cleared by a grand jury today of a charge of possessing an illegal weapon.

Miss Del Fava, 27, was attacked July 5 as she walked home alone in the fashionable Forest Hills section of Queens Borough.

Her alleged attacker, Harold Modell, 20, was indicted by the same jury for felonious assault and attempted rape.

The girl was arrested on a charge of violating the state's Sullivan Law—a 53-year-old statute designed to keep dangerous weapons from the hands of criminals. Switchblade knives fall into this category.

MIKOYAN PRESIDENT OF SOVIET PARLIAMENT

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev resigned today and the Soviet parliament elected Anastas I. Mikoyan, veteran travelling salesman of the Kremlin, as his successor.

Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev proposed Mikoyan's appointment to a joint meeting of both houses of the Supreme Soviet, and it took only about three minutes for the 1,443 deputies to ratify the shift.

Khrushchev said the bushy-browed 57-year-old Brezhnev—widely-regarded as the Soviet Union's political crown prince—had quit to devote full time to his other job as a Communist party secretary. He serves as Khrushchev's chief lieutenant in this capacity.

Mikoyan, a 68-year-old Armenian, quit his job as a first deputy premier to move up to the presidency. Mikoyan, however, kept his key seat on the party's presidium, the Russian seat of power.

IN CENTRE OF POWER

Brezhnev's New Job Really a Step Ahead

MOSCOW (AP)—He has the solidly tough look of a Western steel engineer turned corporation manager. In a Soviet way, he is.

Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev is a metallurgist whose main profession has been Communist party work.

His retirement today from the figurehead job of Soviet president should help consolidate his reputed position as Premier Khrushchev's heir apparent.

With Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan succeeding him to the presidency, Brezhnev will spend his time working in the Communist party machinery, the centre of Soviet power.

The squarish, heavy - browed Brezhnev has been at the side of Khrushchev since 1938.

The 70-year-old premier is ebullient, bouncy, blunt and well informed on many subjects.

Brezhnev, 57, is more reserved, deliberate and friendly in a luncheon club manner. He also is well informed. Western diplomats who have talked at length with him were impressed by a sharp mind.

Brezhnev joined the party in 1931 at the age of 25. He worked only a short time as a steel engineer before concentrating on party work in his native Ukraine region, the scene of Khrushchev's own rise.

Brezhnev reached the upper rank as a party secretary and a candidate member of the central committee's presidium in 1952. But he lost the jobs in the reshuffle after Stalin died in March, 1953.

When Khrushchev defeated his rivals in 1956 and assumed general control, he put Brezhnev back into the secretariat and the presidium.

City Manager Calls Out 'Whoa' On Bastion Square Free Rides

City manager Dennis Young said Tuesday a number of community groups have the "mistaken impression that the city can provide unlimited accommodation for free in Bastion Square."

He said there is no thought of the city operating Bastion Square as a civic enterprise but only to give leadership in promoting its redevelopment by suitable private interests.

Mr. Young was commenting on a request from an Esquimalt resident, Jeanne Sheppard, asking that the city provide space for craftsmen to demonstrate and sell sculpture, copperwork, pottery and weaving in the square. Victoria Symphony Society also asked for space.

Mr. Young said apart from the Heaney Building the city has no accommodation to allocate in the square because it is privately owned. He said the Duncan Building, which the city sold to private interests, will have craft shops and the Sheppard request could go there.

"The whole point of this project is to revive Bastion Square and if it is merely going to become a city operation, it will fall flat on its face," he said.

Downtown improvement committee decided to consider both requests to see if any suitable space could be arranged.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow suggested the centre of the square could be filled up with kiosks for craftsmen but Mr. Young pointed out plans to be revealed next week provide for creation of an "urban park" in the square, including pathways, trees, and shrubs although no lawns.

Ald. Edgelow said there were too many landscaping projects being undertaken by the city "and it's for the birds as far as I'm concerned.

ACTIVITY WANTED

"I'd rather throw the landscaping out rather than this because we want activity there."

He said people are attracted to the totem carving in Thunderbird Park and this showed the pulling power of craftwork demonstrations.

However, committee decided to wait for the Bastion Square plans rather than ordering their revision before seeing them.

U.K. METHOD URGED

CBC Seeks to Change Broadcasting Setup

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC Tuesday proposed a radical reorganization of Canada's broadcasting industry in which both public and private broadcasters would operate on a "charter" basis and be directly responsible to Parliament.

The publicly-owned corporation also disclosed that in spite of an increased parliamentary grant and more advertising revenues, its total expenses still exceeded total income by $4,871,553 in the year ended March 31.

CBC president J. Alphonse Ouimet, in the corporation's annual report tabled in the Commons, called for a broadcasting setup similar to that under which the British Broadcasting Corporation operates.

The BBC is a publicly-owned organization established by royal charter. It is responsible to Parliament and its operations are examined every 10 years by a special committee, set up by Parliament prior to renewal of its charter.

AUTONOMOUS BODY

The BBC's revenues are set by Parliament for a long period and it is completely autonomous with respect to its programming and internal administration.

Britain's Independent Television Authority, responsible for commercial operations, also has direct responsibility to Parliament.

Mr. Ouimet said the CBC is willing to participate in talks with representatives of the various components of the broadcasting industry to help smooth operations. But the CBC did not think such discussions should replace "Canada's traditional and basic approach to broadcasting matters—the public inquiry."

"Such major public inquiries might very well establish the whole broadcasting system on a 'charter' basis for a period of perhaps 10 years, giving both the public and private sectors of the system a firm basis on which to operate during this period," his report says.

"This would do much to dissipate dissensions which have plagued Canadian broadcasting over the years and which have arisen largely from anxieties caused by uncertainty."

Smoke, Fly Ash Battleground Grows Larger

Victoria smoke committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow today said the time has arrived to carry the battle against smoke and fly-ash nuisance beyond the borders of the city.

He said complaints have dropped off lately about two beehive burners inside the city but have begun rising against a burner in View Royal and also burning practices of the naval depots in Esquimalt and Colwood.

He pointed out the city has adopted a prohibition against new burners and set a 1965 spring deadline for ending the use of the existing two "beehives."

"Until we had solved our own problems, we were in no position to ask the provincial government to do something about the nuisance sources in unorganized areas," he said.

"I think the time is ripe now to seek government action because this nuisance does not respect jurisdictional boundaries and in fact it is drifting over the city quite often from outside areas."

AT UVIC RESIDENCES

House Rules Calm Parents

By AB KENT

Women students living-in at University of Victoria's first residences will have a framework of trial "house rules" to live by, even though the two blocks will be self-governing.

Student council and Uvic housing co-ordinator Mrs. Phoebe Noble have agreed that a loose framework of regulation should be put into effect for the first few weeks of residence occupancy in September.

After that, it is expected that the residence council, elected from among occupants, will have set its own standards.

The move to outline a few suggestions beforehand was taken to reassure parents of young women from points outside Victoria.

LIBERAL SCOPE

It was intended that students living in residence will be strictly responsible for their own behavior within a liberal scope, just as the Alma Mater Society makes general student conduct on campus a matter for individual concern.

Residences are in final stages of construction and furnishing just east of the student union building on the outside rim of Gordon Head campus ring road.

Each block, with full basement and three floors above ground, will accommodate 75 women, including a director of residences and senior students acting as dons and advisors.

Eventually, additional buildings will form a quad in which a central dining and activity area may be located.

The first two blocks have a tan stucco and stone chip, precast concrete and natural stone facing, and are connected via a first-floor covered concourse atop an earth and rock bank several feet above ground level.

Gas Fells Workmen

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — At least 26 employees at Scott Paper Company's Mobile plant were poisoned Sunday night with chlorine gas, one man fatally, plant officials said. The dead man was Walter Jordan, 34, brother of all-America football player Leroy Jordan of Alabama. E. L. Giffen, personnel supervisor at Scott, said the poisoning occurred when a diaphragm burst at the Scott pulp mill.

INCLUDED IN ACTS at historic Barkerville's restored Theatre Royal which opened its third season last week are Victorians Charles Courtier, operator of a Punch and Judy Show, and dancers Susan Francis and Dorothy Hosie. Opening night guests included L. J. Wallace, chairman of the Barkerville restoration advisory committee; former recreational and conservation minister Earle Westwood, Cariboo MLA W. C. Spears and Mayor A. V. Fraser of Quesnel who is president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities. The old-time musical variety show is produced by Professor Fran Dowie of Haney.

'Average Crop'

TORONTO (CP) — Western Canada's wheat crop should be between 500,000,000 and 550,000,000 bushels this year, A. M. Runciman, president of United Grain Growers Limited of Winnipeg, said Tuesday. He said the output would be down from the record 730,000,000 bushels in 1963 but would still be a good average crop.

VICTORIA BLOOM IN THICK OF IT

Things Are Far From Rosy

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Canadian-bred rose on display here has three United States rivals in a touchy dispute over the selection of an official rose for Canada's 1967 centenary.

On view at the annual convention of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association is a pink and cream flower developed by Fred Blakeney of Victoria.

The association is backing the flower as the official centennial rose. Delegates voted here to name it "Miss Canada."

At the same time Rotary clubs in Canada are conducting a contest among three U.S. varieties to produce a contender.

Len Cullen of Willowdale, Ont., retiring president of the Nursery Trades Association, said in an interview it would be "absolutely silly" for a U.S. rose to become a Canadian emblem.

"The nurserymen's rose is born and bred in Canada," he said. "We do not think Canada should have an imported American rose for her centennial."

NO DECISION

Mr. Cullen said the Canadian centennial committee has made no decision yet on an official rose.

Officials said a Montreal rose fancier, J. G. McIntyre, interested Rotary clubs in sponsoring the contest among the U.S. varieties.

Under the plan, clubs would arrange for sites where the rose would be displayed and the public would make the final choice.

The plan was started by the Montreal Lake Shore Rotary but Mr. Cullen said not all Canadian Rotary clubs are participating.

A spokesman for Winnipeg Rotary said the service clubs would get a share of the profits from subsequent sales of a selected U.S. rose.

However, Winnipeg Rotary stayed outside the plan because it was thought the amount of money that could be raised was not worth the effort.

SAIGON (AP) — A Communist Viet Cong battalion ambushed a government truck convoy rumbling into a South Viet Nam valley Tuesday, killing 17 and wounding 21. It was the second major ambush in two days.

Monday three American officers and 16 Vietnamese were killed north of Saigon in an ambush.

GOP Turns Solidly to Right As Goldwater Win Assured

Moderates Lose Platform Battle

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—A tidal wave of conservative strength has crushed all hopes of the moderates led by Governor William Scranton to reform the Republican platform, setting the convention stage tonight for the nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the party's 1964 presidential candidate.

Every appeal by moderates to have the Republican national convention strengthen the civil rights plank in the Goldwater-flavored platform, denounce political extremists by name and ensure that the president of the United States retains control over all nuclear weapons was shouted down in an uproarious, cat-calling, foot-stomping session that wound up early today.

The voting indicated the conservatives or right-wing of the party had taken firm control of the convention and that Goldwater would get a hefty first-ballot victory over Scranton, the Pennsylvania governor.

Today's convention session was scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p.m. PDT (5:30 p.m. EDT), but there was no indication as to when balloting would start, except that it probably would take place late in the night. There were numerous speeches and business matters to be taken up, plus demonstrations for each candidate nominated.

A minimum of 655 of the 1,308 delegate nominating votes are required for victory and Goldwater claimed more than 800 vote pledges with more rolling in.

An Associated Press survey showed that Goldwater headed into nomination day with 805 votes while Scranton had 169.

A number of other formal opponents would get a fraction of the votes. These would include Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Senator Hiram Fong of Hawai, former representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, former governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota and Michigan Governor George Romney.

Tension High During Floor Fight

Scranton's forces admitted the platform-mending defeat showed there is virtually nothing the moderates can do to stop Goldwater.

The convention uproar Tuesday night was so great that at one time police were forced to restrain photographers and reporters from the floor, clearing the aisles in fear that tensions would spark clashes.

Outside the Cow Palace, where the convention went into its third day today, demonstrators for and against Goldwater circled in front of the entrance while a 50-man police force watched a racial demonstration by whites and Negroes continued for more than nine hours—the length of the convention session—and finally snake-dancing, chanting teen-agers fell to the pavement, blocking some of the exits as weary delegates left the arena.

This was the beginning of "civil disobedience" by members of the Congress of Racial Equality in protest against the "weak" and "vague" plank on civil rights.

A number of Negro delegates and alternates still toyed with the idea of walking out of the convention if Goldwater captures the nomination. Others said they were against a walkout but they wouldn't work for the Goldwater team in the November election campaign. Republican Jackie Robinson, former Negro baseball star, said he would switch his vote to President Johnson.

Most significant of the actions taken on the platform was the 897-to-409 vote by which the delegates rejected a Scranton-backed proposal to amend a plank which promised imple-

TALKS END

Kashmir Causes Flare-Up

LONDON (CP)—A confused flareup over Kashmir caused an incident as Commonwealth prime ministers neared the end of their 13th conference today.

An Indian spokesman called a press conference to accuse a conference briefing officer of "deliberate mischief" in reporting earlier that Kashmir was discussed at a morning session during a debate on India-Pakistan relations.

The 18-country conference was in closed session discussing its communique when R. M. Maitra, Indian delegation spokesman, called reporters together and unleashed his blast about Kashmir.

He denied that Kashmir had been discussed as had been reported by the briefing officer and several other sources. Asked whether these sources—including Canadians—were telling lies Maitra merely repeated that Kashmir was not discussed.

Wording of the Rhodesian section earlier produced some hard bargaining among senior officials drafting the communique. One key argument involved the phraseology of a Canadian "declaration of racial equality," submitted Monday by Prime Minister Pearson.

This morning's discussion of Kashmir suggested a new conciliatory climate between India and Kashmir.

U.K. Fascist Roughs Up Kenya Leader

LONDON (AP)—A man who said he was a member of the British Fascist party rushed at Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya today as he left his hotel.

A police constable intervened and all three men landed in a heap against the automobile waiting to take Kenyatta to a session of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

Martin Allen Webster, 21-year-old London clerk, was booked on three charges of assault on the police, using threatening behavior with intent to provoke a breach of the peace and assaulting Kenyatta.

Kenyatta, in his 70s, went back inside the hotel and a spokesman said he was not injured. Fifteen minutes later he left for the Commonwealth session.

The attack occurred during a demonstration against Kenyatta outside the hotel by members of the British Fascist party, a splinter political group.

The Kenya government later protested officially to Britain against the attack.

Kenneth Meadows, spokesman for the Kenya delegation, said that the complaints were over "a lack of adequate security precautions."

Times Series Bolsters Fare Hike Opposition

Times City Hall Reporter

Tempo of preparations for the coming clash on B.C. Hydro's proposed bus fare hikes quickened overnight, some of them swirling around a Times series contending the government already has received a $35,000,000 consideration for bus deficits.

Mayor R. B. Wilson this morning said he has submitted clippings of the series to Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and expects they will be considered Friday morning at the second caucus of municipal leaders on the bus question.

Mayor Wilson also said he expects a Public Utilities Commission press release, seen by some as aimed at part of the Times series, will be discussed too.

Burnaby Reeve Alan Emmott already has been quoted as saying that the $35,000,000 contention will be incorporated in the brief being prepared by a joint municipal group that plans to meet with the provincial cabinet.

Besides issuing its surprise statement—warning that it will only consider the authority's transit operation and inviting opponents of the increase to divide themselves into special interest classes to plead their cases separately—the PUC set its Victoria area hearings for Aug. 5 at 10 a.m. in the Law Courts Building.

'MISUNDERSTANDING'

The PUC statement, made the day after the Times series ended, said correspondence from interested parties "indicates that there is some misunderstanding as to the scope of its proposed hearing and as to the powers of the commission."

It pointed out that the B.C. Hydro was removed from its jurisdiction and the transit hearings are based on an order-in-council limiting the rate structure scrutiny to buses only.

"It must be clearly recognized that the commission has no power over any B.C. Hydro and Power Authority rates other than those for the transit services in the areas governed by the franchises."

The PUC said it has no power to force anyone to subsidize the buses although the B.C. Hydro could do this voluntarily.

Perhaps significantly, it suggested that the municipalities themselves could pay direct subsidies to the transit authority if they chose.

The statement said that the public is involved as well as the hydro authority and the municipalities because it pays the fares.

"A number of protests have been received against the proposed fares for special classes of passenger, such as children, students or old-age pensioners," it said.

The statement said it was one of the PUC's functions to ensure that fares are fair as between different classes and therefore:

"It will be prudent for any group seeking a reduction in some class of transit rates to indicate clearly from what other transit rates they think the revenue can be replaced."

The PUC said its discretionary powers were defined by a Supreme Court of Canada decision which concerned the privately-owned B.C. Electric at a time when the PUC was bound to treat all the utility's services as a unit "and could, therefore, make use of electrical rates to reduce transit rates.

NOT ANY MORE

"Finally, the commission has nothing whatever to do with what may happen to transit services when the franchise agreements terminate and the

SOVIET BIDS FOR PARLEY WITH CHINA

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today called on the Chinese Communist Party anew to join in an international conference aimed at settling their ideological differences.

The Soviets proposed that "in the immediate future we should agree in principle that a meeting must be convened and that it should not be put off for long."

Peking has previously dismissed an early world Communist parley and told Russia it may take from four to five years to prepare for it.

Triple Murder Missing Links Being Sought

MISSION (CP) — Joe Sauriol, chief of the Mission municipal police, said today his force is trying to uncover five missing links that may clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of three youths near here Sunday.

Chief Sauriol said no motive for the triple murder has been established and the murder weapon, believed to be a .22-calibre rifle owned by one of the dead youths, is still missing.

He said two people who were in the area of the slayings are being sought for any information they may yield to clear up the mystery.

Also being sought is any person who saw a 1961 black convertible being driven from an isolated lake, about six miles north of here where the youths were killed, to the highway here early Sunday.

Police also hope any motorist who picked up a hitchhiker between Sumas and Surrey will come forward. The convertible, owned by one of the victims, was found abandoned at Sumas.

Douks Defy Order To Leave Camp

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some 500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors remained encamped at Agassiz, 45 miles east of here, today as the deadline passed on a Kent municipal order to move on.

The municipality had posted notices at the makeshift camp reading: "Municipal property. Anyone found settling or camping arbitrarily on these lands after July 15 will be prosecuted."

Kent reeve James Fraser declined comment Tuesday night on council's plan of action. Frank Wilson, municipal solicitor, said he had been given no instructions.

The sect moved to Agassiz last summer to be near brethren serving sentences in Mountain Prison for acts of terrorism. The sect earlier abandoned farming settlements in southeastern B.C.

Dief Renews Demand For CBC Enquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker renewed in the Commons today a demand that a parliamentary committee inquire into CBC operations at this session.

The demand was again rejected by State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to the Commons on broadcasting matters.

The minister noted that he had announced in May establishment of an advisory committee to study broadcasting and possible amendments to broadcasting legislation. The government hoped to have the legislation ready for parliament next year, when a Commons committee could be set up.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the CBC annual report, tabled Tuesday, suggests a public inquiry into broadcasting on a charter basis. The CBC received $80,000,000 a year from parliament which should not be "evaded in this way."

Mr. Lamontagne said full opportunity will be given to consider any changes.

WIRE BRIEFS

Robarts Stays Out

TORONTO (UPI) — Ontario Premier John Roberts today ruled out the possibility of government intervention in the six-day International Typographical Union strike against three Toronto newspapers. Parties in the dispute are scheduled to meet in Labor Minister Rowntree's office again Thursday.

U.K. A-Test Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—A British nuclear device will be tested underground in Nevada in the near future, it was announced today. The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced plans for the test without giving a precise date.

Satellite Launched

LONDON (Reuters)—An artificial earth satellite, Cosmos 35, was launched by the Soviet Union today, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Test Flight Crash

ANSBACH (AP)—A Boeing 720 jet airliner of West Germany's Lufthansa Airlines crashed today on a test flight, killing all three persons aboard.

Mail Strike Spreads

LONDON (AP) — A wildcat strike by 3,000 postmen at London's huge central sorting office spread Tuesday night to eastern England where another 450 walked off the job at Norwich.

Strike Threat

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Workers at the Celgar pulp mill near here have rejected a conciliation officer's proposals for settling a contract dispute.

John West, president of local 4 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada (Ind.), said Tuesday that a vote by 700 men at the mill clearly indicated the report has been rejected.

Pravda Fears GOP Platform Calls for War With Russia

LONDON (Reuters)—Pravda, the Russian Communist party newspaper, says today the Republican platform of Senator Barry Goldwater "in fact calls for war with the Soviet Union."

The program called for "open intervention in Cuba, stepping up the war in Viet Nam and the granting to NATO commanders of the right to use nuclear weapons on their own initiative," the newspaper comments.

It was not surprising, the newspaper adds, that the platform had "frightened even those who previously thought of Goldwater as a noisy but generally harmless fellow."

Pravda and other Moscow newspapers quote American press comment that "if his philosophy were put into practice it would be a catastrophe for the country and for the whole world."

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda says it was hard to find words to describe the Goldwater platform, which contained "the most harmful dreams of the Birchites of a 'decisive victory over communism.' "

Yugoslavia compares the platform with Nazi policies and declared Goldwater's "appetites" were "greater than Hitler's."

This comment by the official Yugoslav newspaper Borba is one of the sharpest attacks on the Republicans and the Arizona senator voiced in Europe on the day Goldwater is expected to capture the Republican nomination at San Francisco.

In likening sections of the party platform to the policies of Nazi Germany, Borba's editorial cites a section which it says pledged the Republicans to follow the road toward "final liberation of the nations of East Europe, Asia and Latin America."

Borba comments that the peoples of those areas had survived worse experiences "but seldom worse insults." It also describes the platform as a "most unscrupulous attempt to interfere in internal affairs of all countries, including ours."

In Britain, former president Eisenhower draws newspaper fire along with the platform and Goldwater.

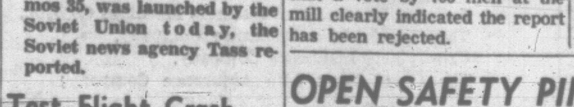
Daily Express reporter Rene MacColl writes from San Francisco: "When the embers of this hate-ridden Republican convention get raked into the cold ashes of history, the man who will probably emerge in the worst light is ex-president Dwight Eisenhower."

MacColl charges that Eisenhower "has behaved so badly that he has dealt his reputation and prestige a most grievous blow."

The article says he "blew hot and cold" before the convention and later assured Governor William Scranton he "would 'probably' support him — but then didn't."

"Now, on top of that, Eisenhower pops up in San Francisco as a radio-TV analyst of the whole thing, at a reputed fee of £18,000 ($54,000).

"In the eyes of nearly everyone this is a lapse of good taste and judgment that is little short of appalling."



What's with St. Swithin? Even sounds like rain.

The Republicans and the Commonwealth seem to have a different approach to a similar problem.

OPEN SAFETY PIN IN LUNG FOR 14 YEARS

Now She's a Pin-Up Girl at 37

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mrs. Virginia Leavy, attractive, 37-year-old mother of two, had an open safety pin in her lung for 14 years but didn't know it.

Doctors at Pittsburgh's Mercy Hospital removed it and Tuesday Mrs. Leavy sat on the edge of her hospital bed and said she felt fine.

Mrs. Leavy, of nearby Greensburg, said she swallowed the pin in 1949 or 1950—"I'm not sure which" — while preparing her infant son for a trip.

"I held the open pin in my mouth for a minute while dressing him—you know, one of those small, gold-colored pins for ribbons and things," she said.

Then she swallowed it—still open. She tried to cough it up. She called a doctor, who told her it would probably pass out of her system and not to worry as long there was no pain.

Mrs. Leavy pursued an active life during the next year, swimming, playing badminton, hiking, doing housework and smoking.

Last month after a busy day she "suddenly felt something in my chest."

When she started coughing up blood she called her doctor. A chest x-ray followed and located the pin in her lung, still open.

At first, doctors passed a bronchoscope—a narrow, tube-like instrument — through her mouth and windpipe. The bronchoscope was monitored by television.

Aided by the bronchoscope, doctors reached into her lung with a special forceps. But the pin, which had become embedded in tissue, wouldn't move. The head broke and was withdrawn.

That was a week ago. Monday they tried again and in a slow, painstaking manoeuvre brought the pin up. It was badly rusted.

How to Buy the Centre of Toronto—Secretly

TORONTO (CP)—The story of how two Toronto real estate men master-minded the purchase of land for the Toronto-Dominion Bank centre in the heart of the city without tipping their principals' hand would make many mystery novels dull reading in comparison.

Between the early part of 1962 and the fall of 1963 fewer than a dozen persons in Canada knew that the Toronto-Dominion Bank and Cemp Investments Limited were interested in a block bounded by King, Bay, Wellington and York streets as the site of their $125,000,000 centre.

"The centre will be a huge real estate complex which is planned to include two office buildings Construction has started and is to be completed by 1967.

Brian Magee and Gordon Gray of A. E. LePage Limited arranged the land assembly.

If word of the project leaked out prices would have skyrocketed, so Mr. Magee and Mr. Gray used numerous subterfuges—including changing lawyers, getting other real estate companies to bid against them and, in one case, renovating a building they knew would be torn down—to complete the 38 deals involving a total of $15,000,000.

"If word had got out, any one of a hundred people could have held us up for millions of dollars," Mr. Magee said in an interview. "In land assembly, close doesn't count. If someone refused to sell, there goes your project just like that."

REPORT ONE SLIP-UP

The only slip-up came when the principals released the story of the project to the press after the agents had come to an agreement with one owner, but before they had his signature. The owner walked away $250,000 richer.

Occasionally an owner banked with the Toronto - Dominion Bank, bringing about the bizarre turn of events in which a bank manager would tell him to hold out for more money.

The big ace in the hole was that the agents were working for corporations that could afford to pay cash for their purchases.

"An option is a dead giveaway that an assembly is taking place," Mr. Magee said. "We paid cash, not only because we had it, but because we knew that the property we were buying could be resold at the same price or better if the over-all project fell through."

Prices paid varied from $19 a square foot to $350

Once the purchase had been made the agents had to pursuade as many as 100 tenants to give up their leases in a building.

"There were endless numbers of people in a little $50-a-month offices on Wellington Street, Mr. Gray recalled. "Any one of them could have held up the entire project. They could have demanded cash and retired for life. None of them did. Our secret stayed secret."

MARKET SUMMARIES

On the Up-Trend Market Remains

The stock market continued its rising trend at Toronto with speculative activity brightening.

Speculative activity also increased at Montreal as industrials gained narrowly and a slight rise at New York later vanished.

AT TORONTO Windfall gained 50 cents at $4.25 on volume of over 384,000 shares while Leitch rose 35 cents to $5.30.

Glenn Uranium, with property in the Timmins area, dropped 11 cents to 43 cents. Company president P. C. A. Giardine said today the firm had not encountered any sulphides or mineralization of its land. The stock rose from 27 to 85 cents within 20 minutes yesterday on rumors.

Other speculative gains saw United Canso rise 32 cents to $2.23.

Liquors, foods, utilities and banks paced industrials. Montreal and Toronto - Dominion rose ⅛ each among banks, while Distillers-Seagram and Molson A gained ¼ among liquors. Molson B rose ⅓.

Investors Syndicate A gained 1¼ to 69, a new high, after announcement of a proposed five-for-one stock split. Federal grain gained $3 to $93 in light trading.

AT MONTREAL B.C. Forest and DuPont were up ½ each. Dofasco ¼, and CPR, Dominion Bridge and Noranda ⅛ each.

Hawker Siddeley declined ¼ and Consolidated Paper, Home Oil B and Domtar ⅛ each.

In speculative mines, Fano and White Star lost two cents each, also one cent, and Porcupine Prime ½ cent. Mistango River, Opemiska Exploration and Copperstream added one cent each.

AT NEW YORK the market has given given up ground in the last two sessions following Friday's rise to historic peaks.

FMC Corp. was a leading contender for the top of the most active list, mainly on a 48,000 share block. Other active issues included RCA, up around ½ and Occidental Petroleum, ahead more than one.

Among Canadian issues traded Canadian Pacific gained ⅜, International Nickel and Walker Gooderham, Distillers Seagrams ½ and Dome Mines ¼. Aluminum Ltd. lost ⅜ and Granby Mining ⅛.

AT LONDON the general upward trend was maintained in London stock markets today. The pace was slower and mail delays kept business light. Gilts improved in places.

U.S. dollar stocks eased afresh but Canadians made headway with Trans Canada Pipe and Algoma prominent.

Canadian banks were firm but home issues were easier where changed.

AT VANCOUVER trading was moderate. Bethlehem Copper was down at $6.55 while Crown Silver was up at .15½. National Ex. climbed to .26 and Western Mines to $4.60. Forest was up at $32⅜ and Interior Brew at $8.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Grain exchange prices maintained a firm undertone in moderately active trade today. Early selling appeared in all grains, reflecting rainfalls in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

150 Mayors From Quebec To Get Bang-Up Welcome Here

A warm welcome with full civic honors will be planned for 150 mayors from Quebec flying here in November for their annual post-convention seminar.

Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee Tuesday authorized Mayor R. B. Wilson to start planning the reception program for the "historic" event.

It will be the first time that the Quebec Union of Municipalities will hold its seminar outside of its own province, and the step is being taken in a deliberate effort to increase understanding between French and English-speaking Canadians.

Victoria was chosen, a letter from QUM read to the committee said, in gratitude to Mayor Wilson's friendliness to a visiting QUM delegation here earlier this year. (The mayor spoke in French of the desire here for Canadian unity when he introduced the visitors to city council.)

Exact dates of the QUM seminar have not been set but it will be a November weekend, the letter indicated.

Saanich Coun. Joseph Casey said the areas "should go overboard" in welcoming the Quebec mayors and other committee members agreed the event might prove one of the historic turning points in biculturalism.

DR. TAYLOR

BILINGUALLY SPEAKING

Uvic President Getting in Step

Victoria's new university president has hopes of making French his second language, just like his predecessor and his registrar.

Dr. Malcolm Taylor, who became University of Victoria chief executive July 1, is spending six weeks at Laval University summer school, Quebec City, learning French.

Dr. W. H. Hickman, who was acting president and who is head of the department of modern languages, is fluent in French, as is registrar R. R. Jeffels. All three are natives of English-speaking Alberta.

Dr. Taylor's recently appointed right-hand man, executive assistant Dr. M. H. Scargill, former dean of arts and science at Calgary's University of Alberta campus where Dr. Taylor was principal, is a linguistics expert.

The three top men together will constitute a triumvirate of communication-sensitive leaders.

In Quebec, where he was interviewed, Dr. Taylor said: "I believe firmly in bilingualism and biculturalism, and I feel that every citizen should make it a duty, an ideal, to speak two languages."

He added: "In any case, the role Canada is now playing in international life adds to the necessity."

He was amused by the fact that his 16-year-old son Burke is in a higher French class than himself.

Dr. Taylor said that in Ontario and Alberta, where he has spent his university career, there is great interest in everything French, not only in university faculties but in business, where staff is being asked to take French courses.

Asked about separatism, he said: "The separation of Quebec would be a disaster for everyone. I am convinced that we can find a solution to this sharp problem."

Arthur Mayse

There was a time when the word "doctor" conjured up an immediate picture of a rather shabby but lovable old type with celluloid collar and unhygienic beard, sitting patiently by a little girl's sickbed while the night hours ticked past.

It was a pretty good picture, suggesting as it did a family friend whom we could love and trust, and pay with half a shoat and a bushel of spuds if the cash crops had done poorly. Quite a few general practitioners, including the black-bag virtuoso who copes with our family aches and pains, still hang it in their smartly-furnished outer offices.

Were Ol' Doc to pronounce the child out of danger and step down from his frame, he would find certain aspects of his calling still recognizable, including the modern medico's willingness to squander time and skill at need.

I think, though, that he would soon find himself wondering with incredulous dismay what the devil had overtaken his public image.

The plain fact is that it's going to pot at a hand gallop, and that the profession is taking no effective steps to check the erosion.

* * *

I find this a great pity, because we lean heavier on the medical profession than mankind has ever done in its ailing, misery-ridden progress toward the stars. Our doctors in turn are infinitely more capable of helping us than was that bearded GP of long ago.

We are drifting apart. Like a wedded couple with some deep-seated disagreement between them, the layman and the modern custodian of the serpent-twined staff don't know how to commune with each other any more.

Snug in their self-contained circle, the licensed healing trades incline to remain mum except when an unlicensed outsider draws a few curt words of censure.

The prime example of this inability to function effectively in the field of human relations is nowhere more evident than in the profession's reaction to Opposition leader Robert Strachan's medicare proposals.

As one looks wall-eyed at socialism wherever it raises its scrubby-little head, I don't hold with the Strachan plan, either.

But were I a doctor convinced that Saskatchewan-style medicare would be bad for British Columbians, I wouldn't waste precious time—as one local physician and surgeon recently did — in slanging Bob Strachan's views as 'political eyewash,' and Strachan himself as 'an ill-informed day dreamer.'

What I would do, by golly, is get off the dime, pull my head out of the sand, and through every medium at my command, start pushing a health insurance proposal acceptable to B.C. doctors and their patients.

* * *

Here we come to the nub of the matter.

The oldtime practitioner had no wonder drugs to carry in his black bag, and undoubtedly buried his share of mistakes. But he established a firm rapport with his people. He knew how to talk to them.

This art, it seems to me today's aloof gentlemen who soothe our pangs and mend our plumbing are in grave danger of losing.

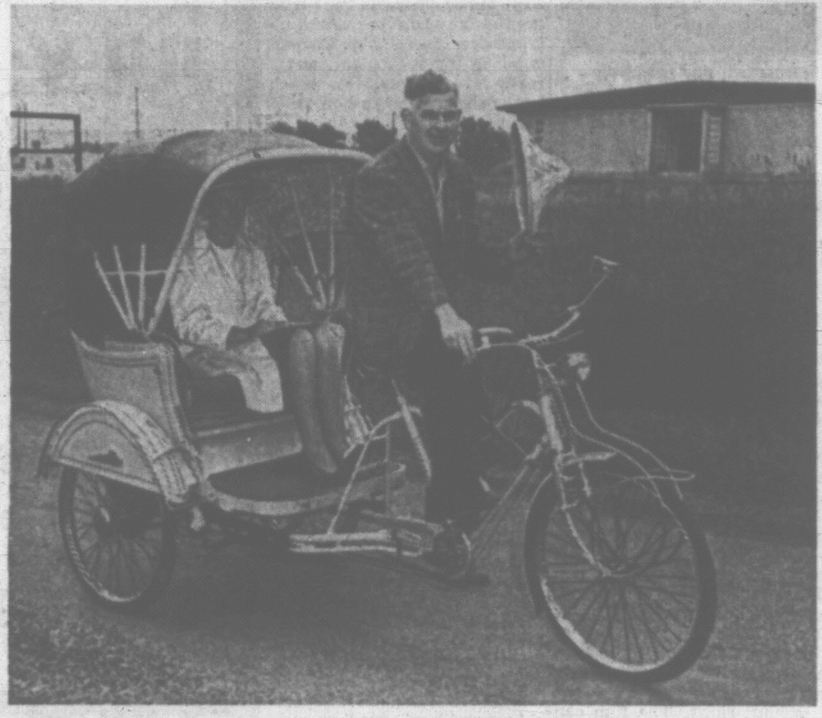
In this present issue of medicare, they would do well to find a strong and concerted voice. It is all very well to cry out against those whose proposals fail to please.

But at this point, the medical profession's plaguey reticence asserts itself.

While we wait to be told what sort of plan doctors favor, they grumble off into silence.

Since we look to them for guidance in this matter, we are left in a state of bewilderment. We're not mind-readers. We want to be told what our doctors feel is right for us in any health plan.

Also, and this is important, we want to hear it from them, not from a provincial government which we trust rather less than Ol' Doc's successors.



CALL A CAB these days and look what you get. Times reporter Marge Gilroy took a ride in Victoria's first pedicab this morning, driven by John Hodgson. The leather top stays up when it rains and the coolie hats come out when it shines. It's like a slow boat to China, slow and easy.

PRISON CAMP TREATMENT SUGGESTED

A man who forged cheques belonging to other persons at the Courtney St. apartment block where he lived was sent to jail today for one year.

Douglas MacIntosh, 802 Cook, had no previous record of lawbreaking. Magistrate William Ostler said that too short a prison term wouldn't help him but that he didn't want to impose an "unnecessary harsh" sentence either.

The magistrate said that MacIntosh would benefit by working in prison camp and should apply to be transferred to one when he goes to Oakalla Prison.

Pedicabs as Cosy As a Rumble Seat

By MARGE GILROY

The west meets the east once again in the streets of Victoria with the arrival of six new pedicabs from Formosa.

A pedicab is the modern oriental version of the rickshaw, common now in Hong Kong, Taipei and other Far Eastern cities.

Victoria is the first Canadian city to adopt this leisurely, cosy, non-motorized mode of transport. But Irving Risvold, president of Pedicab Enterprises Ltd., hopes soon to see them distributed across the country.

Visitors to the world fair in Montreal in 1967 may look forward to seeing the sights from the two-seater cab.

COST $500

The 300-pound vehicles, which cost $500 each to import, may look like a cinch to drive, but they're not. Six university students found that out on the weekend as they practised for hours in an empty parking lot.

They are experienced pedicab drivers now and next week they will be pedalling around Beacon Hill Park and Dallas Road with their first customers in tow.

Passengers are assured of a comfortable trip as they ride along in the cab with padded upholstery. Like the surrey with the fringe on top, there is a plastic apron you can buckle on in case there's a change in the weather.

BRAKE ADDED

At present the three-wheelers are one-speed, but the company is considering changing them over to three-speed. The bikes come equipped with an emergency brake only, on the cross-bar.

In the future there may be motorized and children-size pedicabs on city streets, but this summer the oriental cabs call for a strong pair of legs.

Thieves Ignore Warning Shots

Police fired warning shots over the heads of two persons who escaped in a stolen car after a high-speed chase through View Royal and Saanich early today.

The thieves abandoned the vehicle near where it was stolen and escaped on foot in dense bush.

Saanich police dog Rex picked up their trail about half an hour later but lost it after a short distance. Colwood RCMP and Saanich police were investigating the case further at press time this afternoon.

The chase started when an RCMP officer in a patrol car saw another car moving at high speed on Goldstream shortly before 5 a.m.

DIDN'T STOP

He pursued the vehicle with siren blaring and red light flashing but it didn't stop. Saanich police were radioed to intercept the car when it headed into their area at T8rans-Canada Highway and Burnside.

The chase continued in the early light of dawn along wet slippery streets at speeds that at times reached 60 mph. Police said their cars began to spin out on some corners.

The RCMP car was right behind the stolen car as it sped along Marigold to Carey, to Judah, to Glanford, to Ralph and into Rainbow, a dead-end street.

RAN UP HILL

At the end of Rainbow the car was driven straight into the bush and two persons in it fled the scene. They ran up Christmas Hill which leads to Rogers Ave., and disappeared.

When police checked the car they found it was stolen from the home of Leonard Chambers, 760 Rogers. He didn't know his car was gone until police informed him.

The Saanich police dog was brought to the scene some time after the thieves had fled. The dog picked up the scent and followed it through the bush but then lost the trail.

HIGH SCHOOL RESULTS RELEASED IN 2 WEEKS

Results of this year's high school examinations will be known around the end of July, a provincial education department official said today.

Marking is still under way, he said.

The board of examiners is due to meet July 25, and students will be notified if they made university standards around July 29.

Big Subdivision All Ready to Go

Construction can start on a $22 million housing development north of Cordova Bay as soon as Saanich council and the pollution control board give the nod, a spokesman said Tuesday night.

Milton Tisdalle, spokesman for Marwell Construction Co., told a Saanich public works committee meeting the developers expect to have the entire Uplands-type subdivision sold within five to seven years.

He presented to the committee a detailed brief outlining progress made in preliminary studies.

His plan—which will involve Saanich's spending at least $885,000—will be ruled on by the committee by next Monday.

It will then go to council the following Monday for a decision.

$25,000-$45,000

Homes in the subdivision—present plans call for 385—are to cost from $25,000 to $40,000 and up.

The site, which incorporates an 18-hole golf course, overlooks Sayward Beach just north of Cordova Bay, and takes in about 200 acres of the old Turner farm.

Mr. Tisdalle told the committee work can start on the golf course as soon as approval is granted, and it could be finished in two years.

He said 10 of the half-acre house lots are already spoken for, and that the Royal Trust Company is handling sales across Canada.

"We expect to have the total subdivision sold in five to seven years," he told the committee.

About $1,541,780 would have to be spent in providing services for the subdivision, his brief said.

The developers want Saanich to put up $885,090 of this.

The balance—$656,690—is to be paid by the developers.

BREAKDOWN

Cost of services runs as follows:

Streets, $589,700; storm drains, $185,840; sanitary sewers, $331,890; water, $241,850; wiring for house power, street lighting and television, all underground, $192,500.

With some exceptions where services provided would benefit ratepayers outside the development, the developers expect Saanich to foot the bill for street lighting wiring, the excess of any road over 28 feet wide, and the sanitary sewer collecting system.

Everything else — wiring, water, storm drains, roads up to 28 feet width, sewage treatment and disposal—would be paid by the developers.

Saanich would presumably finance some of these services through local improvement bylaws.

Mr. Tisdalle asked the public works committee to vote recommendation of approval Monday night.

Although in cautions agreement with the proposals in the brief, the committee tabled the matter a week for study.

"It's too much to digest in one evening," said Coun. Joseph Casey.

One hurdle still to be crossed for the developers is the Pollution Control Board, which must approve sewage disposal plans.

TOPICS of the DAY

Canadian citizenship certificates were granted today to 30 new Canadians in a ceremony conducted in County Court by Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake.

Majority of the participants were from Germany and Holland, although other countries reprsented included the U.S., China, Italy, Hungary, Poland, Yugoslavia, the Ukraine and Austria.

Contractor, Bricklayers Face to Face

Bricklayer-employing contractors were believed to be making a last-minute effort this afternoon to avert a strike in Victoria.

Contractor Gilbert Brown was to meet union representative William Gauld at 2 p.m.

Bricklayers were to cast their ballots in a government-supervised strike vote at 4:45 p.m.

Mr. Gauld said he believed the contractors "have some kind of offer they will make."

He said if the demands of the bricklayers are met (a two-year contract comprising 53 cents per hour in wages and welfare) it may be possible to have the vote cancelled.

48-HOUR NOTICE

If not, he said, "we'll take the necessary action."

If the vote is for strike, 48-hour notice will be mailed, and bricklayers—about 40 of them—will be entitled to walk off the job.

About four contractors are employing bricklayers, and their projects could be halted if the bricklayers throw up a picket line.

Mr. Brown said 12 bricklayers will vote.

Five Young Naturalists Oliver-Bound

Five young Victoria naturalists will leave Monday for Oliver to participate in the Canadian Audubon Society's first junior camp.

They are Nancy Chapman, Nancy Pope, Jan Murphy, Dan Gifford and Ross Storey. They will stay at the UBC geological campsite until July 31.

Boys and girls aged 12-16 from across the province will join the flora and fauna study.

Camp director is Victoria naturalist Freeman King, who will lead the youngsters on side trips to fruit belt and cold desert areas.

Due to his absence there will be no hikes for the junior branch of the Natural History Society for the next three weeks.

Stricter Rule To Govern Winter Aid

Stricter rules for winter work grants have been set by the provincial government, it was learned today.

The government has notified all municipalities that it is tightening qualifications for grants which will begin in September.

The aim is to secure employment for more people who receive welfare aid.

A municipal affairs department official said that in past years B.C. has paid 50 per cent of labor costs on projects where welfare recipients are hired during the winter.

It paid 25 per cent of the payroll for other unemployed who were given jobs.

This year the government will only pay 50 per cent if municipalities hire people who have spent at least three months on the welfare rolls.

The move follows Premier W. A. C. Bennett's announcement last month that the government would be "more exacting."

"The whole purpose of the program is to help the unemployed, not the municipalities," said the municipal affairs official.

He said that some municipalities have come to expect winter works grants as a matter of right.

Some of them had launched projects they might not otherwise have considered.

Last year the B.C. government paid out about $2 million in winter works aid.

40 FRUMPY DAYS

St. Swithin's Day Splash Ushers In 'Junk' Weather

By AB KENT

And a soggy St. Swithin's Day to you, too.

Our weeping sky today means 40 more of the same, according to the ancient rhyme of superstitious Englishmen:

St. Swithin's Day if thou dost rain
For 40 days it will remain;
St. Swithin's Day if thou be fair
For 40 days 'twill rain na mair—

Enough to turn summer-seeking tourists back to the mainland. Which is just what some have done.

But it can be blamed on meteorological uproar off our shores, the bogey of Gonzales weathermen—a Pacific disturbance.

GLOOMY

The outlook is gloomy, forecasters say. Thursday should be sunny to start, turning into clouds and showers later in the day.

And the five-day prediction is for unsettled weather, a pattern of off-and-on sun and "junk," to use the weather office phrase.

Beyond that they won't go, giving the St. Swithin's Day verse a veiled sneer.

Origin of the legend is obscure but one chronicler indicates a connection between it and the dying wish of St. Swithin, who was bishop of Winchester in 862, when he died. He became patron of the church 109 years later, when his body was moved from its obscure resting place to a new one in the church on July 15.

St. Swithin wanted to be buried in a "vile and unworthy place," rather than within the church.

Ask The Times

Q. Will you please tell me the maximum and minimum recorded sway of the Empire State Building in New York City? D.Y.R.

A. The building only sways slightly when it is buffeted by strong winds. Greatest sway occurred during a 100-m.p.h. windstorm when the structure rocked 1.45 inches from centre.

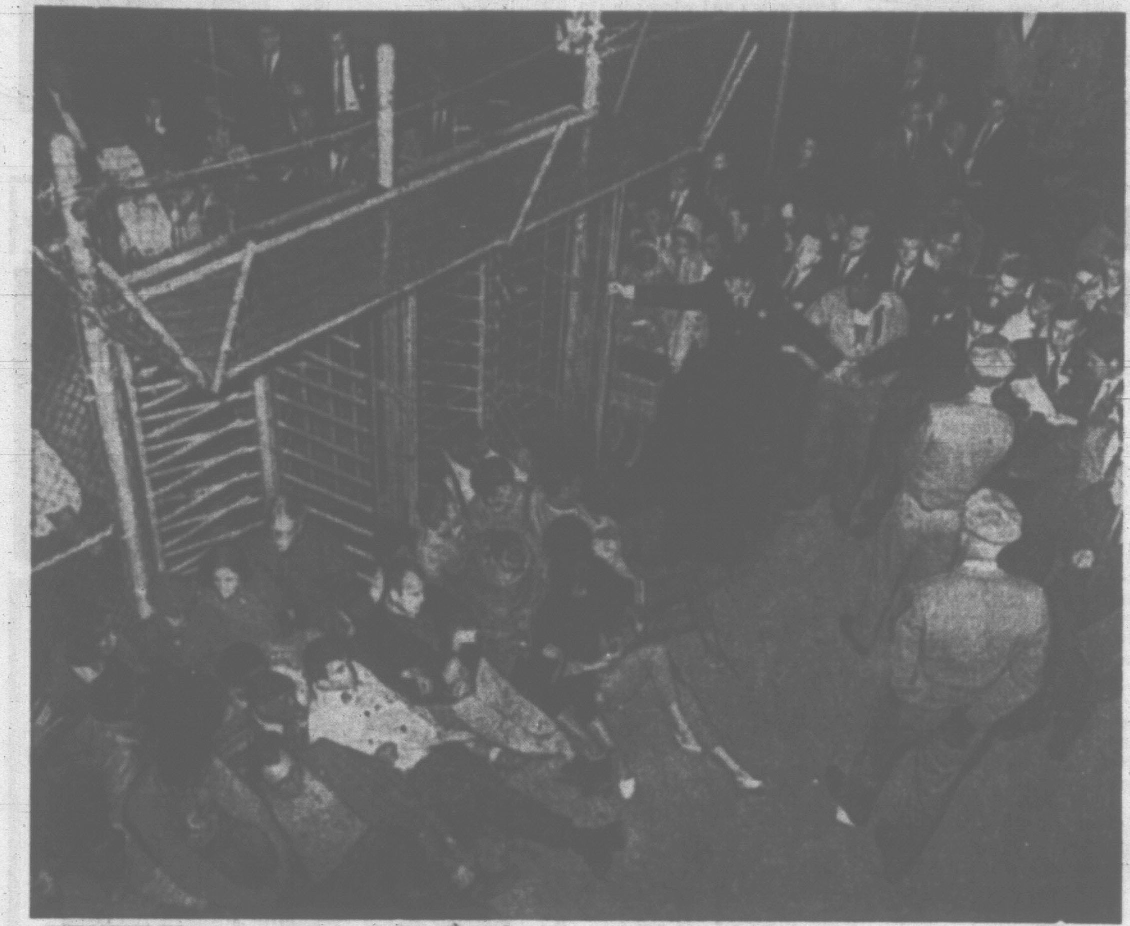
GOP Turns Solidly to Right As Goldwater Win Assured



TURNSTILES at one exit from San Francisco's Cow Palace were blocked by civil rights demonstrators at end of lengthy session of Republican convention early today. They were protesting failure of convention to amend weak party platform on civil rights. Delegates and spectators were able to leave building through other exits. (AP Wirephoto.)

Moderates Lose Platform Battle

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—A tidal wave of conservative strength has crushed all hopes of the moderates led by Governor William Scranton to reform the Republican platform, setting the convention stage tonight for the nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the party's 1964 presidential candidate.

Every appeal by moderates to have the Republican national convention strengthen the civil rights plank in the Goldwater-flavored platform, denounce political extremists by name and ensure that the president of the United States retains control over all nuclear weapons was shouted down in an uproarious, cat-calling, foot-stomping session that wound up early today.

The voting indicated the conservatives or right-wing of the party had taken firm control of the convention and that Goldwater would get a hefty first-ballot victory over Scranton, the Pennsylvania governor.

Today's convention session was scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p.m. PDT (5:30 p.m. EDT), but there was no indication as to when balloting would start, except that it probably would take place late in the night. There were numerous speeches and business matters to be taken up, plus demonstrations for each candidate nominated.

A minimum of 655 of the 1,308 delegate nominating votes are required for victory and Goldwater claimed more than 800 vote pledges with more rolling in.

An Associated Press survey showed that Goldwater headed into nomination day with 805 votes while Scranton had 169.

A number of other formal opponents would get a fraction of the votes. These would include Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Senator Hiram Fong of Hawai, former representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, former governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota and Michigan Governor George Romney.

Tension High During Floor Fight

Scranton's forces admitted the platform-mending defeat showed there is virtually nothing the moderates can do to stop Goldwater.

The convention uproar Tuesday night was so great that at one time police were forced to restrain photographers and reporters from the floor, clearing the aisles in fear that tensions would spark clashes.

Outside the Cow Palace, where the convention went into its third day today, demonstrators for and against Goldwater circled in front of the entrance while a 50-man police force watched a racial demonstration by whites and Negroes continued for more than nine hours—the length of the convention session—and finally snake-dancing, chanting teen-agers fell to the pavement, blocking some of the exits as weary delegates left the arena.

This was the beginning of "civil disobedience" by members of the Congress of Racial Equality in protest against the "weak" and "vague" plank on civil rights.

A number of Negro delegates and alternates still toyed with the idea of walking out of the convention if Goldwater captures the nomination. Others said they were against a walkout but they wouldn't work for the Goldwater team in the November election campaign. Republican Jackie Robinson, former Negro baseball star, said he would switch his vote to President Johnson.

Most significant of the actions taken on the platform was the 897-to-409 vote by which the delegates rejected a Scranton-backed proposal to amend a plank which promised imple-

TALKS END

Kashmir Causes Flare-Up

LONDON (CP)—A confused flareup over Kashmir caused an incident as Commonwealth prime ministers neared the end of their 13th conference today.

An Indian spokesman called a press conference to accuse a conference briefing officer of "deliberate mischief" in reporting earlier that Kashmir was discussed at a morning session during a debate on India-Pakistan relations.

The 18-country conference was in closed session discussing its communique when R. M. Maitra, Indian delegation spokesman, called reporters together and unleashed his blast about Kashmir.

He denied that Kashmir had been discussed as had been reported by the briefing officer and several other sources. Asked whether these sources—including Canadians—were telling lies Maitra merely repeated that Kashmir was not discussed.

Wording of the Rhodesian section earlier produced some hard bargaining among senior officials drafting the communique. One key argument involved the phraseology of a Canadian "declaration of racial equality," submitted Monday by Prime Minister Pearson.

This morning's discussion of Kashmir suggested a new conciliatory climate between India and Kashmir.

U.K. Fascist Roughs Up Kenya Leader

LONDON (AP)—A man who said he was a member of the British Fascist party rushed at Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya today as he left his hotel.

A police constable intervened and all three men landed in a heap against the automobile waiting to take Kenyatta to a session of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

Martin Allen Webster, 21-year-old London clerk, was booked on three charges of assault on the police, using threatening behavior with intent to provoke a breach of the peace and assaulting Kenyatta.

Kenyatta, in his 70s, went back inside the hotel and a spokesman said he was not injured. Fifteen minutes later he left for the Commonwealth session.

The attack occurred during a demonstration against Kenyatta outside the hotel by members of the British Fascist party, a splinter political group.

The Kenya government later protested officially to Britain against the attack.

Kenneth Meadows, spokesman for the Kenya delegation, said that the complaints were over "a lack of adequate security precautions."

Times Series Bolsters Fare Hike Opposition

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

Tempo of preparations for the coming clash on B.C. Hydro's proposed bus fare hikes quickened overnight, some of them swirling around a Times series contending the government already has received a $35,000,000 consideration for bus deficits.

Mayor R. B. Wilson this morning said he has submitted clippings of the series to Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and expects they will be considered Friday morning at the second caucus of municipal leaders on the bus question.

Mayor Wilson also said he expects a Public Utilities Commission press release, seen by some as aimed at part of the Times series, will be discussed too.

Burnaby Reeve Alan Emmott already has been quoted as saying that the $35,000,000 contention will be incorporated in the brief being prepared by a joint municipal group that plans to meet with the provincial cabinet.

Besides issuing its surprise statement—warning that it will only consider the authority's transit operation and inviting opponents of the increase to divide themselves into special interest classes to plead their cases separately—the PUC set its Victoria area hearings for Aug. 5 at 10 a.m. in the Law Courts Building.

'MISUNDERSTANDING'

The PUC statement, made the day after the Times series ended, said correspondence from interested parties "indicates that there is some misunderstanding as to the scope of its proposed hearing and as to the powers of the commission."

It pointed out that the B.C. Hydro was removed from its jurisdiction and the transit hearings are based on an order-in-council limiting the rate structure scrutiny to buses only.

"It must be clearly recognized that the commission has no power over any B.C. Hydro and Power Authority rates, other than those for the transit services in the areas governed by the franchises."

The PUC said it has no power to force anyone to subsidize the buses although the B.C. Hydro could do this voluntarily.

Perhaps significantly, it suggested that the municipalities themselves could pay direct subsidies to the transit authority if they chose.

The statement said that the public is involved as well as the hydro authority and the municipalities because it pays the fares.

"A number of protests have been received against the proposed fares for special classes of passenger, such as children, students or old-age pensioners," it said.

The statement said it was one of the PUC's functions to ensure that fares are fair as between different classes and therefore:

"It will be prudent for any group seeking a reduction in some class of transit rates to indicate clearly from what other transit rates they think the revenue can be replaced."

The PUC said its discretionary powers were defined by a Supreme Court of Canada decision which concerned the privately-owned B.C. Electric at a time when the PUC was bound to treat all the utility's services as a unit "and could, therefore, make use of electrical rates to reduce transit rates. . .

NOT ANY MORE

"Finally, the commission has nothing whatever to do with what may happen to transit services when the franchise agreements terminate and the

Douks Defy Order To Leave Camp

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some 500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors remained encamped at Agassiz, 45 miles east of here, today as the deadline passed on a Kent municipal order to move on.

The municipality had posted notices at the makeshift camp reading: "Municipal property. Anyone found settling or camping arbitrarily on these lands after July 15 will be prosecuted."

Kent Reeve James Fraser declined comment Tuesday night on council's plan of action. Frank Wilson, municipal solicitor, said he had been given no instructions.

The sect moved to Agassiz last summer to be near brethren serving sentences in Mountain Prison for acts of terrorism. The sect earlier abandoned farming settlements in southeastern B.C.

Dief Renews Demand For CBC Enquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker renewed in the Commons today a demand that a parliamentary committee inquire into CBC operations at this session.

The demand was again rejected by State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to the Commons on broadcasting matters.

The minister noted that he had announced in May establishment of an advisory committee to study broadcasting and possible amendments to broadcasting legislation. The government hoped to have the legislation ready for parliament next year, when a Commons committee could be set up.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the CBC annual report, tabled Tuesday, suggests a public inquiry into broadcasting on a charter basis. The CBC received $80,000,000 a year from parliament which should not be "evaded in this way."

Mr. Lamontagne said full opportunity will be given to consider any changes.

SOVIET BIDS FOR PARLEY WITH CHINA

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today called on the Chinese Communist Party anew to join in an international conference aimed at settling their ideological differences.

The Soviets proposed that "in the immediate future we should agree in principle that a meeting must be convened and that it should not be put off for long."

Peking has previously dismissed an early world Communist parley and told Russia it may take from four to five years to prepare for it.

Triple Murder Missing Links Being Sought

MISSION (CP) — Joe Sauriol, chief of the Mission municipal police, said today his force is trying to uncover five missing links that may clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of three youths near here Sunday.

Chief Sauriol said no motive for the triple murder has been established and the murder weapon, believed to be a .22-calibre rifle owned by one of the dead youths, is still missing.

He said two people who were in the area of the slayings are being sought for any information they may yield to clear up the mystery.

Also being sought is any person who saw a 1961 black convertible being driven from an isolated lake, about six miles north of here where the youths were killed, to the highway here early Sunday.

Police also hope any motorist who picked up a hitchhiker between Sumas and Surrey will come forward. The convertible, owned by one of the victims, was found abandoned at Sumas.

Strike Threat

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Workers at the Celgar pulp mill near here have rejected a conciliation officer's proposals for settling a contract dispute.

John West, president of local 4 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada (Ind.), said Tuesday that a vote by 700 men at the mill clearly indicated the report has been rejected.

Pravda Fears GOP Platform Calls for War With Russia

LONDON (Reuters)—Pravda, the Russian Communist party newspaper, says today the Republican platform of Senator Barry Goldwater "in fact calls for war with the Soviet Union."

The program called for "open intervention in Cuba, stepping up the war in Viet Nam and the granting to NATO commanders of the right to use nuclear weapons on their own initiative," the newspaper comments.

It was not surprising, the newspaper adds, that the platform had "frightened even those who previously thought of Goldwater as a noisy but generally harmless fellow."

Pravda and other Moscow newspapers quote American press comment that "if his philosophy were put into practice it would be a catastrophe for the country and for the whole world."

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda says it was hard to find words to describe the Goldwater platform, which contained "the most harmful dreams of the Birchites of a 'decisive victory over communism.' "

Yugoslavia compares the platform with Nazi policies and declared Goldwater's "appetites" were "greater than Hitler's."

This comment by the official Yugoslav newspaper Borba is one of the sharpest attacks on the Republicans and the Arizona senator voiced in Europe on the day Goldwater is expected to capture the Republican nomination at San Francisco.

In likening sections of the party platform to the policies of Nazi Germany, Borba's editorial cites a section which it says pledged the Republicans to follow the road toward "final liberation of the nations of East Europe, Asia and Latin America."

Borba comments that the peoples of those areas had survived worse experiences "but seldom worse insults." It also describes the platform as a "most unscrupulous attempt to interfere in internal affairs of all countries, including ours."

In Britain, former president Eisenhower draws newspaper fire along with the platform and Goldwater.

Daily Express reporter Rene MacColl writes from San Francisco: "When the embers of this hate-ridden Republican convention get raked into the cold ashes of history, the man who will probably emerge in the worst light is ex-president Dwight Eisenhower."

MacColl charges that Eisenhower "has behaved so badly that he has dealt his reputation and prestige a most grievous blow."

The article says he "blew hot and cold" before the convention and later assured Governor William Scranton he "would 'probably' support him — but then didn't."

"Now, on top of that, Eisenhower pops up in San Francisco as a radio-TV analyst of the whole thing, at a reputed fee of £18,000 ($54,000).

"In the eyes of nearly everyone this is a lapse of good taste and judgment that is little short of appalling."

OPEN SAFETY PIN IN LUNG FOR 14 YEARS

Now She's a Pin-Up Girl at 37

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mrs. Virginia Leavy, attractive, 37-year-old mother of two, had an open safety pin in her lung for 14 years but didn't know it.

Doctors at Pittsburgh's Mercy Hospital removed it and Tuesday Mrs. Leavy sat on the edge of her hospital bed and said she felt fine.

Mrs. Leavy, of nearby Greensburg, said she swallowed the pin in 1949 or 1950—"I'm not sure which" — while preparing her infant son for a trip.

"I held the open pin in my mouth for a minute while dressing him—you know, one of those small, gold-colored pins for ribbons and things," she said.

Then she swallowed it—still open. She tried to cough it up. She called a doctor, who told her it would probably pass out of her system and not to worry as long there was no pain.

Mrs. Leavy pursued an active life during the next year, swimming, playing badminton, hiking, doing housework and smoking.

Last month after a busy day she "suddenly felt something in my chest."

When she started coughing up blood she called her doctor. A chest x-ray followed and located the pin in her lung, still open.

At first, doctors passed a bronchoscope—a narrow, tube-like instrument — through her mouth and windpipe. The bronchoscope was monitored by television.

Aided by the bronchoscope, doctors reached into her lung with a special forceps. But the pin, which had become embedded in tissue, wouldn't move. The head broke and was withdrawn.

That was a week ago. Monday they tried again and in a slow, painstaking manoeuvre brought the pin up. It was badly rusted.

How to Buy the Centre of Toronto—Secretly

TORONTO (CP)—The story of how two Toronto real estate men master-minded the purchase of land for the Toronto-Dominion Bank centre in the heart of the city without tipping their principals' hand would make many mystery novels dull reading in comparison.

Between the early part of 1962 and the fall of 1963 fewer than a dozen persons in Canada, knew that the Toronto-Dominion Bank and Cemp Investments Limited were interested in a block bounded by King, Bay, Wellington and York streets as the site of their $125,000,000 centre.

The centre will be a huge real estate complex which is planned to include two office buildings Construction has started and is to be completed by 1967.

Brian Magee and Gordon Gray of A. E. LePage Limited arranged the land assembly.

If word of the project leaked out prices would have skyrocketed, so Mr. Magee and Mr. Gray used numerous subterfuges—including changing lawyers, getting other real estate companies to bid against them and, in one case, renovating a building they knew would be torn down—to complete the 38 deals involving a total of $15,000,000.

"If word had got out, any one of a hundred people could have held us up for millions of dollars," Mr. Magee said in an interview. "In land assembly, close doesn't count. If someone refused to sell, there goes your project just like that."

REPORT ONE SLIP-UP

The only slip-up came when the principals released the story of the project to the press after the agents had come to an agreement with one owner, but before they had his signature. The owner walked away $250,000 richer.

Occasionally an owner banked with the Toronto - Dominion Bank, bringing about the bizarre turn of events in which a bank manager would tell him to hold out for more money.

The big ace in the hole was that the agents were working for corporations that could afford to pay cash for their purchases.

"An option is a dead giveaway that an assembly is taking place," Mr. Magee said. "We paid cash, not only because we had it, but because we knew that the property we were buying could be resold at the same price or better if the over-all project fell through."

Prices paid varied from $19 a square foot to $350

Once the purchase had been made the agents had to pursuade as many as 100 tenants to give up their leases in a building.

"There were endless numbers of people in a little $50-a-month offices on Wellington Street, Mr. Gray recalled. "Any one of them could have held up the entire project. They could have demanded cash and retired for life. None of them did. Our secret stayed secret."

MARKET SUMMARIES

On the Up-Trend Market Remains

The stock market continued its rising trend at Toronto with speculative activity brightening.

Speculative activity also increased at Montreal as industrials gained narrowly and a slight rise at New York later vanished.

AT TORONTO Windfall gained 50 cents at $4.25 on volume of over 384,000 shares while Leitch rose 35 cents to $5.30.

Glenn Uranium, with property in the Timmins area, dropped 11 cents to 43 cents. Company president P. C. A. Giardine said today the firm had not encountered any sulphides or mineralization of its land. The stock rose from 27 to 85 cents within 20 minutes yesterday on rumors.

Other speculative gains saw United Canso rise 32 cents to $2.23.

Liquors, foods, utilities and banks paced industrials. Montreal and Toronto - Dominion rose ⅛ each among banks, while Distillers-Seagram and Molson A gained ¼ among liquors. Molson B rose ½.

Investors Syndicate A gained 1¼ to 69, a new high, after announcement of a proposed five-for-one stock split. Federal grain gained $3 to $93 in light trading.

AT MONTREAL B.C. Forest and DuPont were up ½ each. Dofasco ¼, and CPR, Dominion Bridge and Noranda ⅛ each.

Hawker Siddeley declined ¼ and Consolidated Paper, Home Oil B and Domtar ⅛ each.

In speculative mines, Fano and White Star lost two cents each, also one cent, and Porcupine Prime ½ cent. Mistango River, Opemiska Exploration and Copperstream added one cent each.

AT NEW YORK the market has given given up ground in the last two sessions following Friday's rise to historic peaks.

FMC Corp. was a leading contender for the top of the most active list, mainly on a 48,000 share block. Other active issues included RCA, up around ½ and Occidental Petroleum, ahead more than one.

Among Canadian issues traded Canadian Pacific gained ⅜, International Nickel and Walker Gooderham, Distillers Seagrams ½ and Dome Mines ¼. Aluminum Ltd. lost ⅜ and Granby Mining ⅛.

AT LONDON the general upward trend was maintained in London stock markets today. The pace was slower and mail delays kept business light. Gilts improved in places.

U.S. dollar stocks eased afresh but Canadians made headway with Trans Canada Pipe and Algoma prominent.

Canadian banks were firm but home issues were easier where changed.

AT VANCOUVER trading was moderate. Bethlehem Copper was down at $6.55 while Crown Silver was up at .15½. National Ex. climbed to .26 and Western Mines to $4.60. Forest was up at $32⅝ and Interior Brew at $8.

BARRY GETS NOD AT S.F. TONIGHT

Easy Win Sure First Ballot

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—A tidal wave of conservative strength has crushed all hopes of the moderates led by Governor William Scranton to reform the Republican platform, setting the convention stage tonight for the nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the party's 1964 presidential candidate.

Every appeal by moderates to have the Republican national convention strengthen the civil rights plank in the Goldwater-flavored platform, denounce political extremists by name and ensure that the president of the United States retains control over all nuclear weapons was shouted down in an uproarious, cat-calling, foot-stomping session that wound up early today.

The voting indicated the conservatives or right-wing of the party had taken firm control of the convention and that Goldwater would get a hefty first-ballot victory over Scranton, the Pennsylvania governor.

Today's convention session was scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p.m. PDT (5:30 p.m. EDT), but there was no indication as to when balloting would start, except that it probably would take place late in the night. There were numerous speeches and business matters to be taken up, plus demonstrations for each candidate nominated.

A minimum of 655 of the 1,308 delegate nominating votes are required for victory and Goldwater claimed more than 800 vote pledges with more rolling in.

An Associated Press survey showed that Goldwater headed into nomination day with 805 votes while Scranton had 169.

A number of other formal opponents would get a fraction of the votes. These would include Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Senator Hiram Fong of Hawai, former representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, former governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota and Michigan Governor George Romney.

Tension High During Floor Fight

Scranton's forces admitted the platform-mending defeat showed there is virtually nothing the moderates can do to stop Goldwater.

The convention uproar Tuesday night was so great that at one time police were forced to restrain photographers and reporters from the floor, clearing the aisles in fear that tensions would spark clashes.

Outside the Cow Palace, where the convention went into its third day today, demonstrators for and against Goldwater circled in front of the entrance while a 50-man police force watched a racial demonstration by whites and Negroes continued for more than nine hours—the length of the convention session—and finally snake-dancing, chanting teen-agers fell to the pavement, blocking some of the exits as weary delegates left the arena.

This was the beginning of "civil disobedience" by members of the Congress of Racial Equality in protest against the "weak" and "vague" plank on civil rights.

A number of Negro delegates and alternates still toyed with the idea of walking out of the convention if Goldwater captures the nomination. Others said they were against a walkout but they wouldn't work for the Goldwater team in the November election campaign. Republican Jackie Robinson, former Negro baseball star, said he would switch his vote to President Johnson.

Most significant of the actions taken on the platform was the 897-to-409 vote by which the delegates rejected a Scranton-backed proposal to amend a plank which promised imple-

Dief Renews Demand For CBC Enquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker renewed in the Commons today a demand that a parliamentary committee inquire into CBC operations at this session.

The demand was again rejected by State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to the Commons on broadcasting matters.

The minister noted that he had announced in May establishment of an advisory committee to study broadcasting and possible amendments to broadcasting legislation. The government hoped to have the legislation ready for parliament next year, when a Commons committee could be set up.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the CBC annual report, tabled Tuesday, suggests a public inquiry into broadcasting on a charter basis. The CBC received $80,000,000 a year from parliament which should not be "evaded in this way."

Mr. Lamontagne said full opportunity will be given to consider any changes.

OPEN SAFETY PIN IN LUNG FOR 14 YEARS

Now She's a Pin-Up Girl at 37

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mrs. Virginia Leavy, attractive, 37-year-old mother of two, had an open safety pin in her lung for 14 years but didn't know it.

Doctors at Pittsburgh's Mercy Hospital removed it and Tuesday Mrs. Leavy sat on the edge of her hospital bed and said she felt fine.

Mrs. Leavy, of nearby Greensburg, said she swallowed the pin in 1949 or 1950—"I'm not sure which" — while preparing her infant son for a trip.

"I held the open pin in my mouth for a minute while dressing him—you know, one of those small, gold-colored pins for ribbons and things," she said.

Then she swallowed it—still open. She tried to cough it up. She called a doctor, who told her it would probably pass out of her system and not to worry as long there was no pain.

Mrs. Leavy pursued an active life during the next year, swimming, playing badminton, hiking, doing housework and smoking.

Last month after a busy day she "suddenly felt something in my chest."

When she started coughing up blood she called her doctor. A chest x-ray followed and located the pin in her lung, still open.

At first, doctors passed a bronchoscope—a narrow, tube-like instrument — through her mouth and windpipe. The bronchoscope was monitored by television.

Aided by the bronchoscope, doctors reached into her lung with a special forceps. But the pin, which had become embedded in tissue, wouldn't move. The head broke and was withdrawn.

That was a week ago. Monday they tried again and in a slow, painstaking manoeuvre brought the pin up. It was badly rusted.

Times Series Bolsters Fare Hike Opposition

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

Tempo of preparations for the coming clash on B.C. Hydro's proposed bus fare hikes quickened overnight, some of them swirling around a Times series contending the government already has received a $35,000,000 consideration for bus deficits.

Mayor R. B. Wilson this morning said he has submitted clippings of the series to Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and expects they will be considered Friday morning at the second caucus of municipal leaders on the bus question.

Mayor Wilson also said he expects a Public Utilities Commission press release, seen by some as aimed at part of the Times series, will be discussed too.

Burnaby Reeve Alan Emmott already has been quoted as saying that the $35,000,000 contention will be incorporated in the brief being prepared by a joint municipal group that plans to meet with the provincial cabinet.

Besides issuing its surprise statement — warning that it will only consider the authority's transit operation and inviting opponents of the increase to divide themselves into special interest classes to plead their cases separately— the PUC set its Victoria area hearings for Aug. 5 at 10 a.m. in the Law Courts Building.

'MISUNDERSTANDING'

The PUC statement, made the day after the Times series ended, said correspondence from interested parties "indicates that there is some misunderstanding as to the scope of its proposed hearing and as to the powers of the commission."

It pointed out that the B.C. Hydro was removed from its jurisdiction and the transit hearings are based on an order-in-council limiting the rate structure scrutiny to buses only.

"It must be clearly recognized that the commission has no power over any B.C. Hydro and Power Authority rates other than those for the transit services in the areas governed by the franchises."

The PUC said it has no power to force anyone to subsidize the buses although the B.C. Hydro could do this voluntarily.

Perhaps significantly, it suggested that the municipalities themselves could pay direct subsidies to the transit authority if they chose.

The statement said that the public is involved as well as the hydro authority and the municipalities because it pays the fares.

"A number of protests have been received against the proposed fares for special classes of passenger, such as children, students or old-age pensioners," it said.

The statement said it was one of the PUC's functions to ensure that fares are fair as between different classes and therefore:

"It will be prudent for any group seeking a reduction in some class of transit rates to indicate clearly from what other transit rates they think the revenue can be replaced."

The PUC said its discretionary powers were defined by a Supreme Court of Canada decision which concerned the privately-owned B.C. Electric at a time when the PUC was bound to treat all the utility's services as a unit "and could, therefore, make use of electrical rates to reduce transit rates.

NOT ANY MORE

"Finally, the commission has nothing whatever to do with what may happen to transit services when the franchise agreements terminate and the

TALKS END

Kashmir Causes Flare-Up

LONDON (CP)—A confused flareup over Kashmir caused an incident as Commonwealth prime ministers neared the end of their 13th conference today.

An Indian spokesman called a press conference to accuse a conference briefing officer of "deliberate mischief" in reporting earlier that Kashmir was discussed at a morning session during a debate on India-Pakistan relations.

The 18-country conference was in closed session discussing its communique when R. M. Maitra, Indian delegation spokesman, called reporters together and unleashed his blast about Kashmir.

He denied that Kashmir had been discussed as had been reported by the briefing officer and several other sources. Asked whether these sources—including Canadians — were telling lies Maitra merely repeated that Kashmir was not discussed.

Pravda Fears GOP Platform Calls for War With Russia

LONDON (Reuters)—Pravda, the Russian Communist party newspaper, says today the Republican platform of Senator Barry Goldwater "in fact calls for war with the Soviet Union."

The program called for "open intervention in Cuba, stepping up the war in Viet Nam and the granting to NATO commanders of the right to use nuclear weapons on their own initiative," the newspaper comments.

It was not surprising, the newspaper adds, that the platform had "frightened even those who previously thought of Goldwater as a noisy but generally harmless fellow."

Pravda and other Moscow newspapers quote American press comment that "if his philosophy were put into practice it would be a catastrophe for the country and for the whole world."

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda says it was hard to find words to describe the Goldwater platform, which contained "the most harmful dreams of the Birchites of a 'decisive victory over communism.'"

Yugoslavia compares the platform with Nazi policies and declared Goldwater's "appetites" were "greater than Hitler's."

This comment by the official Yugoslav newspaper Borba is one of the sharpest attacks on the Republicans and the Arizona senator voiced in Europe on the day Goldwater is expected to capture the Republican nomination at San Francisco.

In likening sections of the party platform to the policies of Nazi Germany, Borba's editorial cites a section which it says pledged the Republicans to follow the road toward "final liberation of the nations of East Europe, Asia and Latin America."

Borba comments that the peoples of those areas had survived worse experiences "but seldom worse insults." It also describes the platform as a "most unscrupulous attempt to interfere in internal affairs of all countries, including ours."

In Britain, former president Eisenhower draws newspaper fire along with the platform and Goldwater.

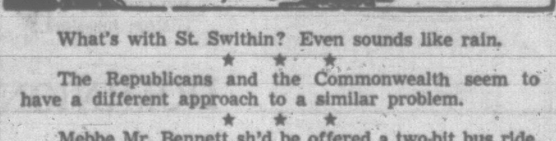
Daily Express reporter Rene MacColl writes from San Francisco: "When the embers of this hate-ridden Republican convention get raked into the cold ashes of history, the man who will probably emerge in the worst light is ex-president Dwight Eisenhower."

MacColl charges that Eisenhower "has behaved so badly that he has dealt his reputation and prestige a most grievous blow."

The article says he "blew hot and cold" before the convention and later assured Governor William Scranton he "would 'probably' support him — but then didn't."

"Now, on top of that, Eisenhower pops up in San Francisco as a radio-TV analyst of the whole thing, at a reputed fee of £18,000 ($54,000).

"In the eyes of nearly everyone this is a lapse of good taste and judgment that is little short of appalling."



What's with St. Swithin? Even sounds like rain.

Douks Defy Order To Leave Camp

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some 500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors remained encamped at Agassiz, 45 miles east of here, today as the deadline passed on a Kent municipal order to move on.

The municipality had posted notices at the makeshift camp reading: "Municipal property. Anyone found settling or camping arbitrarily on these lands after July 15 will be prosecuted."

Kent Reeve James Fraser declined comment Tuesday night on council's plan of action. Frank Wilson, municipal solicitor, said he had been given no instructions.

The sect moved to Agassiz last summer to be near brethren serving sentences in Mountain Prison for acts of terrorism. The sect earlier abandoned farming settlements in southeastern B.C.

Triple Murder Missing Links Being Sought

MISSION (CP)—Joe Sauriol, chief of the Mission municipal police, said today his force is trying to uncover five missing links that may clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of three youths near here Sunday.

Chief Sauriol said no motive for the triple murder has been established and the murder weapon, believed to be a .22-calibre rifle owned by one of the dead youths, is still missing.

He said two people who were in the area of the slayings are being sought for any information they may yield to clear up the mystery.

Also being sought is any person who saw a 1961 black convertible being driven from an isolated lake, about six miles north of here where the youths were killed, to the highway here early Sunday.

Police also hope any motorist who picked up a hitchhiker between Sumas and Surrey will come forward. The convertible, owned by one of the victims, was found abandoned at Sumas.

U.K. Fascist Roughs Up Kenya Leader

LONDON (AP)—A man who said he was a member of the British Fascist party rushed at Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya today as he left his hotel.

A police constable intervened and all three men landed in a heap against the automobile waiting to take Kenyatta to a session of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

Martin Allen Webster, 21-year-old London clerk, was booked on three charges of assault on the police, using threatening behavior with intent to provoke a breach of the peace and assaulting Kenyatta.

Kenyatta, in his 70s, went back inside the hotel and a spokesman said he was not injured. Fifteen minutes later he left for the Commonwealth session.

The attack occurred during a demonstration against Kenyatta outside the hotel by members of the British Fascist party, a splinter political group.

The Kenya government later protested officially to Britain against the attack.

Kenneth Meadows, spokesman for the Kenya delegation, said that the complaints were over "a lack of adequate security precautions."

'SHOULD BE MORE'

Campbell Backs Alberni Merger

Amalgamation of the Albernis got full support Tuesday from Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

"I couldn't agree more," he told the mayors of the twin cities of Alberni and Port Alberni.

"It should happen in more places," Mr. Campbell said.

The cities are studying a complete merger and have set a ratepayers' vote on the issue for Oct. 17.

Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni and Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni met him Tuesday to discuss the idea.

Mr. Campbell said it was the first major voluntary bid for amalgamation that had been made in recent years in B.C.

He said the government would approve the vote being held under the Municipal Act.

ENCOURAGED

Mr. Campbell admitted that discussions with the cities have been under way for several months "with some encouragement from us."

"Encouragement is going on in several other areas, too."

But he declined to name them, except to say this does not include his plan for Greater Victoria.

Mr. Campbell said the March 27 tidal wave disaster may have finally brought the Albernis together.

"It certainly united them in one fell swoop," he said.

The merger would involve amendment of the letters patent which currently establish two separate cities. This would be approved by the cabinet, he indicated.

It will be up to the cities themselves to set up a new government and amalgamate financial affairs and services.

HOSPITAL PROBE ORDERED

PORT ALBERNI — City council will investigate a claim of "unsanitary and deplorable" conditions in West Coast General Hospital.

The claim was made in a citizens' petition signed by 2,450 persons.

The petition, urging expansion of the hospital, was presented to council on Monday.

A protest at "the acute shortage of nursing staff" was also made.

Council made it clear, that while it supports expansion plans, it cannot endorse the petition without first investigating the charges.
